An artist friend volunteers a message

Gentlemen:

I am probably the only artist in the world who was launched into an art career before ever having drawn a line! It was this way:

From an early age, I looked funny in clothes. I became the despair of my parents. Finally, my Father said to me, "Son, there's only one career for you — Art."

It turned out to be a good idea. Funny-looking clothes proved no detriment to my artistic career. Nor to my social. For hostesses who wanted to inject a little Bohemian atmosphere into their parties would invite me — and point me out to impressed guests as a "typical artist."

That was swell for a while. Debutantes and dowagers made quite a fuss over me. But there was something hollow about it all. Hoff, the artist was getting by — but Hoff, the man, longed for recognition.

Then, gentlemen, came the turning point in my life — then, I became acquainted with your Arrow Mitoga Shaped-to-fit shirt. It fit perfectly. I had it laundered and it STILL fit — thanks to your Sanforizing process. Moreover, it followed the lines of my body so perfectly (no bunches or bulges) that the clothes I wore over it began to fit better. In short, I became a well-dressed man.

Today, I'm no longer considered "quaint" in a drawing-room. Hoff, the MAN, has made good. Women go for me, men envy me. Gentlemen, I sincerely thank you for the Arrow Mitoga.

WHAT THE WOMAN

WILL WEAR

W/E have convictions about personal appearances and feel that they should be kept up to par even while engaged in such selfless pursuits as Christmas shopping. Knowing that there are few tonics so potent in their effect on overworked wardrobes as a new hat, we present on this page a pair of notable new ones from a pair of notable New York milliners. They are shown in the sketch immediately below-a crazy fly-away bonnet by Robert Dudley, and a little, veiled Lilly

Daché pot which is fifty per cent flowers and the rest pure allure.

The Dudley hat is for girls who can wear the startlingly new and different and make it look so right that everyone is envious and starts copying as soon as you turn your back. The original hat was done in powder blue, with those wide, flaring ends whipped through a ribbon cockade in dubonnet red, but you can have it copied in any one of a dozen-odd mad and beautiful Dudley color combinations, done to match or to accent whatever you wear beneath your favorite furs for fancy daytime occasions. The blueand-dubonnet, for instance, would be grand with a dubonnet wool afternoon dress worn under black caracul, or black or grey Persian lamb. The sharp angle at which this hat is supposed to be worn is tremendously flattering to a pert face, and has great dash and style.

Lilly Daché makes the little round hat of stitched black silk twill, with flowers of stiffened silk crushed tightly together to form a ruff around the top. The flowers are, alternately, dazzling green and deep fuchsia-red, making a fine bright spot of color to point up rich, sombre furs or an all-black cloth costume. A wide, circular veil of lacy mesh is thrown over the whole thing; in the sketch this has been tossed back, as most women like to wear it.

We doubt if you'll find any lovelier quilted things anywhere in town than the two boudoir luxuries sketched on this page. Both are American Needlework designs. Florence Gritman has both the alphabet house-coat and the snowflake cape. They're in rich, silky Celanese weaves with Trapunto quilting, which means that the stitched designs are padded out from underneath, giving an embossed effect like low relief, wonderfully soft and puffy-looking. The tailored house-coat is of white Celanese taffeta, scattered all over with letters in colored Trapunto (the color glows softly through the white in a pastel effect); the shoulder-throw is of Celanese satin with Trapunto snow crystals and icicles; or you can have the same capelet in velvet, to wear over an evening dress.

What the Woman Will Wear

Other American Needlecraft quilted gems to be found in the shops in time for Christmas shopping display similar imagination and artistry in their design. One long, padded coat has a pattern of flying swallows; another has little bowknots in Trapunto. There is a quilted short coat made in a faithful copy of a man's smoking jacket, and their full-length house-coats in dark-colored Celanese taffeta have a kind of pre-revolutionary Russian magnificence about them. You can see these things at shops like Saks-5th Avenue, Bonwit Teller, the Nancy Lincoln Guild, etc.

Sketched below are three new foundation developments. In the centre is La Trique's new bra, Sep'ration; which separates as it uplifts, does a grand job of both, and, when worn for evening, permits a front decolletage which is just a little lower than you ever have dared before. La Trique's famous pointed form is retained in this new model, which you can see in the bigger and better stores around town.

Flanking the bra are two styles in "Toasties," Model's new way of keeping you warm while providing you with a figure which is the envy of all. On the right is a beautifully cut "Toasties" pantie-girdle, satin lastex on the outside, soft fleece against the skin. You can get the same thing in a longer-legged pantie as well, giving a smooth, slick line clear down to the knee.

The second pantie-girdle is of a woolly lastex weave, grand under sports clothes for outdoor goings-on in cold weather. B. Altman, Best, and Lord & Taylor have both these Model models.

For something nice to wear on top of your "Toasties," try a Tyrolean skiing costume from Best. Their collection, which is making converts every day, reaches a high point in little Alpine sweater-jackets, tight as your skin. You'll be seeing them right here in town, under tweeds and sports furs.

AFTER THE THEATRE

WITH the football season over and country life in general somewhat dispirited these days, the best way to get away from the sidewalks of New York is to go straight up, say to the 65th floor of Rockefeller Center. At the East, or formal, end of the building is the Rainbow Room, while at the other end the Rainbow Grill is enjoying all the pleasant trade that comes of announcing a new policy of no cover charge and no minimum. People come from all over, evidently, for that splendid view of the New York panorama, and all the while they can be listening to the dance music of Arthur Ravel (born Valentino) or to the pleasant piano interludes of the Arkansas young-and-lovely, Imogen Carpenter.

That new Longchamps, on 59th, has simplified the celebrity-stalking problem no end. Renowned luncheon and dinner specialists, the Longchamps folk are now going in heartily for the midnight trade as well, and you stand a good chance of going in there after the theatre and finding that the star is having a snack of supper at the next table. Heap big Indian décor, plus luscious squaws for the chapeau and canapé chores. Open twenty-four hours, so if you stay there all night staring at people, like a stagestruck little hussy, you can order some breakfast too.

Here-and-there: Beatrice Lillie, of the dozen double-damask dinner napkins, opened the New Montmartre last week. . . . Ramon & Renita are at the Ambassador's Trianon Room. . . . Ron Perry, who was out at Lido last summer, plays in the St. Moritz Continental Room... Attention: the Bonus Army, Society turned out last week for that gala dinner dance to benefit invalids of the Russian Imperial Army now in this country. The appropriate setting: La Maisonette Russe, in the St. Regis. . . Georges & Jalna are back at the Waldorf, in the Sert Room . . . this week's breathless news flash: Lydia, who dances with Joresco, has a Pomeranian which she calls "Kitty-Kat" (stet) because of its fondness for catnip.

WALDORF ASTORIA

WHAT THE MAN WILL WEAR

TOWARD evening dress men are as conservative as a two-per-cent investment. They may experiment; they seldom adopt. A case in point—out of the void into the zenith flashed "color" in evening clothes, only to drop back into the blank. Where are the mulberry dinner jackets and robin's egg blue waistcoats of yesteryear, as the perfervid poet warbles? Where even is the once touted, now flouted mess jacket in white and pastel tints? You will find them up in the limbo of tried-and-rejected fashions hobnobbing with maroon-colored cummerbund sashes and garnet shirt studs.

The fact is unbudging that most men do not want revolutionary changes in evening wear. They lead to excesses and confusion. Vagary takes the place of propriety. It's like a regiment uniformed to please all whims. The result is a tatterdemalion outfit.

On the other hand, just as today's slang is tomorrow's language, so today's fad sometimes becomes tomorrow's fashion. fierce or gentle reader of this column of frivols, follies and, once in a while, fashions, may recall that the budding vogue of midnight-blue as an evening color was chronicled here quite ten years ago. At that time only a handful of uppity tailors knew about midnight-blue. It was looked upon as dandiacal and eccentric. The writer was set upon and belabored by purists for recommending this supposedly outlandish color. Today, midnight-blue is internationally accepted as the smart evening color. It has spread from suits to overcoats, soft hats, bowler hats, ties, half-hose, cummerbund sashes and what not. It is the sensational success of evening dress because it is color wisely employed to make black richer, deeper and more lustrous. Midnight-blue is now even to be met in the uppers of silk-top dance Oxfords and side-gore evening gaiters.

The beret hat does not commend itself to Anglo-Saxon taste. Rather, it is a Latin fashion. However, there is a noticeable revival of the Scotch Tam-o'-Shanter for snow-and-ice sports, particularly "curling." The sketch pictures the correct lines of this hat and the spruce angle at which it is worn. The materials are plain—cashmere or llama wool—and the shape is smallish in comparison to the old-fashioned affair. The accompanying wool muffler is in a bold plaid.

Though in no wise new, the knitted pullover jacket sketched here is smartly done. Observe the full-fashioned waistiness at the sides in contradistinction to the ordinary pullover that hangs with stodgy straightness. The attached ditto muffler is a notion borrowed from the dressing gown of a few seasons ago. This muffler may be looped once and allowed to swing or it may be knotted choker or Ascot style in the now familiar way. The waistband of this pullover is usually worn folded up.

Among short-bosom town shirts the two illustrated below are noteworthy for more than ordinary smartness. At the left is the oval-shaped, solid-color bosom. Collar, cuffs and body are contrastingly colored. At the right is the wide-pleated straight bosom, also with collar, cuffs and body executed in an offset color. Observe the broad-spaced turn-over collar. The introduction of this shape is ascribed to the Duke of Kent, as already told. The cuffs on both shirts have rounded corners, a fashion that is superseding the orthodox square effect.

Fine tobacco for Christmas. For more than a quarter of a century, the mellow fragrance of Prince Albert has been as much a part of Christmas as mistletoe and holly. HOW GOOD IS YOUR BRIDGE?

BY THE FOUR ACES

David Burnstine Michael Gottlieb Oswald Jacoby Howard Schenken

A HAND ontaining a H.C.V. of 9½ or more is a compulsory opening bid. This is based on the Four Aces table of High Card Values (H.C.V.): Ace—3, King—2, Queen—1, Jack—½.

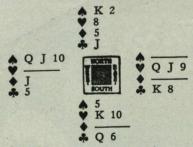

This strength is equivalent to an Ace above an average hand and therefore some attacking bid must be made, otherwise there is great danger that the hand will be passed out and a part score or a game will be missed. The situation therefore resolves itself into which bid to choose, always bearing in mind the Principle of Anticipation. This means that in opening the bidding, the bidder should select a bid that will prepare for:

- A response by partner in his shortest suit over which bidder can rebid without embarassment.
- 2. A rebid with which he can more fully disclose the strength of his hand without either overbidding or underbidding.

Note: The requirements for a normal opening bid are the same whether in first, second, third or fourth position, and whether vulnerable or not vulnerable.

This is the first five-card problem we have presented. It is much easier than the six-or seven-card problems.

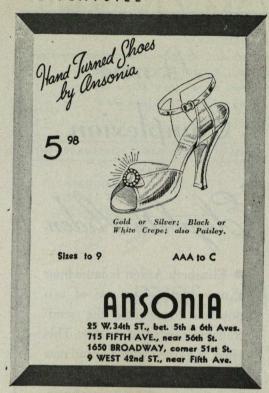

PROBLEM NO. 15

There are no trumps, and South leads. North and South are to win four tricks against any defense.

The ten among you who send to THE PLAYBILL, 108 Wooster Street, New York, N. Y., the most accurate and concise descriptions of the solution mailed before midnight, Sunday, December 15, will receive copies of the Four Aces' book autographed by all of them.

"The Boss is On the Line"

THIS MAN built Plymouth's great main plant . . . P. C. Sauerbrey, vice-president in charge of production.

It's the largest one-roof, one-floor-level plant in the world. Engineers agree its equipment and layout are the automotive industry's finest.

Seventeen miles of conveyors... power hoists and cranes... "roller-runs"... trucks ... do all heavy lifting and moving. Men keep energy for fine work ... with time to do each job right.

Twin assembly lines, nearly half a mile long, complete three new Plymouths a minute... without rush or confusion. The cars are built with exacting care.

The Boss, P. C. Sauerbrey, is nearly always "on the Line"... or somewhere in the plant... keeping personal touch with the job.

His chief concern is to get a superbly engineered car superbly built. And that's true of every Plymouth worker.

"Look at All Three" lowest-priced cars and you'll see how well this works . . . you'll see what care goes into the great new Plymouth for 1936.

WHO'S WHO IN THE CAST

ADRIANNE ALLEN was engaged by Basil Dean for Noel Coward's "Easy Virtue" on the basis of her performance in the graduation exercises of the Royal Academy of Dramatic Arts. Raymond Massey cast her for a part in "Rat Trap" and shortly afterwards selected her for the role of Mrs. Massey. She appeared under his management in a number of London productions and under C. B. Cochran's in the original cast of "Private Lives." New York has seen her as Doris Lea, the forsaken shopgirl of "Cynara," and with Gladys Cooper and Mr. Massey in Max Gordon's production of "The Shining Hour."

LUCILE WATSON first appeared in New York under the distinguished auspices of Charles Frohman in a series of Clyde Fitch comedies. Among the outstanding plays of her career were "Captain Jinks," "Heartbreak House" for the Guild, "March Hares," "The Nest," "You and I," and "The Zoo." She returned two seasons ago as the modern grandmother of "No More Ladies." Last season found her defying the deep laid plans of the desperate kidnappers of "Post Road."

COLIN KEITH-JOHNSTON played the nerve-wracked Stanhope in the New York production of "Journey's End." He has appeared opposite Katharine Hepburn in "The Warrior's Husband," as Laertes in the Norman Bel-Geddes production of "Hamlet," and as the center of the emotional whirlpool of "Dangerous Corner." London playgoers have seen him as a dinner jacketed Hamlet in Sir Barry Jackson's modern dress production, as Lord Teylesmore in "The High Road," in the title role of "Clive of India," and with John Gielgud in "Noah."

HELEN CHANDLER made her theatrical debut at the age of eight as the Duke of York with John Barrymore in "Richard III." Her first big success was the role of Hedvig in "The Wild Duck," followed by Ophelia to Basil Sydney's Hamlet, "The Constant Nymph," "The Silver Cord," Margaret in the Theatre Guild's "Faust," "The Silent House," and "Springtime for Henry." Interspersed throughout these years were trips to Hollywood for "Outward Bound," "The Last Flight," and numerous other pictures.

PERCY WARAM toured for several seasons with Ben Greet before Charles Frohman brought him to America to appear in a series of Barrie plays. He enrolled with the Theatre Guild in "The Lucky One." and remained under their jurisdiction in "R.U.R.," "Major Barbara," "The Camel Through the Needle's Eye," as Raleigh in "Elizabeth the Queen," and as Morton in "Mary of Scotland." He played truant to the Guild, however, long enough to appear with Jane Cowl in "Lilac Time" and with Grace Moore in "The Du Barry."

HAROLD SCOTT makes his American debut in "Pride and Prejudice." His London roles, however, include such varied assignments as the Reverend Mill in "Candida," Waitwell in "The Way of the World," Molvik in "The Wild Duck," Winkle in "Mr. Pickwick," Drinkwater in "Captain Brassbound's Conversion," and Launcelot Gobbo in "The Merchant of Venice."

BEATRICE TERRY, niece of Dame Ellen Terry, made her stage debut at the age of four. Some of the more important productions in which she has appeared since then are: "The School for Scandal," "The Master Builder," "Twelfth Night," "The Cradle Song," 'Jimmie's Women," "The Command Performance," "Camille," and this season's "For Valor."

BRENDA FORBES played for a year at the Old Vic with Sybil Thorndike. She has appeared as Katharine Cornell's maid in "The (Continued on page 30)

JOHN HALLORAN has appeared in "The First Mrs. Fraser," "Suspense," "The Merchant of Venice," and "The Barretts of Wimpole Street." He toured last season in "The Shining Hour."

NANCY HAMILTON understudied Katharine Hepburn in "The Warrior's Husband." Two years ago she caused a revolution in Tin Pan Alley by writing and singing a sadistic little ballad entitled "I Hate the Spring" in "New Faces."

JOAN TOMPKINS made her New York debut as one of Thomas Mitchell's refractory brood in "Fly Away Home." She has appeared in stock with June Walker in "The Late Christopher Bean" and with Henry Fonda in "Up Pops the Devil."

STEPHEN KER APPLEBY has appeared in "Camille" on tour with Jane Cowl, in "The Silent House," and as a continental officer in "Valley Forge."

VIOLA ROACHE has played in New York in "Hobson's Choice," "The Bachelor Father," "The Distaff Side," and "The Simpleton of the Unexpected Isles."

FRANCES BRANDT has appeared recently in "Once in a Lifetime" and as the dean's wife in "She Loves Me Not."

JOHN D. SEYMOUR has played in "Falstaff," "Dearest Enemy," "Sweet Adeline," and "The Barretts of Wimpole Street."

HAROLD THOMAS played with George Arliss in "Disraeli" and "The Green Goddess" and in Theatre Guild production of "The Good Earth." He also played in "She Stoops to Conquer" and "One, Two, Three."

How to make Folks say:

"Just what I wanted!"

Here are the gifts for best friends. Fine old whiskies brought forth with skill and patience—a truly royal family of bonded whiskies, and a distilled gin worthy of its place among them. All from the 77-year-old house of Hiram Walker of Peoria, Illinois; Walkerville, Ontario.

Hiram Walkers "CANADIAN CLUB"

A different and tastier whiskey, delightfully light in body. It is Bottled in Bond in Canada, after 6 years of aging in the wood.

Hiram Walker's

Luxuriously smooth and hearty whiskey. 100 proof, 6 years old, and Bottled in Bond in Canada. Also a "De Luxe" Straight Rye.

Hiram Walker's "PRIVATE STOCK"

Every drop is 10 years old. Bottled in Bond under Canadian Government supervision. Here is a real aristocrat of grand old whiskies.

JAS. & GEO. STODART'S "RARE OLD HIGHLAND" BLENDED SCOTCH WHISKY

It is the Scotch that Scotchmen choose. All over 8 years old. Bottled in Bond in Scotland, for you who take your Scotch seriously.

Hiram Walker's

Distilled from grain by the exclusive "Controlled Condensation" process that assures uniform smoothness and flavor. 90 proof.

Forward Glance Sights Wedding—Maybe Two

BY MARY SEARS.

Janus-like, the eyes of society turn both backwards and forward in making a social survey of the month that this week will slip from the calendar.

Out of the backward looking eye one glimpses the weddings which made last week socially eventful; while with the forward looking orb one sees an approaching wedding set the last of this week. Into the forward-turned ear trickles a hint of another wedding which also will take place the last of the week.

Social interests this week also take place the last of the week.

Social interests this week also will include the informal reception and luncheon in honor of Dr. William Moulton Marston, to be held at the Fort Worth Club Wednesday, following his lecture here; the President's birthday ball Thursday night; the Woman's Club annual bridge tournament Friday and the Fort Worth Club's dinner dance that night.

The over-the-shoulder view includes the tailored bride and the formal bride, the former Miss Gwendolin Vernon, debutante daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Vernon, who became the bride Thursday morning of Mr. Bernard McFarland of Pampa, at St. Patrick's Catholic Church. The bride wore a smart tailored suit, with matching accessories, of blue. Her shoulder bouquet was of white orchids. Navy blue, semi-tailored frocks were worn by her attendants, Miss Josephine Walker and Mrs. F. Edgar Deen Jr. Fifty guests attended the wedding break-

Pauline and I - January 17, 1936 GUILD THEATRE

Gentlemen:

I am writing this from a chandelier -- writing to see if I can get one of your ARROW MITOGA shirts for a friend of mine. I have his and if he thinks I'm going to give it back he's crazy. Maybe I ought to explain --

All my life I hated to wear shirts. I could never get them to fit.

At first I tried to ignore the discomfort. Then I began reading up on stoicism -- but found myself too sensitive to pain to finish the book.

So finally I went rebel -- refused to have anything to do with a shirt. I turned my back on the outside world, and sulked in the privacy of my home. Then, one day, my friend called upon me to tell me of your new Mitoga shirt that's designed to fit the body like tights fit an acrobat -- the shirt that's SANFORIZED-SHRUNK to keep this Greek-god fit. To convince me, he took off his own Mitoga to let me try it on.

And I still have it on. I'm taking no chances on losing a shirt like this, after waiting all my life for it. So please, gentlemen, send him another so he'll stop bothering me, so I can enjoy in peace the first shirt that ever really fit me.

Very truly yours,

Frank Quen

THE SEASON

"The Taming of the Shrew" with Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne is one of the six productions of the Theatre Guild's eighteenth subscription season. John C. Wilson is associated with the Guild in the production.

The Guild also offers, at the Alvin Theatre, 52nd Street, west of Broadway, its production of George Gershwin's "Porgy and Bess," a folk opera based on "Porgy," a play by DuBose and Dorothy Heyward, which the Guild presented with great success in 1927.

Mr. Heyward is the librettist of the new version and he and Ira Gershwin have written the lyrics. Mr. Gershwin's score has been hailed by critics as a great achievement in American music. The story has given him an opportunity to write light as well as serious music and the libretto contains humor as well as drama.

The Guild has assembled an unusual cast of Negro actors and singers for the production, including Todd Duncan, in the role of "Porgy," Anne Brown as "Bess," Warren Coleman as "Crown" and John W. Bubbles, of the vaudeville team of Buck and Bubbles, as "Sportin' Life." Others in other roles are Abbie Mitchell, Edward Matthews, Georgette Harvey and J. Rosamond Johnson. The cast of seventy includes the Eva Jessye Choir.

Rouben Mamoulian, who directed the original production of "Porgy," returned from Hollywood to direct "Porgy and Bess." The settings are by Sergei Soudeikine. Alexander Smallens directs the orchestra.

The fourth production of the Guild season, scheduled to open January 27, will be "Call It a Day," a comedy by Dodie Smith, with Philip Merivale and Gladys Cooper in the leading roles. The production will be presented in association with Lee Ephraim. Miss Smith will be remembered as the author of "Autumn Crocus," in which Francis Lederer (Continued on page 4) made his first American appearance. "Call It a Day" is the reigning hit of London at the moment. The play will be directed by Tyrone Guthrie.

For the fifth play of its season the Guild will present, in mid-February, "The End of Summer," a new play by S. N. Behrman, with Ina Claire in the leading role. Miss Claire scored a brilliant success three years ago in Mr. Behrman's charming comedy, "Biography." Philip Moeller, who directed "Biography" and the three other Behrman plays produced by the Guild, "The Second Man," "Meteor" and "Rain From Heaven," will stage "The End of Summer."

The final production of the year, which will arrive in mid-March, will bring Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne, now appearing in "The Taming of the Shrew," back in a new play by Robert Emmet Sherwood, the author of their enormously successful "Reunion in Vienna." The new play is called "Idiot's Delight" and is of such timely interest that the Lunts are cutting short their prosperous run in the Shakespearean comedy to give it an immediate production.

With plans for the present season now complete the Guild already has turned its eyes to the next. It holds options on "Daughters of Atreus," by Robert Turney, "The King of the Mountains," by Martin Flud, and new plays by Eugene O'Neill, Maxwell Anderson and John Wexley.

Theatre patrons not already subscribers to the Guild perhaps do not know that subscription prices are lower than box-office prices and that subscribers obtain preferred seat locations. An orchestra seat for the five plays of the season still available is now $11 for an evening performance, and $8.25 for a matinee. Government tax is included. Seats in other locations are scaled proportionately. Information regarding subscriptions may be obtained from Miss Addie Williams in the Theatre Guild Subscription Office, Guild Theatre, COlumbus 5-6170.

WILL the boom in New Places never subside, so that architects can go back to designing skyscrapers and chic little townhouses with glass-brick façades? There are more smart dancing places now than you can shake a leg in, and this week we chronicle the arrival of another, the redecorated Place Piquale which is now known as the Trocadero, under the aegis of Morton Downey and Peppy de Albrew. This new Trocadero, like El Morocco, backs its wall-seats strikingly; not in zebra, but in leopard. Peppy, whose Chapeau Rouge was last season's most charming supper club, can now wander about again as the expansive host. Partner Morton Downey still slaps his feet on the floor in rhythmic fervor, but he does a grand soprano job on "Just One of Those Things." Even grander, to me, is the dancing of the D'Ivons, full of gay and spirited precision and the essence of delight. Ask them for "Alice Blue," from Ferde Grofé's "Three Shades of Blue." The dance music is by Budd Hulick, of Stoopnagle & Budd.

• A bit of detail is volunteered by the Weylin concerning the Presidential Dance that will be exhibited at the Waldorf Astoria on rhythm; and Dario and Diane, also of the Caprice Room, will dance it. The music features 7-4 time, a broken beat to which other pieces may be adapted, and which, they claim, gives an astonishing effect, admitted with some latitude to be "somewhere between the savage stomp of jungle music and the smooth lilt of a waltz."

• Here-and-there: Pils & Tabet, of "Continental Varieties," and an English dance team, Palmer & Price, go into the Rainbow Room Wednesday night . . . Eve Symington will leave the King Cole Room for the sunny South in a few days

... Kathleen Barrie (Mrs. Wm. A.

K. Taylor) is singing in the Weylin's Caprice Room . . . Take a note, Miss Abrahamson, to the Trocadero's head-waiter, once of the famed Lido: "Dear Maraschino..."

David Burnstine Michael Gottlieb Oswald Jacoby Howard Schenken

ONE of the specialized features of the Four Aces System is the Jump Two-Over-One bid—forcing to a Slam. Thus, if your partner opens the bidding with one heart and you respond with two spades, you are commanding him not to stop short of a Small Slam contract, and at the same time saying that your hand is practically equivalent to an opening two-bid.

Several years ago there was an epidemic of psychic bidding, and things came to such a pass that when a player opened the bidding, his partner was in considerable doubt as to whether he actually had a bid or not, and hence, did not know how to respond. Using this Two-Over-One convention, the original bidder shows a psychic by rebidding to two notrump, and responder, being apprised of this fact, then continues the bidding to game, but no higher.

If the player's opening bid is legitimate, he must make some rebid other than two notrump, in which event the bidding proceeds by slow and easy stages until at least a Small Slam contract is reached.

Great care should be exercised in using the Jump Two-Over-One response. The One-Over-One response is also forcing, and can be used when the player's only aim is to reach a game contract.

"THE CAR THAT SKIPPED THE AWKWARD AGE!"

The ROADMASTER, series 80 six-passenger sedan pictured above has 120 horsepower, carries a list price of $1255 at Flint, Mich.,* fenderwells extra. All Buick prices include safety glass throughout as standard equipment

THEY'RE a critical lot, those old-time Buick owners, and it means a very great deal that you see them going around now with their faces wreathed in smiles.

They have watched and wondered while car styles evolved through what seemed to be abrupt and painful stages — hoping for a streamlined car they could call beautiful, and mean it!

Then came the 1936 Buick—and streamlining blossomed forth full mature, satisfying, all trace of awkwardness gone, all ungracefulness artfully avoided!

Nowhere in the long sleek winning loveliness of this great car is there a single instance of straining for effect.

Nowhere, from tapered fender to tasteful interior, is there a suggestion of the inept hand, the groping taste.

Buick style is the welcome style of experienced artists, demonstrated again and again in that deft repetition of the fundamental motif which is the foundation of all true beauty.

Buick style is streamline style and gives full benefit of air-slipping efficiency; yet no hard angularities spoil this flowing grace, no harsh demands of function make this form unbeautiful!

But why should we tell you that Buick is beautiful as well as big—lovely to look upon as well as luxurious to ride in? Your own eyes bear grateful witness.

And for once the size of your purse puts no limit on the style you may enjoy. Buy any Buick—and you buy a car that has skipped the awkward age.

★ $765 to $1945 are the list prices of the new Buicks at Flint, Michigan, subject to change without notice. Standard and special accessories groups at extra cost, Convenient new

WHAT THE MAN WILL WEAR

SURELY the seasoned fashion tipster must be "born with a gift for laughter and a sense that all the world is mad." For, no sooner is one style set up than lo! comes another to knock it down. It was not so long ago that we were all agog over the white mess jacket fresh from that parrotcage of ostentation, the French-Italian Riviera. Followed then the dinner jacket of white linen worn with trousers of black worsted. Already there are signs that men are tiring of this turnout, but what impales them upon the point of a dilemma is—what next?

Florida fashions in January are vignettes of Northern fashions in June. Down where they look at life through rose-colored—or is it orange-colored?—glasses the smart white linen dinner jacket is worn in the manner pictured in the sketch. It is 2-button and shawl-collared with full shoulders, waisty incurve and snug drape over the hips. The top button serves as a mere anchorage to hold the jacket together and, of course, the waistcoat is left off. The spruceness of this garment depends upon indefectible cut and fluency of fit. The back may be ventless or have side vents. Sleeves are tapering. Pockets are flapless and jetted. The accompanying black trousers are a trifle narrower than heretofore, as too roomy a cut detracts

SOLUTION TO LAST WEEK'S BRIDGE PROBLEM NO. 19 BY THE FOUR ACES

Spades are trump and South leads. North and South must win all the tricks against any defense.

SOUTH leads Ace of Diamonds, North discarding Ace of hearts. South leads heart seven. If West covers, North trumps with the spade Ace, and leads the spade deuce, which is won with South's nine. South takes two heart tricks, forcing East to unguard either the clubs or diamonds.

If West passes the heart seven, South continues with the same result.

As first chronicled here, the white shirt is on the gain for resort and cruise wear. It is softer and lighter than linen and, certainly, comports well with one's tropical kit. Illustrated in the sketch is such a silk shirt having a broad center box pleat flanked with narrowish side pleats. The turn-over ditto collar is low and wide-spaced. The cuffs are the fold-over type preferably with a rounded effect. The bow-knot tie is the wide, flat affair also with tips slightly rounded, though the split or forked end is also to be seen.

Men whose acquaintance is an international "Who's Who" are familiar with the practice of some English sportsmen to wear high gaiters at golf. To be sure, it is rather the fancy of oldsters than of youngsters. Nevertheless, the field gaiter is a picturesque appurtenance of the sporting rig-out.

The five-button gaiters illustrated below are worn with wool stockings and plus-fours. These gaiters are made of stout canvas or English box-cloth, plain or sometimes in a colorful check or plaid pattern upon a monotone ground. Note the spruce cut of the plus-fours, not too wide nor too narrow, with a decided inward curve at the bottom. Such knickers are perfectly balanced and avoid that baggy look which made plus-fours unacceptable to many even at the height of their vogue.

Overshoes with cleats or disks on the sole to keep one from slipping are not a new notion for the sportsman. They have long been in use in England where, naturally, more circumstantial heed is paid to one's outfit for wet weather. As shown below, such overshoes, rubber or rubberized, fasten with a buckle and strap over the instep.

WHAT THE CRITICS THINK OF "The Taming of the Shrew"

"In the eighteen years of its distinguished existence the Theatre Guild has brought forth no happier diversion than the transcription of 'The Taming of the Shrew,' bringing Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne with it... Staged and acted in hokum's highest spirits, it emerges as a laughfilled evening in the theatre, swiftly paced, energetic, beautiful to look at. It's one of the very best shows in town... Shakespeare must have written 'The Taming of the Shrew' especially for Mr. Lunt and Miss Fontanne."

Robert Garland, World-Telegram

Robert Coleman, Daily Mirror

"Here art the actors who have more gusto for every sort of stage hocus-pocus than any other performers on the American bulletin boards. . . . When Miss Fontanne bellows from a room upstairs, the actors huddle in the corner and tremble. When she stamps on Petruchio's foot, he is stamped for all time. . . . All Shakespeare needs at any time is actors. . . . He has them here. Audiences are always in luck when good actors are enjoying themselves."

Brooks Atkinson, Times

"A gay evening at the Guild Theatre. . . . Mr. Lunt's Petruchio is a roistering delight. . . . Miss Fontanne is in full voice as a clamorous and boisterous shrew."

Burns Mantle, News

"Here at long last is the show that the town has been waiting none too patiently for—the Lunt and Fontanne 'Taming of the Shrew'... Such a clatter and bang, such cock-eyed rough-housing, such beauty and such hilarity... By far the liveliest and giddiest and most living Shakespeare hereabouts in my day, a raffish lark and sailing frolic, full of acrobats, midgets, horses and horseplay, with Mr. Lunt and Miss Fontanne playing it in headlong exuberance and wild invention... A thing of rare beauty and marvelous fun."

John Anderson, Journal

"Here is a chance for you to get your first torsolaugh out of 'The Taming of the Shrew'."

Percy Hammond, Herald Tribune

"Joyful these tidings. . . . Here's some Shakespeare obviously openly done for Lunt and Fontanne's sakes . . . which means for very expert fun's sake, for loud and rapid laughter's sake, for high holiday, for lovely mischief, for the sport."

Gilbert W. Gabriel, American

"By far the most spirited and convulsing production that the comedy has seen in our time... so gay and so right that it does not force the Bard to turn in his grave, but permits him to leave it. Put this 'Taming of the Shrew' at the head of your list of new plays to be seen this winter. The season is not apt to produce a more enjoyable offering."

THE PLAYERS

Alfred Lunt and Lynn Fontanne began their association with the Theatre Guild October 13, 1924, when they appeared together in Ferenc Molnar's comedy, "The Guardsman," at the Garrick Theatre, the first home of the Guild. Since then each has appeared in seventeen Guild plays. In ten of these they have appeared together. Two years ago they left the Guild management to appear in two plays by Noel Coward, "Design for Living" and "Point Valaine," under the management of John C. Wilson, who is associated with the Guild in the presentation of "The Taming of the Shrew." The Guild welcomes their return.

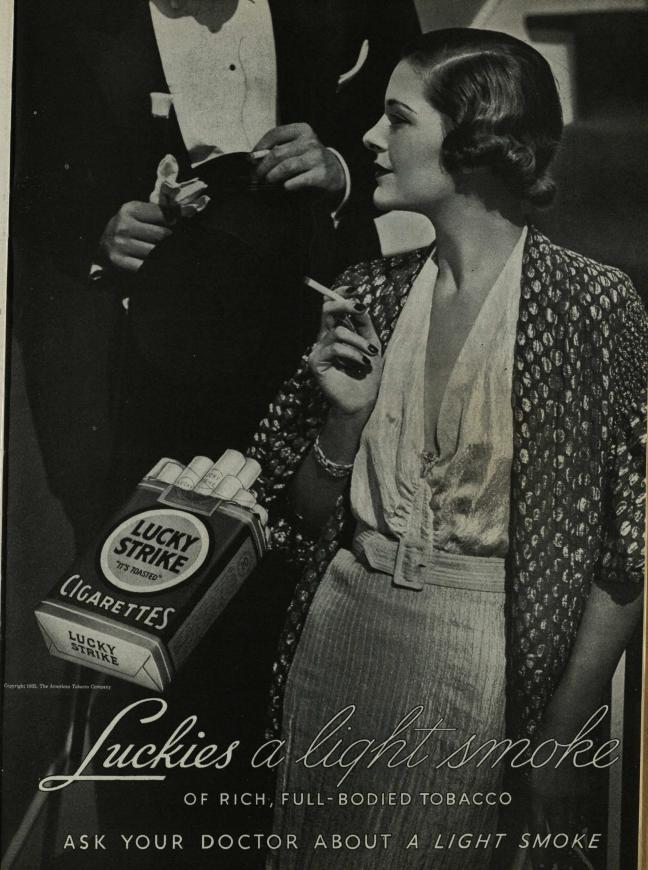

Mr. Lunt was born in Milwaukee, Wis., His first public appearance was at the age of 12, when he won an elocution contest by reciting a speech written by the same Mr. Shakespeare who wrote "The Taming of the Shrew." When he reached college-Carroll College in Waukesha, Wis.-his chief interest was in the dramatic department. He appeared as reader with the college glee club. When his parents sent him to Harvard he didn't even bother to look for the campus. He went straight to the Castle Square Theatre in Boston, where he obtained a small role in "The Gingerbread Man" at $5 a week. He spent two years with the Castle Square Players and his salary had risen to $30 a week when Margaret Anglin saw him and asked him to join her company. He did. Later he became Lily Langtry's leading man in a vaudeville sketch. An appearance with Laura Hope Crews followed. While appearing in Booth Tarkington's "The Country Cousin," Mr. Tarkington saw him and decided to write a play for him. The play was "Clarence" and it brought him into immediate prominence. Since then he has held a high place in the American theatre. He and Miss Fontanne were married in 1922. Two years later they began a career as an acting team in "The Guardsman" and since then have seldom appeared separately. Among their Guild successes in which they appeared together are: "At Mrs. Beams'," "The Second Man," "Caprice," "Meteor," "Elizabeth The Queen" and "Reunion in Vienna."

Miss Fontanne was born in England. Her first appearance also was a demonstration in elocution-but before a distinguished audience of one. A friend took her to recite for the great Ellen Terry. She was twelve and she launched boldly into Portia's most difficult speech from "The Merchant of Venice." Miss Terry was impressed—so impressed that she volunteered to take Miss Fontanne as a pupil. There followed two years of study with the star. Then came Miss Fontanne's first professional appearance, a small role in a pantomime. Other and larger roles followed and she came to America with a touring company but returned to England. When she came back again it was at the invitation of Laurette Taylor for a role in "The Wooing of Eve." She has remained here ever since. It was in "Dulcy," by George S. Kaufman and Marc Connelly that she found her first real opportunity and her success was so great that she immediately took high rank in the theatre. Since her marriage to Mr. Lunt they have almost always appeared together. Mr. Lunt and Miss Fontanne make their home in Genessee Depot, Wis.

SYDNEY GREENSTREET was born in England. As a youth he went to Ceylon to work on a tea plantation. By day he bossed the native workers. At night he read. There wasn't much to read in Ceylon. His mother sent him a set of Shakespeare and he read every play, over and over again. Came a drought and he returned to England. There his knowledge of tea got him nowhere but his knowledge of Shakespeare did. He began appearing at amateur performances, then took up acting as a career. He has appeared with Ben Greet, E. H. Sothern and Julia Marlowe and Sir Herbert Beerbohm Tree, who called him "the greatest unstarred star on the English stage."

RICHARD WHORF is one of the most versatile actors on the American stage. He began his career at the Castle Square Theatre in Boston, where Alfred Lunt also started. He has appeared in scores of plays, but never has played the same type of role twice. Among his plays are: "Fools Rush In," "The Lady From the Sea," "Spring Freshet," "Monkey," "Red Planet" and "Three Cornered Moon."

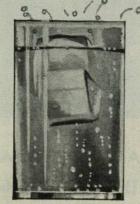

DOROTHY MATHEWS originally intended to become a painter. She studied at the Art Students League for two years and was making splendid progress when she paid a visit to Hollywood. A friend asked her whether she would like to play a small role in a motion picture. She did. She went on to feature roles. She came to New York to appear with Katharine Cornell in "The Barrets of Wimpole Street." Since then she has had numerous other roles.

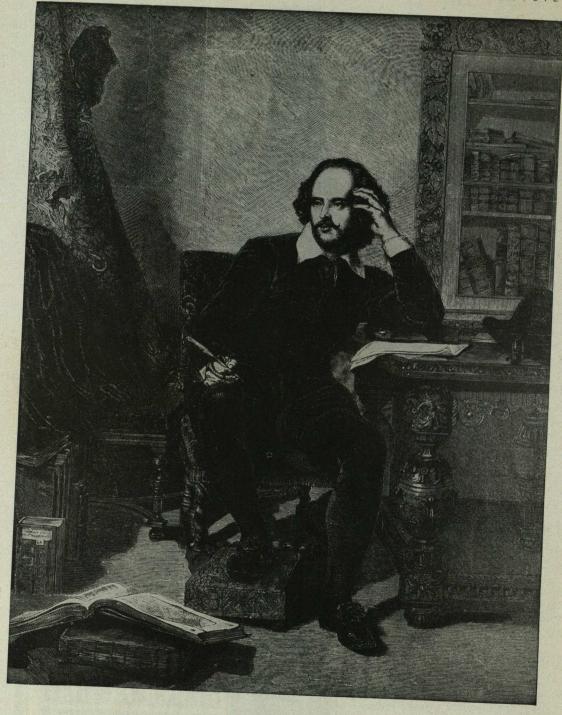

ALICE BELMORE CLIFFE's last appearance with the Theatre Guild was in S. N. Behrman's "Rain From Heaven," with Jane Cowl and John Halliday. She was born in England and achieved considerable reputation in the London theatre before coming to America. Her plays here include: "Michael and Mary," "Meet the Prince," "The Wooden Slipper," "Hay Fever" and "Flowers of the Forest."

CONCERNING THE NEW YORK MARKET

The Playbill is distributed exclusively to theatre patrons of New York's legitimate theatres.

The New York Theatre Program Corporation, Publishers

TALKING According to Variety, the volume SHOP of theatre tickets sold at a premium by agencies during the recent holiday season was 100% over that of the same period in 1934. This figure does not cover the box office sales. What with the hit shows piling up new highs with advance sales and extra matinees and with a good number of first rate plays in the works, it looks as though the carpers, who were all for putting the legitimate drama in moth balls, will have to eat their words.

THE PLAYBILL With our ear always to the ground we attempted last February to find out for ourselves all about the Playbill. Do people read it? Do they read the advertising? Do they take the Playbill home with them? In other words, are they aware that there is such a thing as The Playbill? Being really serious about the matter, we asked Dr. Daniel Starch to undertake the task for us.

During the months of February and March, then, Dr. Starch sent his henchmen to the theatres at both evening and matinee performances, with their ears to the ground and a questionnaire in their hands. The results were gratifying and up to our expectations. They found that 95.0% of theatre goers did read The Playbill; that 87.6% of them read the advertising (not bad with a circulation of approximately 9,000,000 per annum for all theatres); and that 61.9% took The Playbill home with them. Not only did they establish these facts but many others of which heretofore we had been reasonably sure from our own observation.

However, it was the "verbatim comments" which Dr. Starch submitted to us while he was compiling the survey, that set us up. Such comments as:

Cast of characters too hard to find.
Liked location of cast of characters.
Do not like covers.
Beautiful covers.
No individuality to Playbill.
Thinks Playbill very original.
Prefers London programs.
Playbill better than London programs.
Playbill not very attractive.
Playbill most attractive.

GAS LOGIC On the day after Christmas, a friend of ours received a letter from the Consolidated Gas Company, dated December 24th, explaining that the New York City Sales Tax for Relief of Unemployed had been previously billed to him as a separate item in connection with charges for gas service. Our friend, they said, had failed to include the amount of such tax in his last remittance. They went on to explain that they had no choice in the matter of billing and collecting this tax (local law No. 20, as amended) and intimated that they considered him pretty low in deducting the tax from the bill. The letter ran 140 words and closed with the demand that the amount (bill enclosed) be paid in full, without deduction of the tax items required by City law.

The amount of the bill enclosed was $.01. Our friend has been terrifically depressed ever since.

ADVERTISING FUNDAMENTALS IN NEW YORK CITY

The Playbill reaches that market exclusively.

Year after year, quality product advertisers have found these fundamentals to be the key to an effective and economical New York policy of advertising. New york - Meck and of January 17, 18, 19 with Vauline and Mrs . French.

ization" (Harpers). An excellent introduction to contemporary civilization is contained in J. W. Swain's "Beginning the Twentiet" Century" (Norton), W. C. Langsam's "The World Since 1914" (Macmillan), and R. L. Ashley's "Our Contemporary Civilization" (Holt). The economic factors in history are well described in M. M. Knight, "Economic History of Europe to the End of the Middle Ages" (Houghton Mifflin), and F. A. Ogg and W. I. Sharp, "Economic Development," Modern Europe" (Macmillan).

Charles Austin and Mary R.
Beard's "Rise of American Civilization" (Macmillan) is the best introduction to American history, but it may be well supplemented on the later period by L. M. Hacker and
B. B. Kendrick, "The United States Since 1665" (Crofts). The all-important history of the New Deal is best told by Hacker in his "Short History of the New Deal"

IN the field of economics the two basic factors today are the rise of modern technology and the ravages of finance capitalism. The most competent account of the development of technology is Lewis Mumford's, "Technics and Civilization" (Harcourt, Brace). The best that can be said for capitalism is continued in M. H. Dobb's "Capitalist Enterprise and Social Progress" (London, 1925).

On the nature and operations of finance capitalism, the best books are:—H. W. Laidler, "Concentration in American Industry" (Crowell).

(London, 1925).

On the nature and operations of finance capitalism, the best books are:—H. W. Laidler, "Concentration in American Industry" (Crowell), F. L. Allen, "The Lords of Creation" (Harpers). Jerome Davis, "Capitalism and Its Culture" (Farrar and Rinehart). Bonbright and Means, "The Holding Company" (McGraw-Hill), Derle and Means, "The Modern Corporation and Private Property (Commerce Clearing House), I. M. Wormser, "Frankenstein Incorporated" (McGraw-Hill), J. T. Flynn, "Graft in Business" (Vanguard), and "Security Speculation" (Harcourt), and Norman Thomas, "Human Exploitation" (Stokes).

How finance capitalism shades into crime is well described in E. D. McDougall, "Crime for Profit" (Stratford) and "Speculation and Gambling" (Stratford), and 1L Mooney, "Crime Incorporated" (Mc-Graw-Hill).

College Girls Enjoy Tour Of Village

Tea in a sculptor's studio climaxed the tour of Greenwich Village for a group of 23 Briarcliff Junior College girls and their instructors, Miss Elizabeth F. Boyd, Miss Harriet Cressey and Miss Caroline Ford. last Thursday afternoon when they came to be guests of The Villager for this part of their day's field trip to New York City.

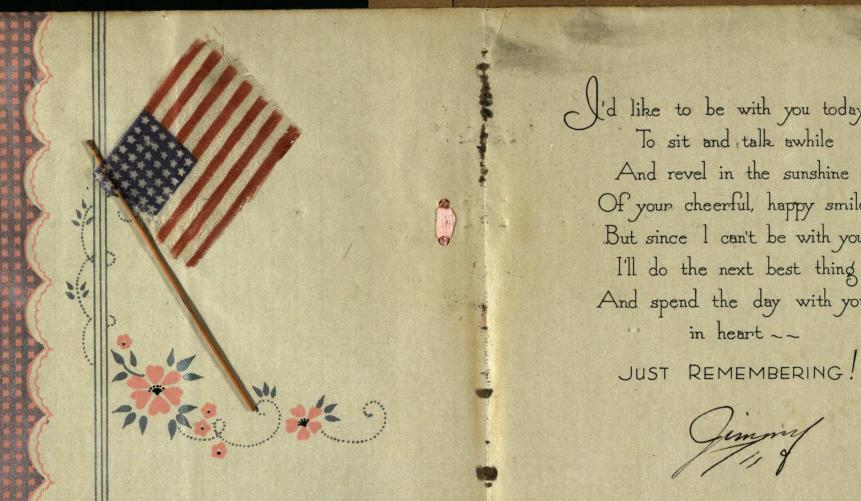

Members of English classes at Briarcliff Manor, the girls visited places in the area connected with literature and art of past and present, under the direction of three staff members of The Villager, Mrs. Editha Bedell, Miss Sylvia Weiss, and Miss Mary L. Nichols.

In his brief welcome to the guests Publisher W. G. Bryan emphasized the fact that they would find Greenwich Village an attractive, charming place in which to live, devoid of the Bohemian attributes credited to it by strangers. Comments from some of the visitors upon completion of the trip bore out the truth of the host's predic-

An artist friend

Gentlemen:

I'm in the hospital, and I think you might be interested in how it all happened.

You see I had a peculiar accident -- I fell out of a shirt. It was one of your shirts!

I normally take a size eighteen shirt and trust to the laundry to shrink it into a reasonably well-fitting sixteen. So when the haberdashery clerk told me that I could start right off with a regular sixteen shrinkless ARROW SHIRT, did I laugh? And I went home with a size eighteen ARROW SHIRT.

Of course, it was too large but then it hadn't been laundered yet. I put it on when it came back from the laundry and that shirt hung around my neck with all the grace of an old-fashioned yoke. Remembering my hasty words with the clerk, I hung my head in shame. And . . . WHAM! I fell right out through the collar of that shirt of yours. The next thing I knew, an interne was slapping plaster casts on me.

Then he told me about SANFORIZED-SHRUNK shirts and I went berserk.

I can laugh about it now. Thank heavens for a sense of humor! And thank you for shrinkless ARROW SHIRTS. I've got lots of them, size sixteen and we won't fall out again.

Sincerely yours,

fashion

- You might be pardoned for having thought that flowers have been tacked on every possible article of dress this season. Real and artificial, they adorn every second lapel in town. In great clusters they nod from tiny hats above smothering furs. Nicole strings cabbage roses together in a long chain and uses them to hold up one of the most bewitching taffeta gowns in town, and Bonwit Teller have little shoulder capes made of enormous silk poppies sewed together.
- But the end is not yet. In the Delman Shop at Saks-Fifth Avenue you can see the climax of the flower-trimmings furor—an evening slipper of scalloped silk, with a bunch of kidskin flowers at the instep. Sketched below.
- Shown in the same picture is the Vanity Boot Shop's new open sandal, all graceful swirls of silver kid—one of the most flattering things you ever put on your foot. You can have this sandal also in dyable satin with gold or silver kid trim, or, for your summer prints, in colored doeskins and patents.

SOLUTION TO LAST WEEK'S BRIDGE PROBLEM NO. 25 BY THE FOUR ACES

Hearts are trump and South leads. North and South must win seven tricks against any defense.

SOUTH leads the club King, followed by the spade three, North winning with the Jack. North leads the trump, discarding the spade King, and then leads the nine and seven of spades, South discarding according to East. West is thrown in with the spade eight and must lead a diamond. If East has thrown a diamond, South throws the club and makes three diamond tricks. If East throws the club Queen, South makes two diamonds and the club ten. If West escapes the throw-in by giving up the spade eight, North makes the trick and then puts East in with a club, so that South makes two diamond tricks.

- The Nicole gown of changeable taffeta already mentioned here is part of a collection you'd find hard to match in this town for glamour. Nicole has the same way with clothes that she has with hats; everything she turns a hand to has style and a kind of madcap flip which somehow stops short of losing dignity. She does one dress in white chiffon, all girlish simplicity, and covers it up with a movie-star cape of white chiffon hung clear to the heels from a solid yoke of massed white camellias. She does the antithesis of this in a dinner gown which covers you from chin to toes, and to fingertips, with cobweb black lace, over a satin slip that's cut to look as if it had been put on soaking wet. She has another white gown in Romaine, almost completely covered with swishing fringe; the skirt is like a dancer's shawl of the fringe. wrapped sinuously through the hips. All her things are like that, giving the wearer the inestimable advantage of feeling she is beautiful as soon as she puts them on.
- The sketch on this page was made at I. Miller, and shows two pairs of Miller street shoes for Spring, with two Miller handbags. They have gone mad at this place over British tan, and are using it for everything. The bow pump in the picture is of Venetian brown gabardine with a saddle of British tan calf; the handbag carries out the same scheme. The high black gabardine ties, with their coin-dot cutout pattern, have the same tan calf for trim, and again the handbag matches. You'll like this black-and-tan combination.

BY THE FOUR ACES

David Burnstine Michael Gottlieb

Oswald Jacoby Howard Schanken

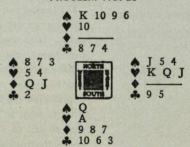

THE exploratory response is a bid of two I in a lower-ranking suit in response to an opening suit bid of one. This response is forcing for one round-your partner must rebid, and hence you should have more strength than you need for a one-over-one, because you are up at two.

This response is used to show all sorts of hands. First, when it is the only bid. For instance, you have five diamonds to the Ace-King and your partner has bid a spade. Naturally, you respond with two diamonds. A second and very important use occurs when you do not know how many raises to give your partner or how many notrumps to bid. For instance, your partner has opened with one spade and you hold:

♠ K 10 x x ♥ A x x ♦ K 10 x x · XX The proper response is two diamonds, followed by a raise to three spades on the next round, which invites him to bid to game, but which at the same time allows him to pass if his opening bid was an absolute minimum.

PROBLEM NO. 26

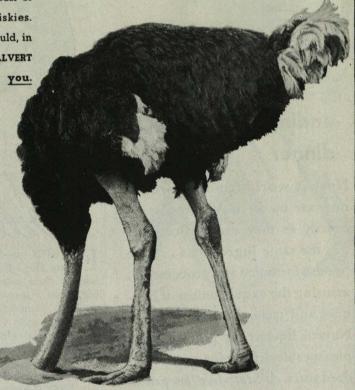

South is on lead at notrump. North and South must win seven tricks against any defense.

The ten among you who send to THE PLAYBILL, 108 Wooster Street, New York, N. Y., the most accurate and concise descriptions of the solution mailed before midnight, Sunday, March I, will receive copies of the Four Aces' book autographed by all of them.

What the Man Will Wear

FASHION used to have what highbrows term the subtlety of simplicity (sic). It was all done sotto voce, in a manner speaking. You attracted attention by seeming to avoid it. Contrariwise, the present is the era of fashion seen through a high-power magnifying glass. One goes in for audacity, noticeable effects, bold colors, sharp contrasts. It's a throwback to the ornate decade in dress. A London periodical, speaking of the late King George the Fifth, said: "An individualist in certain respects, yet it may truly be said that His Majesty by his example did much to maintain the dignity of dress during an age of growing informality."

However, even during the benign reign of King George it became increasingly evident that Englishmen were breaking loose from tradition. Much of this independence was traceable to the then "Prince of Wales, an individualist than whom none could be whomer. He gave a fillip to the world-wide vogue of the double-breasted dinner jacket, introduced the red carnation as its seemly boutonnière, revived the fashion for dance pumps, brought back the black satin tie, the loose-draping Balmacaan evening overcoat and many other daring notions that upset custom. The influence of the Prince of Wales is markedly prevalent today in evening dress.

The Cross-Over For Sports

• Quite two years ago this column illustrated a new sleeveless cross-over knitted jacket that created a bit of a furor along the French-Italian Riviera. It was double-breasted and cut to extend diagonally across the chest and fasten at the side. Short and snug, this garment had a decidedly waisty effect. It came in solid colors of mottled mixtures and the buttons were of a shade to tally with the ground. Since its introduction the cross-over sporting jacket has been greatly improved, as pictured in the sketch. The armholes, front edges and waistband are bound in a contrasting color which lends an added touch of smartness.

The Jacket at Home

• House jackets take their style cue from the fashionable dinner jacket. At the moment the shawl lapel is well regarded. Thus it is also seen on many lounging jackets of the sort shown in the sketch. This is the single-button flannel affair with lapels, pocket tops and cuff facings executed in a faintly con

Fashion's In Mourning

· Britain, in sorrow for its king laid to rest, is wearing black hats, black cravats, black sleeve-bands and black-bordered white handkerchiefs. This is done in pursuance of the decree of the Duke of Norfolk, Earl Marshal of England, that "all persons upon the occasion of the death of his late Majesty of blessed and glorious memory do put themselves into decent mourning." Americans, to be sure, will not go as far as that. However, one already observes a spreading vogue for black cravats and black Homburg hats among fashionables who dress after the manner of London. Certainly, the prolonged period of mourning in Great Britain will not be without its effect upon styles the world over. In consequence, royal purple is also regaining some measure of favor.

For The Smart Sleeper

AFTER THE THEATRE

IT was only a year ago that songbirds were pleading with you from every platform and microphone to speak to them of love, preferably in French. And now here we are at the other extreme, for the nearest thing to a sensation in the chanteuse line this season is a deep-voiced young lady who starts off by chanting, "Don't mention love to me!" Kay Thompson is her name, and she sings in the refurbished King Cole Room of the St. Regis. There the Hartmans still do their abstracted burlesques of dance teams, magicians and ventriloquists. Their impressions of Veloz & Yolanda and the De Marcos are both savage and amusing. Emil Coleman's dance music is as compelling as in the Montmartre and Villa Venice days: have him play the rhumba orientale, Tabu, a piece of weird and strange fascination.

 Nikita Balieff, most slyly amusing of all conferenciers, has a new edition of the famed Chauve-Souris for you, and in the Continental Room of the St. Moritz, presided over by John of the Simplon, he is celebrating the 30th inniversary of his Muscovite harleniversary of his Muscovite harlequinade. Words fail to do justice to Nikita's earnest but baffled encounters with English, or to the infinite sorrow with which he attempts to translate for you from the Russian, the eas-i-est lan-guage, he tells you mournfully, in the whole world. You'll like singer Gregory Chmara, Elena Komisarjevska (a ringer for Garbo), Lili Kedrova, and the number called "I. S. Kohn, Inc." The singing after the show is grand, also. This Chauve-Souris is something to cheer about. Ron Perry plays for dancing.

...hurried existence! Smoking Camel Cigarettes

Aids in Assuring Natural Digestive Action

"Hurry-hurry" seems to be the order of the day. People get caught in the lockstep of modern life. Tension finds the weak spot, so often-digestion. It has been shown that smoking Camels improves digestion . . . wards off the consequences of hurried, nervous living. Camels gently stimulate digestive action. They promote the feeling of well-being and good cheer so necessary to the healthful and proper assimilation of food. In a word, Camels set you right! And, in smoking Camels for digestion's sake, you may enter a whole new world of smoking pleasure. So turn to Camels. Enjoy the appealing flavor of costlier tobaccos! They never tire your taste!

Uptown and Down By SELMA ROBINSON

SHE met Josef Israels at a party. He, you may remember, is the singular young man who convinced Haile Selassie that what Ethiopia needed was a pressagent, and he has only recently returned from the black kingdom.

This girl was a wide-eyed, wondering thing, and Joe's stories of Ethiopia were too wonderful. Breathlessly she inquired of him were the Ethiopian women any different from American women?

Ethiopian women were practically the same, Mr. Israels told her, gravely.

"Except for one thing," he said. "They moult in the spring. You know, shed their skins, the way snakes do."

The wondering one took this little thought away with her to ponder. Half an hour later she was back with another question.

"About those Ethiopian women," she said, "do they shed their skins gradually or do they shed them all in one piece?"

• Quickies: Arturo Toscanini. He is a neat little figure and he wears a neat little black hat, several sizes too small for him although made to order. He is the greatest orchestral conductor of our times, yet he is superstitious as a peasant: lucky charms dangle from his watch chain; a little horseshoe, an elephant, a figure thirteen, a medal of the madonna. In New York he conducts at least three concerts a week, and many, many rehearsals. He thinks of each rehearsal as a concert and each concert, as he himself has said, is like a debut for him. When he isn't rehearsing, he is discussing music or studying scores or worrying about performances. He has an American automobile and he likes to drive fast. He eats sparingly, and never before a concert. He prefers wines and champagne to hard liquor. He likes Mickey Mouse comedies. He hates the noise of Manhattan but he lives at the Hotel Astor in the very heart of the theatrical district. Madame Toscanini cuts his hair, lays out his neatly pleated shirts and bow ties and sees that his patent leather shoes gleam. They have three children whose names all begin with W: Wally, now the Countess Castelbarco, Wanda, wife of Vladimir Horowitz, the pianist, and Walter, an antiquarian, who lives in Milan.

They have, also, a pet Belgian griffon, which Frances Alda, former opera star, gave them. It is a tiny gray dog they call Picciu, which is Italian for comma. Despite the popular belief, the Maestro speaks English quite well, except in moments of acute excitement. He conducts with his left hand on his hip, his baton in his right hand. They say that he knows every note of every one of the scores he plays by heart, that he learned them because he was near-sighted and couldn't see the music on the stand. He does know the music by heart, not because he is near-sighted but because he can't help himself; he simply absorbs it. At rehearsals he breaks his batons, his eye-glasses, in temper; he may plead on bended knee for his men to play as he wants them to, he may storm, he may threaten them, he may, as he once did, smash a closet door with his fists because his men were not cooperating. They forgive him, though, because of his genius. Some time ago, at a rehearsal of Ravel's Bolero, he bawled a drummer out. For five minutes he shouted and screamed in fiery Italian. But when he realized that the player didn't know a word of Italian he stopped, completely stumped. Then he mustered his English, doubled up his fists, waved them violently in the drummer's face and said with all the menace he could summon:

"You bad, bad man!"

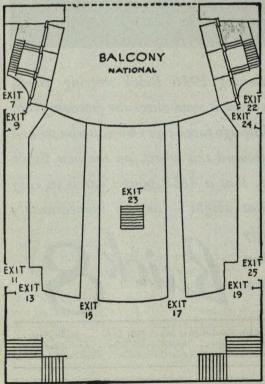

Pictured here is the stunning 1936 Buick steering wheel, important not alone for its beauty, but because it symbolizes the freedom from that driving drudgery which only a little while ago faced every woman who wished to drive a generously dimensioned car. Behind this wheel, on the new Buick Limited, the slightest woman driver finds that a 4858 pound car is as easy to handle as an earlier car of half that weight — and so immeasurably smoother and steadier and more satisfyingly gaited that there is no comparison. Just drive a Roadmaster or a Limited and see.

• We have what it takes to be gadget-minded. You will find us in sidewalk crowds, listening to speeches on combination hammers, screwdrivers and measuring-spoons. We are the one who casts the first dime. You'll see us following raptly the work of the demonstrator in Bloomingdale's basement or the blessed aisles of Woolworth. And now we would like to know what we are offered for the following, only slightly used:

Item—One orange juice extractor. (This clever little instrument is shaped like a fountain pen. You plunge it into the orange, make a few deft twists with your wrist, press the orange gently and watch the juice flow. Three times we tried it and each time the orange cracked wide open. The fourth time, success. One teaspoonful of juice.)

Item—One self-soaping bath-tub brush. (The soap is inside this ingenious rubber brush. You wet it, wring it and scrub the tub. The soap, as we said, is inside the brush. It still is. It never came out at all.)

Item—One metal silver-cleaning plate. (You put the metal plate in a basin of water with bicarb of soda and salt; you swish the silver around in it and watch the tarnish disappear. It took our house-maid to discover that it works just as well in any aluminum saucepan, without the wonderful metal plate.)

Item—One package of stain remover. This is the one that really broke our heart. We saw iodine stains vanish, and gin and chewing gum and tar, right in the middle of Broadway. Just water, a brush, and the stuff, and the stain was removed. But all it removed for us was the color in an Oriental rug.

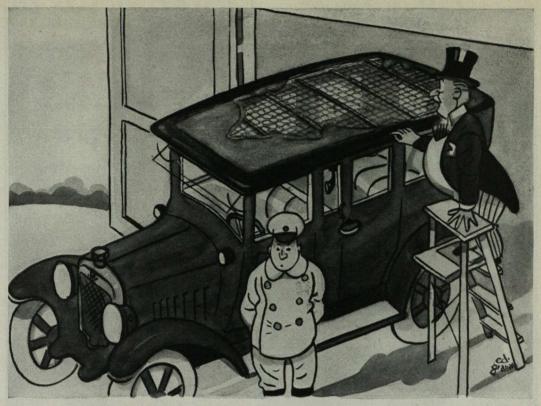

• One of our local fashion editors arrived at her house one day to find fire engines and a crowd outside. There were no signs of fire, though, so she started to push through, when her arm was seized by one of the crowd, the neighborhood tailor.

"Let me go, Mr. Nis," she said; "I want to get inside."

"Ah," said Mr. Nis, "I see! You got waluables opstairs!"

"Well," said the fashion editor, "I have got a piano."

Horror spread over the face of Mr. Nis. "Dunt be fullish!" he cried. "Liv it there!"

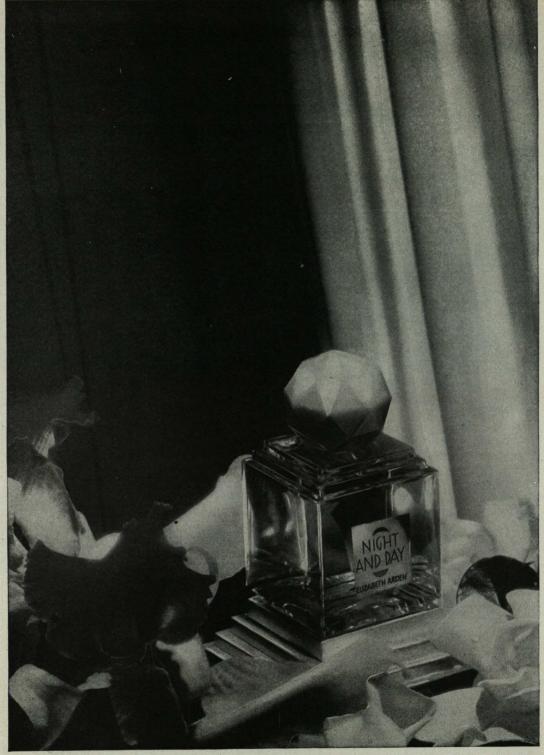

WHEN DID YOU FIRST NOTICE THE MOTHS IN THE ROOF, PARKER?

Funny we never thought of that. We've stated in the public prints that the one-piece solid steel "Turret Top" is shock-proof, weave-proof, heat-proof, weather-proof...but frankly we never thought to mention it's moth-proof, too. Not that you're much afraid of moths...but we think you'll agree that solid steel overhead makes much better sense in every way than a soft spot of fabric It's just one of many reasons (Fisher No Draft Ventilation is another) for ALWAYS choosing a car with the one-piece solid steel "Turret Top" Body by Fisher . . . in short, a General Motors car.

WHO'S WHO IN THE CAST

PAULINE LORD has been one of the nation's leading players ever since she first stepped on the stage of the Vanderbilt Theatre in Eugene O'Neill's "Anna Christie." After playing the rele of Anna Christopherson for two years in New York and on the road she took the play to London, where drama and star were as heartily acclaimed as they had been in New York. The Theatre Guild next selected her for the rele of Amy, the flirtatious wife of "They Knew What They Wanted," Sidney Howard's Pulitzer Prize drama. New York has seen her since in "Salvation," as Nina Leeds in "Strange Interlude," in "Distant Drums," and as Abby, the phlegmatic housekeeper of "The Late Christopher Bean." Miss Lord has returned from Hollywood where she was starred in the film version of "Mrs. Wiggs of the Cabbage Patch" to play in "Ethan Frome."

RUTH GORDON, a native of Wollaston, Massachusetts, made her first big hit as the wife in "Saturday's Children," Maxwell Anderson's comedy of young love. Jed Harris selected her for the title role of "Serena Blandish," and the Theatre Guild chose her to play Lily Malone in "Hotel Universe," Philip Barry's drama of disillusioned expatriates. She has appeared in "The Violet," "The Wiser They Are," as a reticent secretary in "A Church Mouse," a madcap poetess in "Here Today," a repentant dreamer in "Three Cornered Moon" and the unwilling center of a cause celebre in "They Shall Not Die." Last season she represented three successive generations of an English family in the Theatre Guild production of "A Sleeping Clergyman."

RAYMOND MASSEY was born and educated in Toronto, Canada. After serving as a lieutenant in the Canadian Field Artillery during the war he made his theatrical debut in a London production of Eugene O'Neill's "In the Zone." He has appeared in England in "Saint Joan," "An American Tragedy," "Beyond the Horizon," "Spread Eagle," "The Constant Nymph," "Late Night Final" and "The Rats of Norway." New York has seen him as Hamlet in the Norman Bel Geddes production and in "The Shining Hour." He is the husband of Adrianne Allen, who plays Elizabeth Bennet in Max Gordon's production of "Pride and Prejudice."

FRANCIS PIERLOT has appeared in "The Show Off," "Women Go on Forever," "Gentlemen of the Press," "Midnight," "Of Thee I Sing" and in Max Gordon's productions of "The Band Wagon," "Her Master's Voice" and "The Farmer Takes a Wife."

TOM EWELL has played in New York in "De Luxe," "They Shall Not Die," "The First Legion," "Geraniums in My Window" and "Let Freedom Ring."

CHARLES HENDERSON'S New York appearances include those in "All Good Americans," "Dodsworth," "They Shall Not Die," and "The Great Magoo."

MARIE FALLS played leading roles in "Stop Thief," "York State Folks," and "Shore Acres." New York last saw her in Max Gordon's production of "Dodsworth."

OWEN DAVIS is the author of more plays than he can count or would like to remember. Born in Maine, he took up play writing after completing an engineering course at Harvard University. After an interval of acting (a career for which he showed no startaling aptitude) he sold his first play, "Through the Breakers," to Gus Hill. "Through the Breakers" was a melodrama, a form of play writing with which his name became rather closely associated during the ensuing decade. He wrote melodramas by the dozens for the road. For several years he had a contract with Al Woods whereby the manager agreed to devote himself exclusively to Davis plays while the dramatist promised to write for no other producer. These plays bore such descriptive titles as "Alone in the World," "Driftwood," "Driven from Home," and "Her One False Step." For the most part, they never reached New York. In 1911 Davis turned to more serious drama with "The Wishing Ring," which he wrote for Marguerite Clark. The play was directed -without a single bathtub to its name-by Cecil B. DeMille. Among his later plays are "Forever After" with Alice Brady, "The Detour" with Augustin Duncan, "The World We Live In," "The Nervous Wreck," "Icebound" (a Pulitzer Prize winner of 1923), "Lazybones," and "The Great Gatsby" from the book by Scott Fitzgerald.

DONALD DAVIS collaborated with his father on the dramatization of "The Good Earth" for the Theatre Guild and Nazimova. Earlier this season he was somewhat surprised to find himself represented on Broadway, in Yiddish translation, by "Haunch, Paunch, and Jowl" at the Artef Theatre. The play has never been produced in English.

GUTHRIE McCLINTIC was born in Seattle and made his theatrical debut in Grace George's company at the Playhouse Theatre. After serving for several seasons as casting director for Winthrop Ames he was awarded the directing assignment for "Dover Road." Among the outstanding productions he has staged in New York are "The Shanghai Gesture," "Saturday's Children," "The Age of Innocence," "Brief Moment," "Criminal at Large," "The Barretts of Wimpole Street," "Alien Corn," "Yellow Jack," "The Old Maid," Katharine Cornell's production of "Romeo and Juliet," "Winterset," and "Parnell." Strangely enough, "Ethan Frome" is the third play he has directed that has been adapted from an Edith Wharton novel. The other two were "The Age of Innocence" and "The Old Maid."

And On The Cover-

ELIZABETH SIMPSON INCHBALD, 1753-1821. That celebrated early London journalist, the Spectator, once wrote succinctly of this Covent Garden favorite: "Mrs. Inchbald was a beauty, a virtue, a player and an authoress. Her family were numerous, distressed, and importunate; she was generous and benevolent; and yet she, by the labour of her own hands, accumulated a handsome independence. She did the wildest things that girl or woman ever did; but such was the sterling purity of her mind . . . that reproach never, except but momentarily, visited her fair fame." Mrs. Inchbald lived to be nearly seventy, a beauty and an expert comedienne to the end. From the Theatre Collection at the New York Public Library.

CONCERNING THE NEW YORK MARKET

CARS ACROSS THE RIVER

A few weeks ago, it was reported that the 90,000,-000th car had passed through the Holland Tunnel; and, what's more, a new system was being put into effect to speed up traffic so that even more cars could get through in less time. By early next Fall, it was estimated, 100,000,000 vehicles will have passed through the tunnel, either to get to—or away from—New York City. A restless lot, the people that live around New York; always going somewhere, even if it's only back and forth.

THEATRE PATRONS Speaking of going places—the attendance at New York's legitimate theatres was nearly 9,000,- 000 last year. Of this total almost 25 per cent came from the suburban areas; a little more than a million were from the East, West and elsewhere in the United States; there were more than 90,000 who came from abroad; and the attendance drawn from New York City was more than five million. The moral of this story is that most of the progressive people sooner or later come to the universal meeting place, the New York legitimate theatre.

GOLD MINE Some more facts and figures.
Stories of high finance always have intrigued us and the following figures ought to prove something. It seems that in 1935 the taxpayers of New York State contributed more than twice the amount in internal revenue than that paid by any other state in the Union. As a matter of record, they paid twenty-one cents out of each revenue dollar in internal revenue collection. The exact amount, according to an A.P. dispatch, was $723,909,718.00 as compared to $586,032,128.00 in 1934. Moreover, the second collection district of New York State, which includes the Custom House (and only a part of New York City) produced $346,641,217.00; about half of the state's sum total.

GAS LOGIC And while we're on the subject of taxes—it seems that our friend who said he received a bill for $.01 from the Consolidated Gas Company had no grounds to be depressed after all. That wasn't no bill; that was a receipt!

This is what happened. The Gas Company noted the omission of the tax which it must They credited collect from its customers. his account with the amount of his check for gas services, receipted the bill, showing a balance of $.01, and sent him a letter explaining why they must collect the tax. It is the company's practice, so they have since informed him, to include the forgotten sales tax as arrears on the next bill. And now things have taken on a more rosy hue and our friend feels that, everything considered, perhaps the New York merchants and utilities have done pretty well by the Sales Tax for Relief. In fact, it seems pretty apparent to him that they, along with the consumer, have done more than their share.

Now what's worrying him is: who has to count all those elusive pennies anyhow? And are they shipped in bulk in an armored car to City Hall, or what?

ADVERTISING FUNDAMENTALS IN NEW YORK CITY

New York is the richest market in the world.

The Playbill reaches that market exclusively.

Now CHRIST IS RISEN

Traditional

NOW Christ is risen from the dead, Hallelujah! Christ of the Church the Living Head. Halleiujah t

At morn while the world was still sleeping, Three sorrowful women came weeping. They bore to the tomb sweet spices rare, Their Lord to anoint with tender care. They found there an angel robed in white; The grave was filled with heavenly light. "Fear not at all," the angel said, "For Christ is risen from the dead!"

Then sing we all with one accord, Hallelujah! Hosannas to the risen Lord! Hallelujah!

Offertory Carol

THIS GLAD EASTER DAY Old Norwegian Carol

"LONELY, heart-broken, I seek here my Jesus, Desolate, empty, the tomb where He lay!"
"Nay, 'tis not empty, with angels 'tis filled, Life is triumphant this glad Easter Day!" Weep now no more. O cease from thy sorrow, Look up to Jesus, and not in the grave. Jesus is risen! He liveth alway, O'er death victorious, almighty to save! "Angel, O tell me, O where hast thou laid Him? That I may tenderly bear Him away?"
"Death could not hold Him! He liveth again! Jesus is risen this glad Easter Day!" Cease from thy grieving, let weeping be stilled; Precious the promise He now hath fulfilled; Joy is thy portion, both now and alway, Christ is risen, He liveth for aye! "Angel, O tell me, O where shall I find Him, That once again I may look on His face?"
"Ever He's with Thee, close He's beside Thee,
With love He'll uphold Thee and strengthen with grace." Master, we pray Thee to keep us e'er near Thee, Strong in our faith, secure in Thy love, And when our lives of glad service are ended, Bring us at last to Thy heaven above.

PART I. THE PASSION

No. 1. CHORUS There is a green hill far away Without a city wall, Where the dear Lord was crucified

Who died to save us all.

We may not know, we cannot tell, What pains He had to bear, But we believe it was for us He hung and suffered there.

No. 2. ALTO SOLO When the morning was come, all the chief priests and the elders took counsel against Jesus, to put Him to death.

And when they had bound Him, they led Him away, and delivered Him unto Pilate, the governor.

No. 3. BARITONE SOLO

And Pilate asked them, saying, What accusation have ye against this man? What evil hath he done? What will ye that I should do unto him?

No. 4. CHORUS

We found this man perverting the nation. He stirreth up the people. We have heard him say, I will destroy this temple, and in three days I will build another. He forbiddeth to give tribute unto Caesar. He hath said, he himself is Christ, a King!

No. 5 BARITONE SOLO

Then Pilate called Jesus, and said unto Him, Art thou the King of the Jews?

TENOR Solo. Thou sayest it.

Ye have brought me this man, as one that perverteth the nation, and behold, I find no fault in him, nothing worthy of death hath been done by him. Therefore will I chastise him, and then release him

No. 6. CHORUS

And they were instant with loud voices. crying, Away with this man! Crucify him! Release unto us Barabbas!

PILATE. Shall I crucify your King? We have no King but Caesar!

No. 7. Bass Solo

When Pilate saw that he prevailed nothing, he took water and washed his hands before the multitude, saying, I am innocent of the blood of this just man. See ye to it.

No. 12. ALTO SOLO

As it began to dawn toward the first day of the week, came Mary Magdalene, and the other Mary to see the sepulchre.

No. 13. CHORUS

And behold, there came a great earthquake: for the angel of the Lord descended from heaven, and came and rolled back the stone from the door, and sat upon it.

His countenance was like lightning; his raiment white as snow; and for fear of him the keepers did shake, and became as

Because they have taken away my Lord, and I know not where they have laid Him.

TENOR SOLO. Mary!

Master! Master!

No. 15. TENOR SOLO

Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest. Take my yoke upon you, and learn of me, for I am meek and lowly; and ye shall find rest unto your souls.

No. 16. CHORUS

My faith looks up to Thee, Thou Lamb of Calvary, Saviour divine! Now hear me while I pray, Take all my guilt away, Oh, let me from this day Be wholly Thine! While life's dark maze I tread, And griefs around me spread, Be Thou my guide: Bid darkness turn to day,

Wipe sorrow's tears away,

Nor let me ever stray

No. 9. THE MARCH TO CALVARY. (Organ)

No. 10. Bass Solo

Now from the sixth hour there was dark ness over all the land until the ninth hour.

CHORUS. He calleth for Elias.

When Jesus had cried again with a loud voice, He said,

TENOR SOLO. It is finished.

No. 11. CHORALE

O perfect life of love!
All, all is finished now;

In perfect love He dies, For me He dies, for me; O all-atoning sacrifice, I cling by faith to Thee.

When ends life's transient dream, When death's cold, sullen stream Shall o'er me roll; Blest Saviour, then, in love, Fear and distrust remove; Oh, bear me safe above, A ransomed soul!

No. 17. SOPRANO SOLO

The morning purples all the sky, The air with praises rings; Defeated hell stands sullen by, The world exulting sings. Glory to God! our glad lips cry; All praise and worship be On earth, in heaven, to God most high, For Christ's great victory. While He, the King all strong to save,

Rends the dark doors away, And through the breaches of the grave Strides forth into the day: Glory to God! our glad lips cry;

All praise and worship be On earth, in heaven, to God most high,

For Christ's great victory. The shining angels cry, Away With griefs, no spices bring! No tears, but songs, this joyful day Should greet the rising King.
Glory to God! our glad lips cry;

All praise and worship be On earth, in heaven, to God most high, For Christ's great victory.

No. 18. CHORUS

Now is come the salvation, and the power, and the kingdom of God. Great and marvellous are Thy works, O Lord God al-

Christ, being raised from the dead, dieth no more. Death hath no more dominion over Him. O death, where is thy sting? O grave, where is thy victory?

The sting of death is sin, and the strength of sin is the law. But thanks be to God, which giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ.

Special Announcements

This afternoon, at the four-thirty service, the choir will sing Protheroe's Cantata, "Eastertide." The topic of Dr. Bonnell's sermon will be "Easter Eventide."

Next Sunday morning Dr. Bonnell will preach the first in a series of sermons entitled "Our Protestant Heritage." The leaflet which will be found in the pews and lobbies of the Church explains the details of the series. The first sermon, "Is Protestantism 'Bankrupt'?" will contain an evaluation of the recent statement issued by a group of Episcopal clergymen with regard to the present condition of the Protestant Church.

There will be no meeting of the Young People's Association this

The Missionary Department of The Woman's Association announces with much pleasure that Miss Lillian A. Wells, of Yamaguchi, Japan, long associated with this Church, will be the speaker at the meeting on Tuesday, April 14th, at eleven o'clock. Miss Wells writes she has been looking forward to "hanging upon the honorable eyes" of the members of The Woman's Association, this being a translation of a polite Japanese expression meaning that she will soon see us in person.

On Wednesday night, April 15th, at 8:30, the series of Bible Studies on "St. Paul and the Primitive Church" will be continued under the leadership of Dr. Bonnell with a consideration of the topic "Paul Before Felix and Agrippa." Preceding the Bible Study, there will be the usual Church Night Supper at 6:15, for which reservations may be made until Tuesday at 5. At 7:15 the Women's Club will present a musical programme featuring Mrs. Sloan, and Mr. Kolarik of the John Hall Memorial. Miss Catherine Wilson will accompany Mr. Kolarik.

On Friday evening, April 17th, at 8:15 o'clock, the Young People's Association will present two one-act plays, "They're None of Them Perfect," by Sophie Kerr. and "Out of the Darkness," by Robert E. Farndon. A silver offering will be taken for the benefit of John Hall Memorial. Miss Kerr's play is a delightful comedy written originally for production by the Cosmopolitan Club of New York. "Out of the Darkness" carries a strong spiritual message appropriate to the Easter Season.

AH Father, Who didst bring again from the dead our Lord Jesus, that great Shepherd of the sheep; grant unto us that we may rise with Him from the death which sin hath brought into the world, and attain unto His resurrection in all patience of hope and brightness of spirit. As we have felt the power of His love in the depths, so may we feel it on the heights. Thus may we journey ever in His fellowship until, with all saints, we stand before His presence in the light eternal. Amen. John Kelman HEARKEN unto me ye that know righteousness. Alleluia! Lift up your eyes unto the heavens and look upon the earth beneath; for the heavens shall vanish away like smoke and the earth wax old as a garment, but my salvation shall be forever and aye.

Lo, this is our God; we have waited for Him. He will save us; now we will be glad and rejoice in our salvation.

O' death, where is thy sting? Death is swallowed up in victory.

Thanks be to God, which giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ.

PSALM 2

Colurin

Why do the heathen rage, and the peoples imagine a vain thing?

> The kings of the earth set themselves, and the rulers take counsel together, against the Lord, and against his anointed, Saying, Let us break their bands asunder, and cast away their cords from us.

> He that sitteth in the heavens will laugh: the Lord will have them in derision.

Then will he speak unto them in his wrath, and vex them in his sore displeasure.

> Yet have I set my king upon my holy hill of Zion.

I will declare the decree: the Lord hath said unto me, Thou art my son; this day have I begotten thee.

Ask of me, and I will give thee the nations for thine inheritance, and the uttermost parts of the earth for thy possession.

Thou shalt break them with a rod of iron:

Thou shalt dash them in pieces like a potter's vessel.

Be wise now therefore, O ye kings; be instructed, ye judges of the earth.

> Serve the Lord with fear, and rejoice with trembling.

Kiss the son, lest he be angry, and ye perish in the way, when his wrath is kindled but a little.

Blessed are all they that put their trust in him.

THE DAY NEW-BORN

Mattheres

A MYSTIC HUSH, a day new-born,
A trembling, flushed and wondering morn!
When long ago amid shadows drear,
Sad hearts awoke to hope and fear,
As passed the word that whispering said:
"Lo, Christ is risen from the dead!"

From lip to lip the tidings flew.

From heart to heart the gladness grew,
From east to west the message spread.
Till, like a deepening light it spread,
And passing doubt caught up the strain.

"Aye Christ the Lord is risen again."

And now, behold, to all the world
A banner borne aloft unfurled:
That message floats over land and sea.
Its tidings ringing, glad and free,
Till earth's great heart repeats the lay.

"Aye Christ the Lord is risen today."
Alleluia!

History of the Play

"A Midsummer Night's Dream" was first produced in Shakespeare's Globe Theatre about the years 1593-1595, according to the most widely accepted opinion.

However, certain scholars place the date as early as 1590, since they believe the play was written to celebrate the marriage of the Earl of Essex to the widow of Sir Philip Sidney, which took place in that year.

There is another unauthentic tradition that it was written in 1598 to mark the wedding of the Earl of Southampton to Elizabeth Vernon. Still another group declares it was intended as a tribute to Queen Elizabeth.

Because of the opportunities it offers for spectacular presentation, its various productions through the ensuing centuries have been innumerable, and its leading roles have been interpreted by the most famous Shakespearian players of all ages. First rendered by a cast consisting exclusively of male performers and entirely without scenery, its presentations have steadily increased in richness, culminating in Max Reinhardt's brilliant outdoor productions.

And now on the infinite stage of the screen, Shakespeare and Reinhardt at last find unlimited scope for the complete expression of their imaginative genius.

The Ballets

Two remarkable ballets feature the motion picture production of "A Midsummer Night's Dream."

The first interprets the Scherzo in a striking spectacle showing the forest awakening. The fairy world is at play, and Titania, its queen, dances down a moonbeam to join in the merry-making. The appearance of Oberon, King of the Fairies, casts a pall over his creatures and ends their merriment.

The second, the "Nocturnal", set to the music of the Nocturne, tells the story of the creatures of the wood who are happy only in the moonlight and wage war against the approach of darkness. The lovers are asleep in the wood when Puck appears, heralding the departure of the moonlight. Across the meadows comes the chariot of Oberon, and close to him are countless elves, fairies and night creatures.

Suddenly there appears a startling, iridescent creature. She dances wildly, finally taking refuge beside Titania. Then Darkness itself, an awesome creature, emerges from the wood and woos the dancer. She tries to flee, but he throws his veil over her, and she is forced to succumb. The fearsome being lifts her high and she is swallowed up in the blackness of night.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her uncle, Mr. Tom Hamm, wore a smartly tailored suit of brown gabardine, with a white blouse and brown accessories. Her trim little hat was subtly veiled, and she wore a gardenia corsage.

She was attended by Miss Pauline and Hedrick, bridesmaid, and Mrs. John W. Peavy Jr., matron of honor. Miss Hedrick is home for the Spring on vacation from Briarcliff on the Hudson. Both girls wore lace frocks made on semi-tailored lines, Miss Hedrick's being of violet blue, and Mrs. Peavy's of maize yellow. Both girls wore harmonizing brimmed hats of cellophane straw trimmed with pastel-tinted flowers, and each carried an arm bouquet of variegated Spring blossoms.

Immediately after the wedding the young couple left for San Antonio, Corpus Christi and other cities in South Texas, from where they will return here to be temporarily at home at 6208 Pershing Avenue.

Out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. T. A. Thurmond of Ardmore, Okla., and Mr. L. H. Love, also of Ardmore.

miss Margaret Phelan sang the pre-nuptial solo, "At Dawning," accompanied by Miss Jeannette Hicks, who played the wedding march from "Lohengrin" as the bridal party entered.

The bridegroom and his best man, Dr. Harold Thornton of Trinity, awaited the bride at the altar, where the ceremony was read by Rev. Kermit T. Melugin.

Mrs. Paul McCamey of Kilgore, bridesmaid, and Mrs. Eugene Mays of Houston, sister of the bride and matron of honor, wore identical frocks of periwinkle chiffon with M shirtwaist blouses and redingote Mrs. They both carried bouquets of pastel shaded roses and sweet peas.

The bride, entering with her father, wore a sheath-like gown of white satin, with long, fitted sleeves and a deep train. Its only ornament was a triangular pearl clip at the throat. Her veil of bridal illusion and Chantilly lace fell from a regal headdress of the lace. She carried a bouquet of liles of the valley and white orchids.

Valley lilies engircled the cake, which rested on a reflector and centered the refreshment table at the reception after the wedding. On the buffet was a mound of rainbow hued blossoms, and throughout the house white candles burned. Silver holders held the candles in the dining room.

Love-Pemberton Wedding April 4

Announcement of the approaching marriage of Miss Mary Eleanor Love to Mr. Henry Lyle Pemberton Jr., April 4, was made yesterday when Mrs. C. N. Williamson entertained at her home on Fifth Avenue with a luncheon.

Miss Love is the daughter of Mrs. James Love of Penn Street and Mr. Pemberton is the son of Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Pemberton, 5208 Pershing Avenue.

Miss Pauline Hedrick and Mrs. John W. Peavy Jr. will be Miss Love's attendants in the wedding, at First Presbyterian Church. Mr. Henry Trigg Jr. will be best man.

Places were laid for 16 girls at the luncheon, where the lace-laid table was centered by white stock flanked by white tapers in crystal candelabra. The bride-elect's place was marked by a gift of lingerie.

Mrs. H. W. Williams and her daughter, Miss Maidee Williams, will have a luncheon today for Miss Love, and other prenuptial parties are being planned.

Surprise Shower Is Given Miss Love

A surprise miscellaneous shower was given Wednesday afternoon in honor of Miss Mary Eleanor Love, bride-elect of Mr. Henry Lyle Pemberton Jr., at a meeting of Miss Love's bridge club at which Mmes. Jessie J. Walden, Edgar Deen and Gerald Kearney of Monroe, La., were hostesses at the home of Mrs. Kearney's mother, Mrs. Frank M. Greene, 2726 Fifth Avenue.

After the bridge games friends of the honoree called for tea, which was served from a table centered with a bowl of white Spring blossoms, laid with a lace cloth and appointed with silver. White tapers burning in silver holders flanked the centerpiece.

Mrs. James Love, mother of the bride-elect, and Mrs. H. L. Pemberton, mother of the groom-elect, were among the 20 guests who called for tea.

Misses Carol Jane Greene and Pauline Hedrick in Briarcliff Celebration.

Miss Carol Jane Greene, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis A. Greene of River Crest, and Miss Pauline Hedrick, daughter of Mrs. Philip Kay French of River Crest, took part last week in the May pole dance at a May Day celebration at Briarcliff Junior College.

The celebration included the traditional crowning of the May queen, baseball and tennis games, a tea in the art studio where work done this year by the girls was exhibited; a buffet supper and the singing of old English songs and ballads.

Student Body Picks Kay Forbes For 1936 Queen

Perhaps one of the loveliest of all functions at Briarcliff is the traditional May Day Procession.

The queen and her attendants are chosen by the student body, and the final results are kept secret until the day of the procession. The queen must be chosen from the senior class; the attendants, however, may be selected from the entire school.

This year the girl who was selected as queen was Kay Forbes. Her attendants were Alice Jane Meyer, Marilyn Stillman, Ann Reinholdt, Kay Sucher, Jean Rossiter and Angela McCosker.

The Procession starts from Main Hall, goes out the center door into the front court, and then around by the drive to the North Green, where the May Pole stands, and where the queen is to be crowned.

This year five year old Dickie Grace, Mary Louise Fox's brother, crowned the queen. Dickie was awed when told of the honor which was to be bestowed upon him, and the first question which he asked was: "Is she real and alive?"

Aside from the queen and her attendants there were other functions which take place during the afternoon and evening. There were various athletic meets in which the Junior & Senior Classes vied for honors. The entire morning was given over to baseball and tennis. The early afternoon found the dancing class participating in a May Pole dance which was held in the North Green.

After the coronation of the queen an art exhibit was held in the art studio, consisting of paintings and drawings of all kinds which the art students have done throughout the year. During the exhibit tea was served in the studio and in Main Hall.

In the evening there was a concert given by the Glee Club under the di rection of Miss Allen, with Miss Ford as accompanist, assisted by Marion Phillips. The last event of the day was a dance recital. Miss Schon-

May Queen

KAY FORBES

This year the girl chosen to fill the traditional post of Queen of the May is Kay Forbes. Known for her enterprise, and for her neatness and smartness in dress, Kay is a member of that organization that signifies charm at Briarcliff....Lawn Tea.

Another of Kay's gifts is that of poise; we've heard it remarked on by a greatly impressed young man. She's in the Glee Club, too.

Lest this sound too perfect we hasten to add that she is very human. She is not un-fond of sleeping (a typical Briarcliff trait), and since she and Kenzie "break each other of their bad habits", why there must be some bad habits there of which to break her. You will have to tell us about them, though, because we just don't know of any more. Altogether we think Briarcliff made a good choice in its May Queen.

A COUPLE OF MAY DATES

May 9th - Senior Prom. May 10th - Mother's Day. At Briarcliff On April 17th

"The Cradle Song", a play in two acts with the interlude in verse, by G. Martinez Sierra, was presented by the Theater Arts group of Briarcliff, Friday, April 17.

Produced by special arrangement with Samuel French of New York, and under the able direction of Deane Taylor, it will no doubt go down in history as one of the college's finest productions. Assisting Miss Taylor were Miss Lillian Fincher, the Prep School Sewing Class and the Art Department.

The first scene and act depicted a room opening on the cloister of a ocnvent of Enclosed Dominican Nuns, and the second, a parlor in the same convent eighteen years later. 'The scenery in both acts appeared real enough to have actually been "borrowed" from a convent.

Each actress had her part thoroughly learned and completely at her command as a result of several weeks of "Hard Labor", and this lent a great deal to the smoothness and quick tempo of the production. There was a professional touch to the acting of the entire cast, and real tears were provoked at various

The first act showed the life of the Convent nuns, with motherly Sallie Roberts, as their Prioress, exerting every effort to keep peace among mischievous Sister Marcella, eccentric Sister Inez and the pious Vicaress. The arrival of the door-step baby terminated act one.

During the intermission Edith Stephens recited with deep feeling the poetic interlude written by Si-

Act two, supposedly being eighteen years later, showed the nuns as older women and the baby Teresa as a radiant beauty, preparing for marriage.

'The dramatic scenes with Teresa and her chosen mother, Sister Joanna of the Cross, touched the very hearts of the audience, whose hearty applause fairly rocked the gymnasium as the curtains closed.

A great deal of credit for the success of the play should be given to

PERK'S EYE VIEW of the News

Birthday Party at Rome

Legend has it that exactly 2,689 years ago last Tuesday, on the festival of the shepherd goddess Pales, Romulus, a martial man, marked out the site of Rome. Last week the Italians celebrated this historic real estate project with the promise of Ethiopia as a birthday present. Pietro Badoglio, supreme commander of the forces in Ethiopia, is pressing downupon Addis Ababa and triumph seems not to be very far away.

There was plenty of reason for rejoicing along the Tiber. Only the day before the League of Nations had once more adopted a policy of delay in applying stronger coercive measures against Italy. The news from the front was increasingly optimistic. And as a demonstration of the strength of his Fascist regime Preier Mussolini was inaugurating a new series of public work projects, carrying out his program of re-establishing his capital in the glory of the Caesars. Ever try boondoggling, Benito?

Youth and the Peace Movement

On Wednesday peace meetings were held in school and colleges throughout the land. Most of them were peaceful, although at Temple University, Philadelphia, the proceedings were interrupted from time to time by enthusiasts whose ardor for World Peace resulted in barrages of tomatoes and flour. At Kansas University, Lawrence, Kan. a tear-gas bomb exploded and there was a free-for-all fight; tsk, tsk.

In many institutions the authorities dismissed classes and sponsored official meetings, thus making unnecessary organized student strikes which had been planned.

A meeting at Princeton heard a message from Dr. Albert Einstein, in which he said it was "the duty of enlightened youth to combat the politics of national egotism." At Columbia 200 members of William Randolph Hearst Post No. 1, Veterans of Future Wars (an organization which is satirically agitating for an immediate bonus for the fighters in conflicts to come), paraded behind a band, the leader of which used a crutch for a baton.

Contrary to expectations, there was no widespread show of feeling between the peace demonstrators and students who are taking R.O.T.C. courses in schools and colleges. At present 140,000 young men are receiving such military training at 250 institutions; the R.O.T.C. produces annually 6,500 second lieutenants, about half of whom retain their commissions after five years.

At Last Social Security

The Social Security Act became law he had used by last Aug. 14, but Congress, racing for 435,000 miles.

Elections

Elections have been flying thick and fast around Briarcliff this past week. Everyone has been interested, and subtle campaigning reached a new high. There were many harrassed voters, as all nominees were so eligible that decision as to voting was difficult.

The Junior College Council held the first election, and perhaps the most important one. Nominees for next year's Council were Mary Lou Allen, Julia Constable, Jean Mary Love, Kay Sucher, Rosemary Titus and Peggy Vachon. Jean Mary Love Kay Sucher and Rosemary Titus were elected and given seats on the Council bench the night of April 23rd. Ginger Parish was elected by the Preparatory School as its next year's member of the Junior College Council.

The W. A. A. held an election for president, and the nominees were Bebo Morrison, Sally Heedy and Mary Lou Fox. Mary Lou Fox was elected president.

Dramat made its annual tour in the dark of Thursday night, April 23, and selected as new mmebers Mary Lou Allen, Sally Holt, Sis Herman, Jackie Monro, Lee de Chadenedes, Laura Braden, Mary Streitz; Mile. Arnaud, Miss Taylor, Hendietta Craig and Ann Reinholdt. As part of their initiation they were forced to entertain the dining room by singing songs and giving imitations, much to the enjoyment of the student-body.

adjournment against a filibuster by the late Huey Long, failed to appropriate money for it to function. Until February the Social Security Board borrowed its employees and its furniture from other bureaus. Its first appropriation came that month.

Since then the board has helped ten states (at a cost of $350,513) in the administration of unemployment compensation laws covering 6,000,000 workers, 40 per cent of the number eligible in the entire country. In February and March it contributed more than $5,000,000 to match state funds in twenty-nine states which have approved old age assistance plans; $700,000 to help seventeen states care for 100,000 dependent children, and $421,000 for the needy blind in eighteen states.

Wear and Tear

How much shoe-leather does a postman wear out in his daily walk? Figures bearing on the subject were given out last week by George Linn of Mount Vernon, N. Y., who said on the completion of thirty years of service that he had used up 363 pairs of shoes. Christian Runge of New Rochelle, also completing thirty years, didn't know how many shoes he had used but said he had covered 435,000 miles.

Hawes Speaks On Russia; Russia Is Clothes-Conscious

Miss Elizabeth Hawes, one of America's foremost dress designers, and head of the course in Costume Design at Briarcliff, spoke in the Briarcliff forum on Wednesday evening, April 2. Her subject was her trip to Russia in the summer of 1935.

"Anyone who goes to Russia", said Miss Hawes, "has a certain opinion already formed, and comes out with the same opinion. I happened to thing the trip would be interesting so I found it so". She went only to Leningrad and Moscow, and frankly admitted that she knew little about the rest of Russia.

Although Miss Hawes took an extensive wardrobe with her and planned to show her clothes in Russia, this was not the original purpose of the trip. She had already planned to go when a friend suggested that she take the clothes. It proved to be a good suggestion, and the five designers of the "Design Atelier" in Moscow were both interested and amazed at the clothse, as were the other Russians who saw them. Most of the people who attended her exhibition had been of the lower class before the Revolution and were not used to beautiful clothes. They liked a white pique negligee best of all, although they did not seem to have a clear conception of its use.

Miss Hawes did not sell any of her clothes, but she allowed them to be photographed. In this way the Russians acquired some of the world's very newest ideas in style.

The most interesting subject to Miss Hawes was the progress dress designing is making in Russia at the present time. Until about two years ago, all the designing was done in factories, but recently the "Design Atelier" has begun to function. The aim of the five designers in it is to suit the needs of the Russian people. They admire American and French clothes, but do not think they are good for them to use.

'The chief trouble concerning clothes in Russia now, according to Miss Hawes, is that although there is money enough to provide the people with good clothes, the supply is not equal to the demand. The department stores do not carry enough clothes to supply the population, factories are not able to turn out enough, and there are all too few designers. Matters are improving with time, however, and Russia is at last becoming "clothes conscious" as a nation.

"I told you I didn't want to come to this masquerade. I never saw such snobs. I'm having a terrible time!"

"Put on your mask."

WHO GOES WHERE

Last Saturday, as usual, New York was the great happy hunting grounds and the majority of Briarcliffians yawned their way on the 8:21 train. Some of the sleepiest were: Barbara Phillips, Janet Haverstick, Edie Brown; Jerre Kling, Lois Perkins, Mary Steitz, and Helen Ciluzzi.

Divvy Lange met Carl, per usual, and that gay twosome wended its way to White Beeches Country Club in Jersey.

Allie Meyer and Sallie Werk went to the Rainbow Room with two Yale Men. (three cheers for Briarcliff!)

Nannie Bond seems to be commuting to Virginia. Last week she went to the U. of Va., and this week it was Hampden Sydney. Tch, tch! We're pretty sure you didn't go all that way just for Southern fried chicken, Nannie. What was the reason?

Mary Lou Allen, Kay Sucher, Jerry Brauer and Teen Diebold spent the week-end down at Lehigh. We understand it was well worth giving up almost the last of the few precious remaining nights which are left.

Strange as it seems, Sally Heedy met Bill. Yes, really. There's no use telling you that Sally had a WONderful time.

Peggy Vachon took a prom cut. You know, one of those things that eats up your nights just like THAT. However, Peggy tells us that if she had it to do over again, she'd take the old prom cut, and to heck with the nights.

Lou Fox went to a birthday party which was given for her mother. Dinner, theatre, and all the trimmin's.

Mary Armstrong and her date went to a very fine cocktail party. We don't suppose that the cocktails had anything to do with it, but Mary said that it was a very gay affair.

Marilyn Wetherby went home with Pauline Robertson where a "good time was had by all".

Another "visitor", was Dotty Koken, who spent the week-end with Molly Kelly.

Of course we're all just a tiny bit jealous of Nancy (Vancy, to you) Langfitt. We've heard all about the LAW of averages, but after all, there's a limit, and we hardly think that Nance has such a claim to ALL the good times. Why, this is the third consecutive week-end that Nancy has spent with friends (?) in West-chester. Let's see, what is the name of the town? Oh Yes, Briarcliff. We understand that she was invietd to visit the Briarcliff Jr. College. The invitation was extended by the Student Council, and was under the heading of "CAMPUSED". Never mind Nance, think of all the mischief you kept out of, and the money you saved.

Spring Fashions

Everyone knows that no wardrobe is complete without a print dress. Print's this season are beautiful. Some are sportively flowered, others flaunt geometrical designs. Dots are good again this year, and dashes, curlicues and other figures on soft crepe are all smart. A good-looking print dress we've seen is of pale blue crepe with a small white figure. The entire dress is box pleated. Tucks front and back keep the pleats flat until they are released on skirt and cap sleeves.

For evenings when you are never sure as to where or what type places you may be going you'll wear a fashion that is newer than the dinner suit — the formal evening with its own jacket. You'd never guess that a tailored printed taffeta jacket could disguise the most dressed-up of evening costumes — a yellow taffeta robe-de-style — so completely obsolete is the idea of a separate jacket.

Suits have never before been so universal - or versatile - as they are this spring. Smart girls are wearing them for all hours of the day. In wool, either checked or plain, for shopping and school. In silks, either printed or plain, for luncheon or tea. And suits for dinner and the theater are headline news. Navy blue is the perennial spring color. A brighter blue is coming to the fore and green looks fresh and gay. Gray and carrot color are outstanding either alone or in combination - in fact, a gray suit with carrot color accessories will mark you as agaloftaste and discrimination.

The new — the 1936 shirtwaist-dress goes in for a tucked vest and a group of pleats in the front of the skirt; capes of any length, width, or swish are all for the best; short boxy coats, especially good in white linen; no end of ruffles at your neck; broad shoulders and full sleeves; bolero frocks of cotton with bright buttons; white tailored dinner coats and printed afternoon ones; hats that either turn up, dip down, or sit on the back of the head with as many bows, veils, and flowers on them as you wish.

Ginnie McKnight spent Saturday night in New York, as did Mary Reichardt.

Jean Mary Love and Ann Whicher er thrust discretion to the winds too, and took a prom cut. They went to Boston and "had Fun".

Bebo Morrison and Jean Morse went up to Vassar Saturday. They had a wonderful time seeing friends, they said, but loyalty to Briarcliff, prompted them to 'fess up and say that they were awfully glad to get back.

Until the next batch of news, au revoir.

Gossip Column

Kiddy cars — skates — tricycles — icycles. Oh yes, bicycles — bicycles, that's it. "Everybody's doin' it", started with Pemberton, Hogsett; Wetherby, Titus and Canary.

"Came from White Plains with aches and pains

Now everybody's cycling;

They had to have something new A sport to do up here in Briarcliff

Those five started cycling; Wasn't long before the news got round

Feet left the ground, a-started peddlin'

Sorry — But we're in the mood and no wonder we get lyrical about a good old by-sickal.

E-noughhhhh — Eeeeeenough — nuff, nuff, nuff. Seriously though; its a wonderful sport with Sylph likeness as a guaranteed outcome.

But do Briarcliff kiddies ever do things half way? No and though icy blasts still blow, now that the sun rays strike the swimming pool roof and the latter is a bevy of basking babes. The Florida and Bermuda tans are still the envy, but a few of these ardent sunning souls are beginning to get a bit ipnk around the gills....Salutations one and all.

Now about week-ends and sech. Betty Vose I guess painted the town red the week-end of the eighteenth. Rainbow Room and the like. Certainly had a good time with Paul from all accounts....But what is this we hear about her running in to Jeannie Morse and her Williams "Newt"? They also were in the Rainbow Room, and it seems a magician there chose Newt for a victim, and then to Jeannie's surprise he chagrined her a bit by pulling cnickens and the like from her escort's pocket.

This same week-end seemed to have temporarally upset our Singin' Sal a might, but surely nothing could really happen between her and that Bird-Bov.

Anlo had a date the other night and what did happen but the poor lad chose an unfortunate chair in the lounge. You see he was sitting directly in front of a door into the lounge and several tittering lasses walked back and forth in hopes of getting a better look (should we say "gander"?) at him.

After much lamenting and the like the seniors have at last chosen their dresses for graduation. But now its all decided and the fittings have been made. The under classmen are all anxious to see them but when we stop to think that it means this year is over and next year the girls wearing them won't be back...well it just kind of takes the glory out of the dresses.

Briarcliff Junior College Com-munity Constitution! Sounds pretty impressive and awe-inspiring don't you think? We think it's one of the best things that any group of girls has done for Briarcliff so far, and on the part of that particular comaside from it's being no easy task mittee, every girl here in the school can feel that she too had a definite part in forming it. The Constitution committee has tried and succeeded miraculously in making this document a valuable one which covers every phase of student community life from Proms to Press notices, and, most important of all, which endeavors to voice the desires as well as fill the needs of all those whom it concerns.

The Briarcliff Constitution is not just a temporary thing destined to be forgotten within a year. It should and must be the basis of community life at Briarcliff, not only now but more so in the future when it has become thoroughly established as such. It must be carefully guarded by the students as their essential right, and we feel that it will come to be looked upon as the strongest and most responsible instrument for reform and for the maintenance of a recognized standard in the school.

Every student as well as every student organization is represented in the Constitution, and every girl should feel that it is a thing of which she herself is a vital part.

We congratulate you, Constitution Committee! L. A. P.

Once again the Briar Crier comes to you for aid, and we come with the sure knowledge that you will help us as you have before. We hope that it is not as old debtors that we come however, and that we have repaid in some measure your grand help of other times.

The Briar Crier needs money again; not very much, but without your help we will be unable to get even that little, so will you all please show us your generous patience once more by patronising those activities which are being held to support us? We mean the Ping Pong tournament, the Bridge games (with prizes) in the Lounge, and the coming raffles? We're de-

Then War Will Cease .

The whole block at Fifth Avenue and Forty-third Street was filled with them. They swarmed round and round carrying their signs and standards and shouting: "Fight against war and Fascism!" — "Down with Japanese war planes!" — "War is Hell - fight against Hell!"

I wanted to ask them: "How are you going to fight against war?" -Would they have known? Wouldn't each have had a solution opposed to the solutions of the other?"

We can't do anything when our ideas of prevention are in utter opposition to each other, when all nations are involved with one another, when various business concerns profit both from war and conditions leading to war, when propaganda lies are allowed to be spread through news and other devices.

Some say: "Disarm; without equipment there won't be any urge to fight" — The theory sounds good but —England was poorly equipped for the World War, yet she dashed in headlong. We tried this theory out in 1922; we scrapped nearly $200,-000,000 worth of brand new battleships, telling the nations we wanted to lay down our arms and inviting them to do likewise. A few accepted the invitation, but even these backed out after a time. Disarmament is useless - only a few countries will disarm, and we grow concerned over the rest. Then comes the theory: "Build your defense so great that other countries will be afraid to fight," and we spend millions to arm again. Every other country has the same idea, with each trying to out-do the other; it comes to an armament race, with increasing expense.

What is worse is that much of that money goes for the same types of weapons we used in the last war, and these will be obsolete, practically useless in a future war which will employ new devices - just as the Great War antedated former war equipment. If we are to spend on war equipment, let us spend on equipment that is useful in peace also artillery, battleships, are of little use in peace. But airplanse, (and it is often said that the next war will be an air war) can be used for rescue work, fighting forest fires, killing farm pests, exploring and scientific work. Merchant Marines will make us less dependent on other nations for the transport of our goods. We are spending a part of our armament money on these, to be sure, but not a large enough part.

As long as Humanity believes war gives it more than it had before. gives it more power, we can never get rid of war. And as long as the common people readily go to war to escape their economic insecurity, miserable living conditions, monotony of pending on you all, and thanks a le work, and universal feeling of hope-

Easter Memories

Easter memories! Ah, sweet Easter memories! And what do our Briarcliff nifties remember about Easter? (not much probably) Uppermost in some of our minds are the bitter memories of getting up with the roosters, (This is Ye Olde Briarcliffe Farm, children) so that we could get into New York, or elsewhere, for church like good little girls. We also remember, with chagrin, the winter blasts that hit us as we stepped from the station on what should have been a spring morning with the sun a-shining, the flowers a-blooming, the birds a-twit tering in the trees. Then, how can we forget the sinking sensation in our "tums" as we paraded down that endless line in front of church just knowing that we had fatal "runs" in our best sheer stockings! And of course, we remember seeing all the brow-lifting "get-ups" on Fifth Ave. in the Easter parade. (My deah, did you see that woman? Why she had on!) We still haven't gotten over the fun of seeing the gentlemen in their chapeaux haut de forme. (In our very best French.) And will we ever recover from spending our last dimes for gardenias - just to have that "Easter touch". Of course, some of us (sad to say, not all of us) remember getting lovely corsages of beautiful spring flowers, and bountiful boxes of candy from various young gentlemen who seemed to think that Spring had come. Then those of us who remained at school will never forget the noticeable number of vacancies at dinner on said day. But what we remember most of all is that when it was all over, everybody went to bed-just like any other Sunday.

lessness, we can never hope to have lasting peace. For though "men denounce war rationally, psychologically they like war. — For the mass of men it means many precious things: romance to the miserable, action to the inhibited, power to the impotent, reward to the unnoticed. At present millions are unemployed, Nationalism rises like a fever, and wages are low, men are desperate. In a dozen countries troops are marching. We have perfected no palliatives for the ills of peace, and the horde of embittered and desperate is an army in the making, ready to acclaim a "Man on Horseback." society can make peace rich and emotionally significant, not for few, but for all, and when all realize it so distinctly that they never forget it. even when confronted with intense disturbing situations - then war will cease.

Prep Affairs

We are happy to announce that Ginger Parish has been elected Prep School Representative for the Student Council of next year. She has so many good qualities that point to fine leadership that with cooperation from the rest, we know she will have a very successful year. Congratulations, Ginger!

Easter week-end was varied for everyone. Henny Craig took it off and visited June Wagner, her roommate at Briarcliff last year. Forest Hills provided a good time of dancing, dining, and other entertainment.

That same Easter Sunday Betzi Stillman, Lee de Chadenedes and Ginger Parish were at their homes in New York City. Sue Harding visited there. Sis Hermann visited Lorraine Walker at her home in Brooklyn, and Sallie Roberts spent the day with Edith Stephens in Scarsdale.

We're sorry that real illness prevented Jackie Munro and Catchy Childs from returning that fateful Tuesday, but we got a good look at them and exchanged vacation anecdotes Sunday night.

Lee and Ginger, having spent two weekks at Miami Beach, Florida, have an exasperating head start on the rest as far as a sun tan is concerned. However, with a few classes outdoors (we can really think much better in the open air) and free periods spent in haunting the swimming pool roof and courting Old Sol .. well, it won't be long. Plenty of oil smoothed on your skin and then frequent sprinklings of salt water while you glory in the sun encourage a sparkling red burn that turns to tan quickly. It's painless, (well, almost)

Seniors elected poetry for English spring term, and it's here....the birds, flowers...and even some forced inspirations, for they write sonnets and songs and ballads. But perhaps it won't last long, because the results aren't too encouraging.

Our full number at graduation will be nine....we just have to graduate, but wouldn't it be awful to have a conterfeit diploma! Sis Hermann forgot to order hers, and it took two months to get the others. But a desperate request may speed up the regular slowness.

First Day In Bermuda

Up at the sound of the bugle, packing, eating breakfast, getting tickets O. K'ed. — "Now let's go to the sun deck and see what Bermuda looks like."

Water glistening so you can't look at it long — clouds bright with whiteness — rich olive green islands with shining white roofs showing through — speed-boats rushing out to greet us — sailboats coming along under a jaunty breeze, their oppupants laughing, yelling, all sunbronzed and gayly outfitted — everything alive with sun.

Pushing, crowding, waiting impatiently — swarming down the gangplank. Still no sign of your suitcases — oh yes, here is one under Q instead of H — here's the other in the middle of the platform — the custom's officer has checked them now, we're on our way to the hotel.

Carriages, bicycles milling around — all the buildings white or pink — no bill boards, no automobiles.

The hotel massed with college youths and girls and suitcases.

A room tiny, white and clean with high ceiling and a window looking out to the sea.

Waiting, waiting, waiting for lunch—"The Queen didn't sail when scheduled; the hotel is overcrowded; we're very sorry you'll have to wait a little."— lunch at length.

Clothes strewn about while unpacking — bathing suits donned and culottes worn over — and then down to the bicycle store.

"T'll take a man's then." —it's way too high — sounds of mirth as your legs swing wildly, unable to touch both the peddles at once — finally the lost art regained, we're on our way (on the right side of the street)
police.

Over cobble-stones, in and out among carriages, past little houses of pink, light blue, cream and white—along a turquoise ocean for a way—between cliffs of gray, moss covered coral—by fields of willow-green and rich deep brown earth—hibiscus, bogenvelia, lilies in profusion—bright red cardinals, pink and blue birds and other birds you do not know—little brown children with big round eyes and gleeful faces—everybody smiling, singing and cordial—"The beach at last!"

The sand different than that on beaches elsewhere, a little moist and cool, and a creamy color — the ocean chill, but swimming circulates the blood — eyes squinting with salt, when we emerge — lying in the sun for the rest of our first day in Bermuda.

Play Review

"Idiot's Delight", starring Lynn Fontanne and Alfred Lunt, (in reality Mr. and Mrs. Lunt) is a charming play written by Robert Sherwood.

As is to be expected the acting of both the Lunts is superb and finished. However, Mr. Lunt surprises the audience by actually doing a "swing" dance with a group of blonde chorines. The dance is not exactly reminiscent of Fred Astaire or Clifton Webb, but it is very amusing and certainly unexpected.

The action of the play takes place in the Alps, where Mr. Lunt and his six beauties are stranded, as all vices are temporarily disregarded due to an impending war. Miss Fontanne arrives at the same hotel with a munitions manufacturer who is greatly responsible for the war.

The dialogue, composed of brilliant repartee and speeches which "strike home" in regard to the war which we all feel may break out at any time, is excellent.

The sets and costumes are very well done, and the supporting cast is well chosen. Perhaps the most striking part of the entire show is the action which takes place during the last few minutes before the final curtain. The scene is the lobby of the hotel, planes are dropping bombs which are shattering glass and destroying homes, and throughout this spectacle Mr. Lunt and Miss Fontanne carry on a conversation which holds the audience spellbound, and once again "brings home" the cruelty and futility of war.

The play is one which seems to appeal to the typical New York audience, which is very hard to please. The topic, however, is one which is not likely to appeal to the war advocate.

Undoubtedly one of the cleverest parts of the play is the "screened" and interesting way in which the author has shown the audience the terrors and stupidity of war. It might almost be classed as first rate "peace" propaganda".

In all events, "Idiot's Delight" is well worth seeing.

Miss Carol Jane Greene, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis A. Greene of River Crest, and Miss Pauline Hedrick, daughter of Mrs. Philip Kay French of River Crest, took part last week in the May pole dance at a May Day celebration at Briarcliff Junior College.

Both girls are members of the freshman class at Briarcliff.

The celebration included the traditional crowning of the May queen, baseball and tennis games, a tea in the art studio where work done this year by the girls was exhibited; a buffet supper and the singing of old English songs and ballads.

COUNCIL TO SPONSOR FRAT REVI CHAMPIONSHIP TILT WILL BE PLAYED SUNDAY

COMMITTEE DECIDES PHI DELTA—KAPPA PHI GAME MUST BE PLAYED OVER

No Decision About Second Round of Baseball League

Picking the winners in the I. F. C. soft ball league is not supposed to be a difficult job, however, in the past month of play there has been what might be called a near upset, and one decided upset; Alpha Omega taking a leading part in both games. On the first occasion the A. O.'s would have downed the Kappa Phi's had it not been for the fact that the weak end of their batting order arrived at the plate in the last half of the seventh inning. Kappa Phi finally won the game 9 to 7. The Alpha-Omega-Phi Delta game was the upset, the Black and White taking the much touted Phi Delts to the tune of 3 to 2.

Only one game was played October 20th, the Phi Delta-Kappa Phi Omega; and a hot game it was. The final score of 4 to 3 in favor of Phi Delta was protested by Kappa Phi. The Council has decided that the game will be played over. In the event the Phi Delta team wins this game the season will end in a tie for first place; that is if the leaders continue to win thru the final scheduled games against Delta Sigma and Kappa Alpha Pi.

Doyle Goodwin Elected Frat Council President

In a long deferred annual election of officers, the Inter-Fraternity Council elected Doyle Goodwin, past president of Phi Delta and retiring Council treasurer, to succeed Edwin Phillips as its President for the coming year. Held several weeks ago on Thursday night, September 19, the election was somewhat reminiscent of past political fights, being deadlocked at several points, but Council delegates announced that they were generally well satisfied with results.

The hottest issue of the election centered about the Vice Presidency, when after almost an hour of debate, the I. F. C. broke the deadlock in a surprise move by re-electing Bill Hornbeak, who had previously announced that he would not be eligible for the position. Hornbeak, who was also the retiring membership secretary, thus became the only council delegate ever to be elected to every council office.

REHEARSALS ARE UNDER WAY UNDER DIRECTION OF MARY HAGMAN

Annual Revue and Style Show Will Be Held November 27th

The announcement was made last week that the Inter-Fraternity Council would sponsor the All-Fraternity Revue and Style Show, which has been given by the Alpha Omega fraternity the past three years. The Revue will be held at the W. C. Stripling High School Auditorium, Wednesday evening, November 27th.

Rehearsals of the chorus, which has been doubled in size, have been under way for several weeks, under the direction of Mary Hagman, Fort Worth, Mineral Wells, and Weatherford dancing Hollywood, where she spent the summer studying dancing at the Paramount Studios, and rejected a movie offer to continue her teaching.

The girls who have been selected for the chorus are George Evelyn Billingsley, Hilda Cato, Mary Eleanor Love, Carline Hickman, Mary Louise Murphy, Helen Hines, Willetta Woody, Cathrine Harrison, Mary Jane Whiteman, Nancy Barnes, and Martha Francis Peavy. Other members of the cast will be announced later.

The Revues were formerly held at the Little Theater, but with the show being sponsored by the Council, and a much larger crowd expected than heretofore, a larger place was necessary. "No expenses are being spared to make this Revue the best amateur show to be presented in Fort Worth, and with the excellent work that Mrs. Hagman is doing, I'm sure that it will compare favorably with the best professional road shows that have played to Fort Worth audiences," James Crenshaw, production manager, said.

Besides the many beautiful chorus numbers, the comedy scenes, and the best of specialty numbers, many fantastic and weird effects will be presented through the medium of elaborate settings decorated with soft neon lights, and Strob-

Ed Lawrence, Delta Sigma, was chosen as Council Treasurer, and Ray Kearney, former I. F. College has claimed the majority of Gamma Beta's older activities, but this younger chapter is certainly keeping up our old standards, and their pledges seem to be the cream of the crop of Fort Worth's leading high schools, Paschal and Stripling.

Gamma Beta at present boasts of an active chapter (yes, they all pay dues) of twenty-eight, and a pledge list of six. These pledges are Arthur Diehl, Ernest Bursey, Jimmy Getz, J. C. Nelson, Wilson Rudmore, and Buddy Thompson.

With the Stag Barbecue and Beer Party at Wallace's camp, Friday night, Sept. 27, Gamma Beta adds another successful entertainment to its list. Twenty-five of the active members were present and it seems that each and every one of them had his full share of enjoyment.

Plans for a Stag Banquet some time in November are being made at present. This Banquet is to be held at the Blackstone, and the members and their dates will enjoy dancing in the Venetian Ballroom succeeding the Banquet without additional charges.

The annual Alpha Omega Christmas Dance will again this year be held on the 26th of December at Rivercrest Country Club. At present, the probable orchestra will be Harry Soznick's, who, previous to that time, will be playing at the Hollywood Dinner Club at Galveston. But no matter what orchestra plays, we assure you, as usual, the most enjoyable dance off the year.

Lots of News Has Accumulated Since Delts Had Last Column

By EDWIN PHILLIPS

Greetings, Delts. A lot of water has gone over the dam since our last writings, and your corre-spondent is going to be too completely occupied in passing the news on to you to take time out for wisecracks, or apologies. We do wish to gratefully acknowledge, however, the many pro-tests received over the rather conspicuous absence of the Delt column for the last month or so. Like the old negro poter who inadvertently walked in on a young lady in her bath, realized the tenseness of the situation, and backed out bowing and murmuring, "Pardon me, suh," we refuse to recognize our embarrassing predicament. In the future, we shall be more careful.

Prospects for a growing, active, progressive chapter this fall looked dark indeed for awhile. Alpha Sigma's active ranks were badly riddled by departures for school, and the first fall meet-ing was gloomy gathering indeed. Faithful sons of Deltdom heard the call of need, however, and the picture was so reversed that it looks like a bang up, banner year for the chapter. A goodly company gathered at Bro. Phillips for a Dutch Supper September 24, and proceeded to elect officers for the coming term in such a good, old-fashioned, argumentative manner that those who didn't know better might even have thought that it wasn't all arranged beforehand.

William Hawthorne Moore was elected to succeed Jimmy Lore as president, and Cleve Bachman was chosen as vice president. Re-elected as treasurer, James Neely, and as chapter director, Ed Phillips. Elected as secretary was the younger brother of one of Alpha Sigma's few honorary presidents, Jim Hodgson. We sincerely hope that Jim contributes as much as Dale did through his

The departure of some dozens of college students has boomed business for the local "grog shops," and many whose loves are away, can be found almost nightly "crying in their Beer." That versatile Star-Telegram news sleuth, Monty Montford, local McIntyre, introduced a novel kodak tour of the nite-spots for the delegates of the Kappa Phi convention, held here this past August. This proved quite a success, as many will admit after reading the "Frat Chat," convention edition of the official Kappa Phi magazine. With this in mind, the I. F. C. News has engaged a staff-photographer to make an ightly tour of The Crown, The State, (loud and lusty crowd at 4 a. m.), Buccaneer Club, La La's, The Oasis, 8th Ave. Klub, Ringside, The Grove, The Cave, even the American Cabaret) for exclusive, uncensored pictures of members of Fratdom's frivolous fantsay. A discovery valuable to the chapter beyond all estimate occurred last month, when two years of record-hunting was climaxed by the handing over of several years of scattered minutes by Bill Dooley. These minutes, together with others collected, complete the five years from 1921 to 1926 fairly well, and have been copied into the Official Minute Book prepared by Bro. Kappa Fall Activities Started With Two Dinners At Hotel

By ERNEST FENDER, JR.

With fall activities well under way and winter approaching, Kappas are looking forward to a busy season. We have a great deal of work to do, but we hope to be able to mix our duties with less tiring pastimes. In the last month we have had two nice dinners at the Texas Hotel, and we are sure that every one attending will agree that the food and entertainment was of the best. A bouquet to Mrs. McGuire for her splendid cooperation that makes all events at The Texas superior. The dinner given Sept. 5 was our parting salute to the worthy brothers who were leaving for school. We'll miss them, no doubt, but we will miss that two-bits more.

Your correspondent wishes at this time to extend his regrets to A. O.'s Al Cochran for the accidental assault made on him in our game of baseball the other day.

Kappas wish to extend the hand of brotherhood shortly to our new pledges, George Stroud, Pierce Priest, Arthur Fisher, Howard Fender, Ed Daniels, Allan McCleary, Frank Waddell. These new pledges show great ability and we expect great things of them. The brothers wish that Dick (irrevolunt) College would decid mit a proper to the strength of the content of the conte revelant) Calkins, would decide where, how, why, when, and what he wants to say when he asks for the floor in meetings.

Ernest Chilton is in Washington assisting the government in conducting its business.

Max Clark is spending the winter at the University of Arizona. We hope he is bearing up under the strain of concentration.

It is too bad that Bro. Worley (Flaxington) Jones and date were unable to make it to the State-O. U. game. Maybe you can make it next time; we hope so.

They have been having a hard time at Kemper Military Academy taking a few of the kinks out of Preston Hooper. Benton Walden is (according to Delta Sig Geo. Donnelly) about fed up with life at N. M. M. I. and is doing all that he can to get kicked out.

Who is the freshman at State that is causing the rift between Bud Jones and his squaw, Betty Wilson? Also, what newly initiated Kappa and comely Jean Mobley are to hear wedding bells soon? It is true that Bro. Jesse Walden and little Alice V. are building a love nest in Montecello. An invitation to a house warming will be expected.

Whatcha think of the Kappas breaking into the movies? It certainly was a thrill to see our pin featured in "Broadway Melody of 1936." It is a fact that the leading man is a Kappa—hence the use the pin in the picture.

Eta Kappa wishes to urge all members to support its baseball team. We have put many teams on the field that have resulted in our having several pennants. We have done it before; let's show that old Kappa spirit and come out and play ball.

National Convention Hasn't Affected Kappa Activities

By BILL HORNBEAK

Activity in Delta Chapter has not suffered by having sponsored the National Convention, the usual let-down has been substituted by an increase in attendance at the meetings and a revived interest on the part of quite a few members.

The latest initiates to the Chapter are Brothers Jack Smith and Bill Scott, who were initiated on October 1st; at the present time the Chapter has two pledges, Earl Hunter and Jimmy Jacks.

Four members usually very active in the Chapter will not be with us this year: B. F. Bouldin as at present in Washington, D. C., working with the Interstate Commerce Commission; Boaz Hoskins is also in Washington, attending George Washington University. Brothers Dub Wheeler and Bee Campbell are in Austin, freshmen at the University.

Amid much heckling, advice, and his long underwear, Brother Monty Montford took off for New York City, just a visit, but you can never tell he might be adopted by some lonesome widow. Will have more to report on this large subject next time.

There is of course no accounting for tastes, but I am mystified as to just what would cause a perfectly sane if not sober guy to walk into a cafe and order a baked duck. Then proceed to eat same, with copious drafts of Old Quaker on the side. Brother Hal Sayles was a visitor in this duckless city after the O. U.-Texas game, and he recommends highly the diet described above. He also promises that he will throw a duck dinner for a few of the members of Delta Chapter soon.

Delta Chapter's soft-ball team is at the present time leading the I. F. C. soft-ball league with four games won and no losses. How long this will continue we cannot say, but if you are looking for something to do of a Sunday afternoon, why ont come out to Forest Park and lend yur support.

Graham Campbell, now a cadet at the U. S. flying school at Kelley Field, was a visitor at the meeting October 8th. Graham still has his good looks, all his landings having been happy ones so far.

Initiation and Mr. Quigley Press Hard On Reporter

By DAVID L. HARTMAN

Well, all ye ole Phi Lambda scribe knows is what the pledges dig up for him-and with the initiation that came off Sept. 24th things were made kind of bad for ye ole scribe.

Phi Lambda here wants to take enough space to officially welcome the four fine additions to Phi Lambda—Giles "Thorobred" McCrary, David "What-a-Man" Carlton, Frank "Yes-Sir" Tuscany, and Robert "Third-Sacker" Hartman. We hope and feel that we have in these four fine fellows more of the same type of gentlemen that have always been associated with the name of Phi Lambda. So welcome, Fellows!

The Frat. also feels proud of the fact that that worthy Apollo of the gasoline industry, Johnny Luton, leads the chapter's destinies for the forthcoming year in the role of President. Cadet Jim Vickers, now in the U. S. army via N. T. A. C., is the new worthy secretary. James J. John "Jack" Hill will again stand guard with solemn mien over the bulging treasury. You know Brother John never needs to know any brother's name, he can name that brother by how much money he owes to the chapter. Retiring President O'Brien deserves a big vote of appreciation for his untiring work in behalf of the frat these past two years.

Glad to report that Brother Ed Wyatt is on his feet again, fully recuperated from a recent operation for appendicitis.

Reports have it that Brother O'Brien is moving all of his belongings to a palatial mansion in the country in preparation for his forthcoming nuptial entanglement and that his indiscreetness is only awaiting his luck in "Jewing" Armstrong out of the engagement ring that Tom now has no more use for.

Good news is that Bill Leonard, National President of Phi Lambda Epsilon, has just moved to Dallas, and will be with us in a short time.

must have your support if we win that title. Come out and lend your moral support, even if you do have to admit that you are "too old and decrepit" to play ball.

Interest in the I. F. C. soft ball games this year has reached a high peak as the schedule draws to a close, there being only three more games to a close, there being only three more games to play. The suggestion has been made that the league be continued with another round of games. This will have to be discussed and decided upon by the Council. have always attended. Every seat was taken in the Little Theater last year, so with a larger attendance expected this year, a larger place had to be secured.

Any persons skeptical of the interest in the mode in the inverse, are invited to attend a rehearsal any Wednesday evening at Meadowmere. The chorus, exactly twice as large as ever before, is doing routines that would be difficult for Earl Carroll girls.

It's been no secret as to the expenses involved in producing a revue. In the past, the cost has been from $150 to $200, with no performers being paid. The Council plans to spend approximately $300 on this one performance. Among other expenses will be the use of Stroblite. This substance costs $40 a pint, and requires special electrical equipment involving "black light." Many beautiful and mystifying illusions will be effected through its use. Right before the audience's very eyes, a chorus girl's skin turns from white to black, or green, or red. A scene is the interior of a house; instantly different colored lights are turned on and the scene is a beautiful rose garden. An adagio dance is being done by two boys and a girl. The girl is thrown into the air by one boy. She remains suspended in mid-air for several seconds, and then lands in the arms of the other boy. The gorgeous mirror scene alone will be worth the price of admission.

The far renowned and muchly anticipated Inter-Fraternity Council dance will be held Thursday evening, November 28th, Thanksgiving, at Meadow-mere Club. Danny Brooks and his orchestra will play from nine until one.

Although these dances, which have always attracted large crowds, have formerly been held at a downtown club, the popularity that Meadowmere achieved with fraternity men last summer, and the abundance of tables, has caused the Council to change the scene of the dance to the latter place.

The dance will not share the evening with the All-Fraternity Revue, as was the case last year, but the two affairs will be given on separate nights, affording (Turn to Page 11)

Benny Meroff or Joe Venuti? A. O. Committee Can't Decide

By Bill Jary

Everybody's Truckin':

All eyes of the Greek Gods begin to focus on that climax of the Fraternai year, when Fratdom calls out the Reserves, digs deep into the pocket, and rolls out a rug of Christmas Dance festivities. Alpha Omega will reach deep into the grab bag of rhythm and bring fifth, for the Twentythird Annual Xmas Dance, something in the "four-star" list of name bands. The music committee is scratching their feeble heads, in deep meditation, to decide between two ace orchestras, Benny Meroff and one Joe Venuti. Benny, as many will recall, played with Eddie Cantor over NBC, and has toured the country in vaudeville, appearing a year or so ago on the Worth stage, and has an outstanding organization of 22 people. While on the other hand (we have a wart, and five fingers) Joseph Venuti, Rubinoff's only rival, has fiddled his way into some of the lead-

Alpha Sigma Will Entertain Old Members at Reunion Banquet Xmas

By EDWIN PHILLIPS

With the scent of Yuletide in their nostrils, the active chapter got away this month like the proverbial pack of hounds, in search of the orchestra, site and funds necessary to make Alpha Sigma's holiday dance, as usual, one of the most outstanding of the Christmas season. sponsibility of performing this social legerdemain was entrusted in rapid fire succession to the Dance Committee, headed by Prexy Bill Moore, the Finance Committee, headed by Treasurer James Neeley, and the Banquet Committee, chairmanned by Ed Phillips.

The cherry in Deltdom's annual Christmas offering, which will be concocted by masters in the art of social Epicureanism, will undoubtedly be the chapter's DELT REUNION BANQUET. the first since Alpha Sigma entertained the fraternal brethren here at the national convention in 1931. Nearly 100 of the chapter's 140 members are expected to gather in momentous celebration of our 18 years of local existence. Noteworthy among those attending will be several of the chapter members and honorary presidents, not to mention various other brothers whose dotage is such that their sons are being considered as pledge material.

This event should be, with the grace of God, and the generosity of the active chapter, one of the true highlights of Alpha Sigma's history, as reservations are coming in fast and the appropriation for the program of entertainment is a paltry one hundred cold, elusive, Rooseveltian greenbacks. The moral, brothers, is to gather nigh and prepare to take down your hair for an evening of distinctive entertainment unexcelled in the annals of Christmas fraternal festiv-

Some sixty minutes after the adjourning of the Reunion Banquet, a notable maestro of rhythmic melodies will raise his baton, tap twice, and swing into the lovely strains of the fraternity song, thus auspiciously ushering in the 18th Annual Christmas Ball of Delta Siga Upsilon Fraternity, which the legions of local Greekdom knows to mean four hours of syncopation, served up sweet and hot in style that would fit the taste of kings. With the assurance of a setting as beautiful as the many lovely young ladies who will be in attendance, the only thing lacking will be an opportunity to be disappointed.

Final details for the impatient are lacking. Tentatively, the chapter has honored December 23rd with selection as the date for banquet and dance. One problem has been solved, however, if only on paper. After a month's wrestling with a financial puzzle which would have baffled J. P. Assessments for semi-active members, under the by-laws, are the same as that for active members. They are, however, put on notice as to the $1.00 rebate. All back dues and other obligations must be liquidated in full.

All alumni of the chapter will be invited to attend the Delt dance as guests of the active membership, free of charge, but under the I. F. C. So the inactive assessment has been set at $3.00, and it is hoped that all brothers will feel able to lighten the financial burden by paying up. Admittance to the Delt Reunion Banquet is a separate cover charge of $1.00 per plate.

So, until next month, au revoir, brother. We leave you with the admonishment to give, give, give, for dear old Siwash, else old Siwash will break has back by playing Santa Claus for Al-pha Sigma's biggest Christmas season since days of the far-gone past.

KAPPA PHI OMEGA

Compiler of Column Deserts Civilization For Hunting Trip

By A. H. (M.) M.

The competent and capable compiler of this column, Wilburforce Abernathy Hornbeak, recently packed up his old kitbag and muzzle-loader and trudged off in all directions with another wellknown Nimrod, Thaddeus Collier. Mr. Hornbeak's original intention was to compose the column in the wilderness and relay it back to civilization by one of three methods: (a) carrier pigeon, (b) smoke signal, (c) pony express. An aborigine who staggered out of the jungles reported that Hornbeak's plans went awry when (a) he attempted to substitute a turkey buzzard, (b) he could find only one of two Boy Scouts he needed to rub together to start his fire, (c) he couldn't find a good place on the pony to place a postage stamp. The above is by way of explanation that Mr. Hornbeak's message is being ghost written this issue, if the ghost can find a sheet large enough to cover him without embarrassment.

First and foremost on the Kappi Phi Omega list of musts for the season, of course, is the Inter-Fraternity Council Revue. Loyal supporters of the production when it was sponsored by Alpha Omega, interest has redoubled among Delta Chapter members since they know they'll be in for a share of the proceeds.

Missed will be the dulcet tones of Boaz (Shanghai Lil') Hoskins, now sojourning in the Nation's Capital. Arrangements for an NBC hookup to carry back Hoskins' warblings fell through because since the Government took over the radio Another Kappi Phi Washingtonite is B. F. Bouldin Jr., ("Pride of the Pampas," he is known among the Navajo-ers of Mary's Creek.) According to latest hospital bulletins both Hoskins and Bouldin are on their way to recovery after the recent visit of Brother L. A. Freear.

As a purely personal nomination for the title of the Parental Reg'lar Fellow of Kappa Phi, may we submit the name of Pappy Ferguson. One hundred and one per cent for the Old Rose and White, he probably has the largest acquaintanceship among the brothers and the staunchest following.

Brother Philip Gregory, lean and gaunt because Rusk County's relief allotment has been cut late-ly, was in the city recently on his vacation. While a well paid oil company slave, he is being forced to fall back on the government this year since he purchased a 1936 Oldsmobile.

Brother Lawton Hamilton, chief contender for the unwelcome appellation of "The Hard Luck Kid," is slowly recovering from one of his fre-quent mishaps. It hardly seems probable that anyone could have become so battered without having unwarily placed one's head in a concrete mixer going full blast.

Modern miracle is how Oil Magnate Wayne Colley can so fold his legs as to keep them off the ground while riding his newest acquisition—a filling station motorcycle.

One final word — Messrs. Hornbeak and Collier vowed they would not return until they bagged a deer. Friends are anxiously awaiting their return in time for the Christmas dances (1936).

Are you one of the fifteen hundred people who have seen A. O. Revues? If so, you know each show was better than its predecessor, and that all compared favorably with the best road shows that have played Fort Worth. Now, under the sponsorship of SEVEN organizations, it promises to be many times better than ever before. Will you be one of the eight hundred people who will attend Wednesday night?

EAVESDROPPER

Thanksgiving to the Pilgrims (and I'll bet this will startle you) meant. Thansgiving; Thanksgiving to the modern folk means indigestion, a hangover, or both; but Thanksgiving to the Fort Worth fraternity lads and lassies means the Inter-Fraternity Council Revue.

In the past the affair was fathered by the Alpha Omegas, while the other chapters stood by as either godfathers or midwives. This year the show will have a collective parentage which may or may not prove something about heredity.

It stands to reason, however, that if such amazingly good productions can be fostered by one of a group, with a slight bit of help from the others, that the group as a whole should bring forth a presentation that will go down in history as double ultra paramount supreme.

The theme will be the log of the good ship "Merriment," including the things seen at every port. The crew is well-rehearsed and a competent group of officers should be able to guide the ship through the storms (of applause) without running on a reef.

The "big number" is "The Great Thud and Blunder Case." Lightning flashes; thunder roars; the rains beat down. The scene is a deserted mansion in a forgotten land. An insane ape runs rampant; a cruel werewolf and a clutching hand clash for the throat of the lovely maiden. Charlie Chow takes the case; he calls in Milo Prance and Sherlock Bones; a noted politician is found dead! Screams . . . chills . . . horrors!

A ttal of seevnty people will be required to produce the revue. Your Dropper advises you, "by all means — don't miss #! It's gigantic!"

"There's nothing like a College education," but we will admit there's nothing like a bunch of rubes that gathered last week at Meadowmere for the Phi Delt Barn Dance and Hay-Hay Party ... shake that straw out of your head, sister, here come teacher . . . truly a sight to see those cityslickers attired in rural costume. The first prize went to Queen Ann (Wolseley) in form of an ole beat-up corset, and to her groom-to-be-soon, Will Hines, a round container (generally found under beds) which was immediately filled with 10 bottles of Faust and made a trip from table to table. To Whit Fry, disguised as County Sheriff, a cob, this could have been called a boobey prize, but we have our opinion.

With gun-play raging in East Africa, the Ethiopians may get shot only once, by the Italians, but here, you can go to Lala's (Spaghetti Center) and see the boys get shot every nite. It was a usual Saturday nite, the smoke was thick (as G. Burton's head) and the music was loud, and under a table cover was one Roy Harris ... but it was too late, someone opened the door and "the fresh air got 'im." Tony claims he has a direct wire, and gets all the latest news from Rome, and the Fatherland.

PHI DELTA

We'll Bet Goodwin Managed For Those Phi Delt Parkway Passes

James Earl Smiley

The new "Parkway Theater" at Eighth Avenue and Park Place is opening November 28, with our dear Dan Gould, Junior, as assistant manager. I understand that this will be Phi Delt night with his compliments.

Brother Doyle Goodwin, the official racing tout, is laying bets on "Fire-chief" to burn up the tracks at the new "Smiley-Goodwin" Texaco station at Eighth Avenue and Park Place. Five dollars to the brother who can entice "Gasoline Goodwin" to throw a gas nog party for the brothers Christmas Eve.

The unveiling of glamorous "Phi Delt Christmas Dance" will perhaps reveal "Country Store Thomas," the unforgettable New Yorker, who will reciprocate as "Master of Ceremonies." That freedom of the press, R. L. Boswell, as the timid "Bar Maid," and we understand that Father Dan Filligim will escort all Phi Delts and dates to the exclusive affair in a fleet of pay Lipsch to the exclusive affair in a fleet of new Lincoln Zephyrs. Doc Smith will enact that famous Fred Astaire with a song and dance in his top hat. The personality of Max Painter will serve as "Texas Guinan," that perfect host. That old maestro, Ray Kearney, will direct Ray Noble and his orchestra in the role of Jack Benny. Joe, the boy with the voice from the Southland (Joe Southland) will sway the cheeks during his vocal midnight waltz number. The climax of the evening will will sway the cheeks during his vocal midnight-waltz number. The climax of the evening will be the "Rhumba" number as presented by "Gin-ger Rogers" Dickerson. Cecil Lampkin, the Phi Delt golfer, will serve tee during intermissions. Dick, the "Cherry Man" (Dick Cherry) will do the "Continental Phi Delt Sprawl." George Collup, our dear treasurer, will present every guest a five dollar gold piece that claims the "Phi Delta Christmas' dance to be the finest ever at-tended. So, 'by, and good long. PHI LAMBDA EPSILON

Ina Ray Hutton Gets Hartman's Vote For Phi Lamb Dance Band

By DAVID L. HARTMAN

Heigh-ho! and well, well, well-with Christmas time and all of its attendant festivities approaching by leaps and bounds, guess we-all ole fellows should start dusting off the silk toppers and try getting the ink stains from the cuffs of the stiff fronts. In case all members have not been informed, Phi Lambda Epsilon's "grand shindig," or "bellyrub," will be held the night of December 25th, about the time Sandy Claws starts on his yearly rounds. Idea . . . Why doesn't some Hoot book Ida Ray Hutton and band or some similar "hotcha" girl's band. I ask you, would this be a wow! And how!

Where are those four new pledges to Phi Lambda, Bill Walden, Charlie Jay, Bob Boone and . Some of us fellows who rarely ever see pledges, just hearing about them, would like to extend them a warm welcome.

Phi Lambda should regret the abolishment of the Inter-Fraternity football league, as we have at the present time to be proud of such stars as Bill Brandon, Red Vickers, and Maurice Liston and others. Both Bill Brandon and Red Vickers are understudies of Rice Institute's great All-American backs, Bill Wallace and John McCauley. In fact, reports have it that if the great Bill and "Jawn" combination doesn't behave just right the new combination of Branden and Vickers will swipe their jobs. Then, too, reports are that the other red-head, "Red" Liston, is "tearing 'em to pieces" in Philadelphia with Pop Warner's Temple Owls.

Neither should we Lambdas feel badly about coming in there in the first half of the soft-ball game. The two teams which did beat us were good, and were made-up mostly of older, experienced players. For a first-year ball club, we haven't done so badly.

All of youse guys please remember to make a date for every Tuesday nite at the Texas, our new meeting place.

Two complete dancing choruses will be featured, with a great variety of local favorites in singing and dancing numbers. "The Great Thud and Blunder Murder Case," featuring Milo Prance, Charlie Chow, Sherlock Bones and a demented gorilla, will head a large group of comedy scenes and blackouts.

Headliner of the show is the beautiful Mary Hagman, of Weatherford, who is also dance di-rector. She has recently returned from Hollywood, where she attended the Fanchon Marco School of the Dance, and rejected contracts for a leading part by Paramount Studio, to make phonograph recordings by R. C. A.-Victor, and to sit for a portrait to be used as a cover for Cosmopolitan.

Many wierd and mysterious effects will be effected through the use of Stroblite, an expensive substance used to create illusion, and involving "black light." Due to its expense, this substance has never before been used on any Fort Worth stage, although it has been seen in several motion pictures.

Due to the revue being sponsored by seven fra-ternities instead of one, and the "bang-up" cast, more than eight hundred people are expected to attend, including a large number of parents of fraternity members. Those desiring seats toward the front have been advised to come early, as no seats will be reserved, and the best seats will be taken soon after the doors open at 7 p. m. The opening curtain will rise promptly at 8:15.

THE CITY DESK

The thought most readers have when they see this page is that the editor was short on copy to fill out the paper. As a matter of fact, the column appears when Edwin, our editorial writer, doesn't do his stuff. But, nevertheless, we have some real preaching to do this month.

But first, let me acknowledge a very interesting letter from Bob Woodward, editor of the "Round-Towner," official publication of 175 Los Angeles fraternity and sorority chapters. The several inter-fraternity and inter-sorority countries of the district of the control of the c cils of that city are planning a gigantic all-city convention, to be held February 29th, and March 1st. So great is the undertaking in a city of so many organizations, that work on the project, still three months off, began last summer. Bob's fraternity, Beta Gamma Phi, is the owner and publisher of the "Round-Towner," and for the past three years, strangely enough, has presented home talent revues that have been identical in nature to our own shows.

For the first time in local fraternity history, every fraternity man-all 800 of them-has been given a particular task. Every member from the oldest in A. O. to the newest pledge in the youngest lodge, has the same job-that of selling tickets to the Revue. Only a few actually have the tickets in hand, but that is relatively unimportant since they can easily be secured at the box office the night of the show, but they all have the duty of selling tickets, nevertheless. Talk it up! Tell your friends about it! Bring your parents! It will be a production that you will be proud of. For once in its history the Council hasn't dickered over expenses. Quality was the only consideration and even the best was none too good. No item that might make for a better show was omitted. The committee has worked hard and believe the revue will be as near to perfection as is possible. The only thing the committee can't do is buy your ticket for you, get you a date, and bring you out. So do your part and attend—together with five or six of your friends and parents.

Although they are never mentioned in the programs, one group does more than any other to make fraternity revues successful. They are the newspaper writers, particularly the society edi-Fraternity members have always known that they have had the constant support of four of their best friends, Miss Sears, Miss Jenkins, Mrs. Guedry, and Mrs. Bennett. And who does not enjoy seeing an item on fraternities in the columns of Jack Gordon, Bess Stephenson, Mary Wynn, or Robert Randall?

Annual Council Dance Thursday

More than a hundred collegians, home for Thanksgiving, will be the honor guests.

Admission to fraternity members, upon presentation of Council cards, will be $1.00 per couple or stag. The price will be slightly higher for non-fraternity members.

ATHLETIC REVIEW

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 10, 1936

ELEVEN O'CLOCK

UNITED STATES MILITARY ACADEMY WEST POINT, NEW YORK

All cadets are required to engage in athletics. Those not on Corps Squads must play on intramural squads. Corps team competition is with other college and university teams. Intramural competition is between company teams. Each season there are about 375 cadets on Corps Squads and the remainder, about 1,100 on intramural squads. There are 18 Corps sports and 13 Intramural sports. In this review, where there are both Corps and intramural squads in the same sport, they are grouped together and may be distinguished by differences in uniform. For example the group on the right is baseball. The Corps baseball squad, about 50, is on the right of the group and wears the regular baseball uniform, the remainder of the group, about 180, includes the 12 company intramural baseball squads wearing grey jerseys.

Once More The Dawn.

 Once more the dawn is breaking, Once more the shadows flee; Softly the birds sing, waking, Eager to worship Thee.

Refrain:

Dawn breaks, day wakes,
Once more the dawn!
Capture the joy of the morning!
Courage! Be strong,
Tho the battle be long,
Hope comes again at dawning.

- 2. Once more a dream returning,
 Once more a sorrow sped,
 Lighten the heart once yearning,
 Lift up the downcast head.
- 3. Once more the sword is sleeping, Resting in loyal hands;
 Once more the Corps is keeping

Cecil Edward Combs, '36.

COLLEGE HYMN

Dear Lord and Father of mankind,
Forgive our feverish ways!
Reclothe us in our rightful mind;
In purer lives Thy service find,
In deeper rev'rence praise.

In simple trust like theirs who heard,
Beside the Syrian sea,
The gracious calling of the Lord,
Let us, like them, without a word,
Rise up and follow Thee.

O Sabbath rest by Galilee!
O calm of hills above!
Where Jesus knelt to share with Thee
The silence of eternity,
Interpreted by love!

Drop Thy still dews of quietness,
Till all our strivings cease;
Take from our souls the strain and stress
The beauty of Thy Peace.

Breathe through the pulse of our desire
Thy coolness, and Thy balm;
Let sense be dumb, let flesh retire;
Speak through the earthquake, wind and fire,
O still small voice of calm!
John Greenleaf Whittier.

Seniors Gather For Farewell Luncheon

At one o'clock on Tuesday, June 2, the Senior classes of Briarcliff Junior College and Preparatory School celebrated the traditional Senior Luncheon at the Briar Hills Golf Club. Miss Virginia McKnight, president of the Senior class of the Junior College, and Miss Mary Louise de Chadenedes, president of the Preparatory School Seniors, acted as hostesses to the classes and the two guests of honor, President Flick and Dean Bird.

The party was seated at a long table decorated with pastel spring flowers and pale candles, and the luncheon was charmingly served to appeal to feminine appetites on a warm June day. It consisted of melon, tomato bisque, Virginia ham, string beans, sweet potatoes, vanilla ice cream with chocolate sauce and coffee.

Everyone wore pastel semi-sports dresses, and formed a lovely picture as they sat about singing old school songs and such universal favorites as "There's A Long, Long Trail A-Winding" and "I Love You Truly." It was, as always, very informal and few of the girls wore hats, although the (Continued on Last Page)

Red And Blue Room Is Redecorated

On Monday, May 31, the Red-and-Blue Room was opened for the first time since its redecoration, the formal opening taking place at four o'clock in the afternoon.

The redecoration was made possible by the Office Practice Class, the members of which have run the Candy Store this year. These girls, Ouida Wagner, Jean Rossiter and Jerre Kling, have worked faithfully at supplying the college with cigarettes and candy, and although the college figure may have suffered, the results would seem to justify the means. We enjoyed both at any rate.

With the profits from the Candy Store a grand new ping-pong table was bought, and if the Briarcliffians of next year enjoy the game as much as we have, it will be in use all the time. The table looked very inviting with the new recquets laid out all ready for use.

Briar Crier's Mascot

"MIKE"

Michael Charles Savell, more commonly known as Mike, is the youngest, most important, and most admired member of the "Briar Crier" staff. In his capacity of mascot, Mike has been a great success. While his father guides our activities in the channels of journalism, his son devotes himself to keeping our spirits up by his unfailing enterprise and spirit of adventure.

Although still at a tender age Mike already has been caught tinkering with his father's shaving brush and razor, and has made a start towards a sailing career. He shows such a taste for family heirlooms that he has licked all the varnish off one side of his cradle. He appears to have a definite preference for songs that are quite different from the conventional lullaby, for to suit his taste they must contain an element of shock and surprise. Sea chanties are among the favorites. He is much annoyed if circumstances demand that he take his nap inside—the great outdoors for him in any sort of weather!

Thirty Seniors Receive Diplomas From Dean

On the morning of June 5 the ivycovered walls of Briarcliff's court-yard bade farewell to another Senior class as thirty girls marched slowly down the wide steps to take their places beneath the massive graduation oaks. Facing them on their right were seated the members of the Junior class, while on their left were seated the guests and alumnae. The faculty completed the square, sitting in front of them behind President Flick whose dais is always placed almost directly in front of the graduating class. Dr. Vincent, who delivered the commencement speech, sat with President Flick, as did Miss Glazik, the Dean of the Preparatory School.

The graduating class, which includes the Seniors of both the Junior College and Preparatory School, were strikingly lovely in chiffon gowns whose flowing skirts fashioned of tiny pleats lent an etherial air to an already perfect June day. The Seniors of the Junior College wore a shade of blue which nearly matched that of the sky above their heads while the Preparatory School wore a harmonizing shade of dusty peach. The girls wearing blue carried sheafs of deep pink roses and forget-me-nots, and those wearing peach carried pink roses and larkspur. President Flick wore a beautiful gown of printed chiffon and a long fitted coat of blue taffeta, and the students of the Junior class and the faculty wore pastel sport dresses.

Musicians, stationed in the courtyard between the two sets of staircases, played softly as the graduating class came down the steps, preceded by the members of the Junior class. After a short address by President Flick, Dr. Vincent gave an interesting and very appropriate talk directed particularly to the class itself; this was followed by a benediction and the singing of the Briarcliff Hymn, "O Lord and Father of Mankind." President Flick again addressed the girls, and following this they came forward one by one to receive their diplomas, which were given out by Miss Glazik.

Inaugurated

Lawn Tea Night, on Saturday, May 30, was the occasion upon which the presidencies of the numerous Briarcliff Clubs were souved to the new presidents. One by one this year's presidents came down the front stairs and souved their offices to the girls they had chosen to take their places next year.

Jean Rossiter souved her office as president of Lawn Tea to Jean Morse. Betty Slick souved the presidency of Riding Club to Lou Fox, and Tish Houghson gave the management of French Club to Bobby Downer. Lois Perkins selected Mary Lou Allen to continue Bulletin Board. Nancy Langfitt gave the title of head of the Homely Brutes to none other than Jerry Brauer. Ouida Wagner placed the care of Yellow Hammer on Peggy Vachon's shoulders; Sally Roberts gave the Hiking Club presidency to Sis Hermann and Lorraine Walker souved her position in Ski Club to Jackie Monroe. Henrietta Craig placed Sally Heedy in charge of Glee Club. The Tuneless Sextette presidency was souved to Julie Constable. Lorraine Walker placed her position as head of Art Club in the capable hands of Catchy Childs.

Two new honorary clubs have been formed this year, the Psychology Club and the Social Problems Club. Their purpose is to further interest in the subjects of their names. Members of the Psychology Club are Marilyn Weatherby, chairman; Sally Heedy, secretary; Bebo Morrison, Peggy Vachon and Mary Lou Allen. Members of the Social Problems Club are Mary Beffy Craddock, chairman; Mary Lou Allen, Betty Rogers and Marilyn Weatherby.

The most thrilling event for the majority of the new girls came when Madilyn Stillman souved the front stairs to them through Jean Mary Love, president of the new Student Council.

Thursday, June 4

On Thursday, June 4, the Theatre Arts classes contributed to the festivities of Commencement week by pre-senting, under the direction of Miss Dean Taylor, two one act comedies, "Green Eyes From Romany" by John Kirkpatrick and "The Princess Marries the Page" by Edna St. Vincent Millay. The plays, so different in every way, made an interesting contrast when added to the evening's enjoyment.

"Green Eyes From Romany" was the hilarious story of a group of modern club women putting on a lawn fete "for the blessed poor." The many complications which arose included the threatened leaving of Mary, the maid; the touchy feelings of Winnie, the poor relative; and the ridiculous husband troubles of Louise Warren who goes as far as disguising herself as a fortune telling gypsy in order to find out who is trying to steal her husband.

The characters were amusingly portrayed by the following: Josephine Tarr, Sallie Roberts; Lucy Guilford, Anne Reinholdt; Mary, Shirley Her-mann; Emily Prescott, Sally Werk; Fanny Meadows, Laura Braden; "Winnie," Sally Holt; Madge Killan, Justine Diebold; Madame Khaaraviicci, Edith Stephens.

"The Princess Marries The Page" was a delightful little romantic play about a page hiding in the Princess' tower from the guards who seek him as a spy. When the Princess has to tell a lie in order to save him, he nobly gives himself up to save her honor. But before he is taken away he is revealed as the Prince of the neighboring kingdom and thus wins the Princess'

This old-time love story was beautifully played by Letitia Hughson as the page and Marilyn Stillman as the Princess. They were well supported by the following: King, Mary Lou Allen; Chancellor, Julia Constable; First Soldier, Pauline Robertson; Second Soldier, Mollie Kelly; Third Soldier, Virginia Parish.

A great deal of credit for the success of the plays belongs to the able stage crews, lighting effects, and costumes which were under the capable direction of Miss Fincher and the Prep School sewing class.

The following girls were in charge of the stage crews: "Green Eyes From Romany". Scenery, Edith Stephens; Properties, Laura Braden; Costumes, Sally Roberts; Publicity, Sally Holt; Stage Manager, Elizabeth MacClellan; Lights, Elizabeth MacClellan. In charge of the stage crews for "The Princess Marries The Page": Letitia Hugson, Mary Lou Allen and Marilyn Stillman.

"Green Eyes From Romany" was produced by special ararngement with Samuel French of New York, and "The Princess Marries The Page" with Walter H. Baker and Company of Boston.

New Presidents Are School Play Revue On Students Compete In Annual Horse Show

Another old tradition was carried out last Tuesday, May 2, when the Briarcliff College Riding Meet was held at Sleepy Hollow Country Club. This is a yearly occurrence and always comes during commencement week. This year it was at four-thirty in the afternoon of June second. The show was divided into four sections or classes, as they were called. Namely, class one, the good-hands class for experienced riders, who show accomplishment in handling mounts; class two, the improvement class for the beginners and others who have learned to ride or have otherwise improved their riding during the past year. Class three, the good seat class for accomplished riders who ride well and correctly; class four, for all equestrians riding en masse. There were twenty-one entries in all. Four prizes were donated, one for each class, and the gala show was one of the most entertaining events of the .

Seniors Privileged

Senior Privileges—the girls' dream, the old girls' reality. Any Senior can stay out until twelve-thirty a. m. this entire week. They can take nights, if they wish, any night. They may leave school any time during the day when they have no classes, Tops, however, is being able to have their cars at school the whole week-lucky, lucky. Some very nice looking jobs making their appearances belong to Nancy Langfitt (blue coupe) Anlo McCosker (egg-nog, golden LaSalle), Joan Stifel (turquoise Ford Phaeton), and Lorraine Walker (green convertable Ford coupe). McKnight and Kenzie have two very swell cars. If any are not mentioned it isn't because your envious correspondent ha't seen them, she doesn't know to whom they belong.

These cars are taking gals places for fun. Last Friday Anlo took Nannie, Helen, Slick, Dolly, Dopey and maybe some more to Rye beach to ride the thingamajigs. They had a wonderful time and came back slightly dizzy from all the whirls they had taken. Saturday night the Seniors all went over to the Club and had a sort of Farewell Reunion as they did Tuesday when they lunched together there. The Seniors are pretty nice about giving the new girls, soon to be old girls, rides so all in all everyone thinks the Senior privileges are grand.

Who's Going Where This Summer

Mary Armstrong: "Keep the home fires burning with a few exceptions."

Marilyn Wetherby: "Am visiting Ann Pemberton at Falmouth; and then on to Texas to see Chissa."

Pauline Robertson: "Going to Montreal, Canada, for 2 weeks; to New Boston for 2 weeks; and then on to Canada again."

Jean Morse: "I'm going to tour the U. S. this summer with my brother. We hope to reach California and Mexico but the car is rather old!"

Sally Holt: I'm going to drive home to California with my brother a week or so after school is out. We're going the southern way and will stop at almost a million places, and see every-thing—especially the Texas Exposition.

Laura Braden: "Upon leaving Briarcliff, I shall go to West Point for June Week; then to Tulsa, Oklahoma to visit Rosemary Titus and Betty Lou Canary; and last but not least, I go to Fort Worth, Texas, to visit my roomie, Carol Jane Greene."

Nancy Langfitt: "I expect to see America first this summer."

Dottie Koken: "It's good old St. Louis for me until the end of July when I expect to look to California for a vacation."

Carol Jane Greene: "When I leave here I am going to West Point for a week or two; then to Tulsa to visit Betty Lou Canary and Rosemary Titus. Sometime around the middle of July I will be with Laura Braden in Denver, Colorado."

Betty Vose: "I will loaf the summer away at Jameston, R. I."

Ann Pemberton: "I'll spend most of the summer on Cape Cod—there's no place like it."

Dolly Linkletter: "I am going to California July 4th and have no idea how long I'll be away. The ticket is good for a year and I may never get home. One never knows what may happen with all the smoothies out in Hollywood—I have my eyes on Ben Turpin."

Bebo Morrison: "My plans for the hot sultry days are as follows: Some of our local talent will grace my summer home in Minnesota on one of those well known extended week-ends-in short a house-party.'

Divy Lange: "I will most probably spend the part of the summer in Weeihawken with possibly a trip to Lake Louise; and surely a jaunt to see my dear old roommate Joan."

Sally Heedy: "I expect to spend most

Betty Lou Canary: "I am going home and then later on whip down to Fort Worth."

Kenzie: "My life is a blank from the 5th of June."

Ouida Wagner: "Once I get home I'm 'staying put' all summer—then back to Buffalo."

Ginnie McKnight: "I'm going to Europe this summer with the family."

Nannie Bond: "We're sailing for Europe July 1st and plan to have one big time! From that point on—I'll be just another of the unemployed."

Anlo McCosker: "Nannie's 'we'included me,—we're going to sea— and then try to cope with the foreign exchange. After that just one big 'reading period.'

Prep Affairs

Uh huh. We tried it. We were told that two or three aspirin in the bottom of an ammonia coca-cola, drink in the name of pleasure, would give you a nice kick-like two or three Tom Collinses on a hot dog. One would-be enthusiast drank two and a half cokes and had at least five aspirin, but there was no effect, so we played poker until that stumped us too, and so to bed.

Our thanks to Dottie Crowell for bringing the "Ouija" board to Briarcliff. A faculty member related a few of the wonders he had known to perform (did it really prophesy some exam question?). Dottie complied with the hint, and the craze hasn't stopped yet.

And now "the time has come", as the Walrus said, to talk about what you are going to do next.

Jackie Munro, Catchy Childs, Ginger Parish and Dottie Crowell are all coming back to Briarcliff Prep. Lee de Chadenedes and Sis Hermann are coming back to the Junior College, and they are going to suite together another year.

Congratulations Edith 'cause Bennington College has accepted you. There you will have "liberty" and the perfect outlet for "stream cf consciousness" as well as the everpresent opportunities to build and paint scenery if you take Theatre Arts.

Henny Craig and Lorraine Walker are going to Finch next year for the finishing touches and the super times that occur so much in New York City. Betzi Stillman may go too,—but she just won't decide. That three months European trip she is taking is enough to occupy anybody's mind. She sails June 11,—lucky, lucky stiff.

Tish Hughson has a couple of college boards to digest before she goes to Vassar next fall. This summer she is going to be at the Mt. Kisco Playhouse

Jackie Monro is going up to West Point for graduation after Briarcliff's commencement. She's going up to Lake George for a few weeks, and to Britannica, Canada-where the one and only one will be, and then she's going to sprint down to Baltimore for a visit. Pittsburgh will see her in between Ginger. Lee and Sis will probably have a summer reunion somewhere on the shores of Lake Michigan-or away from them at some smaller lake.

Catchy Childs will probably go out to Texas to visit Sue Harding at that glorious ranch.

Lorraine will be at Toms River, N. J., and that's pretty swell too, considering "Boodie" is coming up to visit her and he's never been farther than North Carolina. Look out New York!

As for that old tradition of "souving" it's a bit disconcerting. Everyone's room looks like someone else's with possessions, all mixed around and exchanged. But it's all over now, but the shouting-and to quote Briarcliff en masse, "Hi-have fun!!"

"All good things must come to an end," and so thirty seniors receive diplomas and leave the shelter of Briarcliff. Perhaps that sentence will not mean very much to those people who are not leaving, but for those of us who must actually say "goodbye" forever, there is a dreadful sense of reality connected with it.

Two years ago we came here, most of us strangers and feeling quite alone. Now we must leave, no longer strangers, but once again alone.

With the completion of two years work a unity has been broken, and now we must go our own way, leaving behind our days as students, to become separate individuals.

The hardest thing for us is the realization that those girls with whom we have lived and grown closer to every day, are about to part, and never again will we achieve the intimacy and "oneness" which we have had. Never again will we go to "her" box and say, "Oh, that's swell, she got THE letter"; never again will we "sneak" a roll out of the dining room in the morning 'cause the "lucky bum" didn't have a class 'til 9:20; never again will we come back from a week end with our hat on the back of our head and say, "Oh wait 'til I tell you." We won't walk down to the "vill" again either. There are lots of little things we'll never do again, and with the realization comes an empty, lonely feeling.

There's really nothing left to say except that which hurts, and which does something to our hearts.

"Hula" Folk Entertain

In the past years the Commencement week swimming races were held in the afternoon, and the day was finished with an evening carnival. This year the races and carnival were all in the evening of June 3.

The scene of the carnival was a take-off on the Tahiti Islands. It was late in the afternoon on the outskirts of a small village. The young natives were swimming in a small pool, diving into its clear depths and dancing and playing with happy freedom on its shaded banks. The chieftan of the village called a council of all his men to decide what they should do to a neighboring tribe of wife-hunters, who they feared would steal their wives and daughters. The time for the meeting was set for dusk, and when the sun reached the horizon a gong sounded, calling the men to the council of war.

The women lingered in the short Tahitian twilight before returning to the village. A few minutes later their laughter was cut short by the cry: "The wife-hunters!"—a merry chase ensued in which the maidens of the village tried to escape the pursuing tribesmen. For a moment they were in danger, but one of the girls summoned the men of the village, who came to their rescue and gave chase to the wife-hunters. By that time darkness had fallen, and the women. frightened by their narrow escape, returned to the village.

They discovered, however, that the chieftan's daughter was missing. Fearing that an accident had befallen her in her effort to escape the headhunters, they went at once with torches to look for her in and about the pool. Soon their shouts were heard as they returned, and to the joy of the chieftan his daughter had been rescued from the enemy.

Rejoicing at the happy end to the day they slowly returned to the village.

Baccalaureate Service Is Held

The Reverend H. Adye Prichard of Mount Kisco officiated at the Baccalaureate Service held at the Briarcliff Congergational Church on Sunday. May 31. The service was held at 3:45 in the afternoon, and the faculty, under-graduates, parents, and members of the community attending. Katheryn Sucher and Jean Morse distributed programs and ushered guests to their seats. The graduating classes of both the Junior College and Preparatory School entered and took their places in the front pews after all others were seated.

Dr. Prichard chose as his subject, "The Value of Humility."

"Thish match won't light." "Washa madda with it?"

NOTICE-If anyone at Briarcliff Junior College objects to the requirements at the college today, will that person please read the following rules formerly laid down for the students of Briarcliff School:

DRESS REQUIREMENTS:

Girls may in general follow individual taste as to color and model but they are expected to be dressed simply and quietly at all times. Elaborate or expensive clothes are unnecessary and unsuitable. Anything which is extreme in style or conspicuous is not accept-

DRESSES:

For ordinary school wear a limited number of plain dresses, sport suits. or skirts and sweaters of a conservative style; for church and street wear plain suits and coats preferably dark; for dinner or evening simple afternoon dresses. The afternoon dresses may be dark or light except on entertainment nights when light colors are required. Sleeves may be in the new length reaching half way to the elbow for evening, but at tea on Sunday afternoon they must reach to the elbow. Long cape sleeves are allowed. One white afternoon dress with sleeves at least elbow length is necessary. No beaded, lace, or richly trimmed dresses are allowed. Evening dress is worn only by the junior and senior classes at their annual Prom. Dark velvet dresses may be worn if simply made. Sleeveless dresses are worn for active sports only.

COATS:

A raincoat and a warm long coat should be included in a girl's ward-robe. Not more than one fur coat is allowed.

SHOES:

For health, convenience, and suitability for sports and country walking all girls are required to wear shoes of one color, black, shades of brown, or white, with heels not higher or narrower than a Cuban hell. The leather may not be cut in patterns. No reptile shoes, except plain black or brown lizard, are allowed. Exceptions: Prince of Wales sport shoes in brown and white or black and white; for town or church "baby Louis" heels; higher heels (not spike heels) for evening but not at one other time. Beige kid pumps with afternoon dresses or in the evening. White shoes must be worn with white dresses.

STOCKINGS.

Lisle stockings must be worn in the daytime except for town and church. Silk and lisle stockings may have openwork clocks but not embroidery or color. Stockings must be in conven-tional tones to harmonize with shoes. Green, blue, etc., are not allowed.

JEWELRY:

No valuable jewelry may be brought to the school. It is impossible to assume responsibility for its safe-keeping. The school definitely assumes no re-

Lawn Tea Night

The most important and impressive function at Briarcliff aside from the graduation, is that of Lawn Tea Night. The purpose of the ceremony is to officially inaugurate the new members of Lawn Tea Club.

Each year the club must consist of twelve members. This year eleven new girls were invited to become members. The girls are chosen from the entire student body and the requirements include, poise, charm, personality and grace.

The ceremony took place in Main Hall, where the faculty and students were gathered. At seven o'clock the new members, dressed in white and wearing corsages of white flowers, formed a line in the entrance and then served dinner for the first timeas representives of Lawn Tea.

After dinner the traditional songs were sung. First the senior class sang their song to the juniors, and then the junior class sang their song to the seniors. Both of the songs were rather sad, and there were one or two tears shed during that part of the evening. As soon as the singing was over, the old girls got their new girls, and as the tradition goes, everybody walked up and down Main Stairs and over to Miss Flick's cottage singing the Briarcliff song.

When that was over everyone gathered on the landing and sang songs to Miss Flick and the faculty, and the junior and senior songs once again.

The "big laugh" of the evening was the movies of last year's graduation graduates themselves looked lovely, but each time some of the undergraduates were shown, it looked as if they were vying to see who could make the funniest face. It was wonderful seeing our "old girls" again, and everytime somebody's picture Was shown, everybody would "Oh" and "Ah", and say, "Gosh, do you remember?" Pictures of last year's graduates lining up before graduation, walking down the stairs, en masse under the oaks receiving their diplomas, and finally the receiving line after graduation. The pictures themselves were wonderful, but those of us who realized that we were the next to come, and that our time wasn't very far away, felt a little blue when the immediacy was brought home to us.

The whole evening was impressive, and a great many milestones were reached. The old Lawn "Teaers." gave their places to the new members, the new girls became old girls, the front stairs are no longer the sole right of the senior class, and the presidencies of the clubs were souved to the girls of the junior class.

Yes, the end of another school year has been almost reached, and Lawn Tea Night was the crux of the year. That is the night that all junior classes eagerly wait for, and all senior classes dread, as it marks their last few days at Briarcliff.

Faculty News

Miss Sheldon sort of picked up and left the shelter of Briarcliff July 30. We can't say as how we blame her tho', 'cause she had an awfully good reason. Least WE think it was a good reason—we'll tell you and you can judge for yourselves. Mr. Goglin, who is, as you know, Miss Sheldon's husband, has been transferred to a Panamanian submärine base, Coco-Solo. To both Mr. and Mrs. Goglin the whole of Briarcliff wishes far more luck than can be expressed.

Ships seem to be in style this season, so Miss Johnston is going to get on a sea worthy vessel, June 5, and cross over to England. When she arrives in England, Miss Johnston will join a group from New College. They will visit industrial cities and spend three months studying labor conditions. Miss Johnston will return about the first of Miss Bird is also planning a trip abroad this summer. She is taking a group of Briarcliff gals traipsing around Europe. They are sailing July 1 on the Bremen, and according to the itinerary, certainly are not going to miss a thing.

June, of course, is the month deemed for weddings. Miss Ford is following this old tradition and will take the final leap about the 20th. Early in September, Mr. Edward Read and wife, nee Caroline Ford of Boston (and Briarcliff), will go to St. Paul, Minn., where they expect to reside perman-

Miss Allen hasn't long either. In fact recently she has been looking at bridal gowns and is finding it hard to decide which she will choose to wear for her marriage to Mr. William Henry Kain, in August. In the middle of June she is going to Cambridge where she will attend the commencement exercises of the Harvard Law School from which her fiance is graduating. They will be married August 1 at the Bishop's Court in Harrisburg, Penn.

Miss Boyd will be here until July 6 in Miss Sheldon's place. Though plans for the remainder of the summer are still indefinite, her time will be divided between New Haven, Kenwood, New York, and Chicago. Sounds like fun, doesn't it?

Miss Cressy's plans seem to include quite a bit of traveling. At any rate it can hardly be boring to keep running back and forth between the East and the West. Her home you know, is in South Dakota, which is quite a little

Miss Glazik is going back to the good old home of the famous "Boots an' Saddle." (Only foolin', honestly.) She's going to Nebraska for a couple of weeks, returning to New York on June 20. From there to Harrison, Maine, where she will be Director-Buyer for the Hamburger sisters camps

The ceremony ended with the singing of another hymn, and everyone gathered once more in the courtyard to congratulate the Seniors who stood facing the stairs, another part of the traditional ritual of Briarcliff graduations. Many of the parents and students took moving pictures, and the scene was one of mixed gaiety and tears at the parting.

Shortly following the graduation service, a delicious buffet luncheon was served in the main dining room. It consisted of crisp chicken salad, hot rolls, coffee and ice cream.

By two o'clock nearly everyone had gone, and the halls which have been so crowded and resounding for a year were silent once more until September finds them greeting the new Senior class and welcoming another class of Juniors.

Another worth-while investment was the purchase of new ash-trays. Smokers take notice! They are meant to be used!-even the gorgeous red one. It should be a pleasure to use it.

All the furniture has been re-upholstered in blue with red edging, as have the large cushions on the seats. The small cushions are of a contrasting red. There are new curtains, too, with colorful boats sailing on a blue background, and they lighten the room wonderfully.

Office Practice Class has a right to be proud of itself, and we congratulate it on its accomplishment.

On Thursday, May 28, there was not only a food shop for the benefit of the 'Briar Crier", but Miss Flick donated a large chocolate layer cake to be raffled off. When presented with the cake, Laura appeared quite dazed, but retained enough self-possession to make one of her amusing remarks. "I am completely over-come, bewildered, and-hungry!" she said. It was the first time she had ever won a raffle of any kind, and she found it hard to believe.

Several members of the cooking class donated their time and services to the "Briar Crier" and prepared the food sold at the Food Shop. There were cinnamon rolls, cream cheese and onion sandwiches, brownies, coffee, and coca-cola, which the customers seemed to appreciate highly.

The money earned in this way, from both the Food Shop and the raffle, enabled the "Briar Crier" staff to publish this Commencement issue of the

Farewell Luncheon

One of the ritual ceremonies of the Briarcliff Senior Luncheon is that of having each girl who is engaged run around the table once, any girls who are already married run around twice, and should there be anyone who is divorced she must complete a marathon of four laps about the festive board. This time there were only a few who ran around once, notably Jerre and Perk, whose plans are hardly secrets any longer. No one ran around the required two heats as a proof of marital bliss, and not a soul romped around the tell-tale four times.

After this was over, they sang a few more songs and then broke up to return to the college to see the Riding Meet. From various comments overheard, everyone seemed to have had a very satisfactory time.

"The Wind"

Bending the grass down In her winding path, The wind as she comes Stirs the scented flowers. The dead in their graves Hear her feet as she treads. Little feet, never resting; Her robes brush the hills And catch in the trees. She puts out her hand, And touches the clouds That swoop near her head. Then, like a thousand jewels, Water falls from above. She pauses a moment To throw back her head, And catch in her mouth The fresh rain drops. PAULINE ROBERTSON

The Pool - 8:30 - P.M.

THE RAID

It is late afternoon on the outskirts of a small Tahitian village. The young natives are swimming in a small pool, diving into its clear depths and dancing and playing with happy freedom on its shaded banks. Today the chieftain of the village has called a council of all his men to decide what action they are to take against a neighboring tribe of Wife-Hunters, who they fear will steal their wives and daughters. The meeting is set for dusk, and when the sun reaches the horizon a gong is sounded calling the mon to their council of war.

But the women linger, wishing to take advantage of the short Tahitian twilight before returning to the village. A few minutes pass, and suddenly their laughter is interrupted by a scream, - "The Wife Hunters!" A merry chase ensues, in which the maidens of the village try their best to escape the pursueing tribesmen. For a moment they are in great danger, but one of the girls has raced back to the village and called the men, who come to their rescue and give chase to the retreating Wife-Hunters. By this time darkness has fallen, and the women, frightened by their narrow escape, have returned to the village.

They discover, however, that the chiftain's daughter is missing. Fearing that an accident befell her in her efforts to escape the Wife-Hunters, they return at once with torches to look for her in and about the pool. Soon they hear the victorious shouts of the returning tribesmen and learn to their great joy that the chieftains daughter has been rescued from the enemy. Happy that no one has been harmed or captured, they all leave gayly for the village.

THE RAID

Scene I - Villagers come to the pool to swim and play.

Scene II - The men leave for the meeting, the neighboring tribesmen come on a raid and kidnap the chief's daughter.

Scone III - The search.

You hit the spot!
Senior class of 1936.
You hit the spot!
It is so very nice of you with us to mix.
You hit a new high in our estimation
We think you're grand Cause you've shown us the lay of the land.
Oh - you hit the spot!
Like your coffee on a Thursday night.
You hit the spot!
And we only want to do what you think's right.
Matter of factly, don't know exactly
Just what is is you've got
But oo, oo, oo, you, oo, oo hit the spot.

We are the new girls singing to you.
Our voices mingle with hearts so true
Bringinga song and we're praising a new Dear senior class - we're all for you.

we leave you

And when you leave us, we'll be so blue, Mext year please grant us one glimpse of you. Then we'll be old girls, greeting the new. We'll do our best to live up to you.

And now you know just how we felt Christmas last, Goody, goody.

We woke the birds and bees and are we ever pleased Because we're on our way for ten whole perfect days. You've heard of how the early bird caught the worm Fa, di, da, da.

But do you think we've spoken out of turn? And now we're going to leave you Although we know'twill grieve you. Goody, goody for you, Goody, goody for us,

And we hope you're satisfied, you rascals you!

Swimming Party and Luncheon Are Given for 'College Set'

A group of "college set" visitors in the city were the honorees Friday when Miss Sue Harding assisted by her mother, Mrs. R. E. Harding, entertained with a luncheon and swimming party at the Harding ranch west of town.

The honorees were Miss Anne Baker of Houston, who is the guest of Miss Camilla Beall, 1600 Sunset Terrace; Miss Laura Braden of Denver, the guest of Miss Carol Jane Greene, 511 River Crest Drive; Misses Ann Pemberton of Boston and Marilyn Weatherby of Detroit, who arrived Friday morning to be the guests of Miss Anna Melissa Hogsett of River Crest, and Miss Jean Simpson of Denver who also arrived Friday to visit Miss Pauline Hedrick, daughter of Mrs. P. K. French of River Crest Drive.

Miss Baker is a student at the University of Texas where she is a member of Kappa Kappa Gamma Sorority, and Misses Pemberton and Weatherby were classmates of Miss Hogsett at Briarcliff.

Many formal and informal social compliments will be given for the visitors during the coming fortnight be musical comedy, circus spectacle, frontier village and museum, the Palace of Pleasure, the sophisticated charm of dining at Casa Manana, under the star-studded sky, as the magnificent floor show is presented.

Then there will be the Indian villages, the various exhibits, rodeo and any number of other attractions for the visitors, many of whom are former Texans, taking the opportunity of the State's one hundredth birthday to return to their native State.

Anna Melissa Hogsett, daughter of the J. B. Hogsetts of River Crest, is home, having returned Friday from a year spent attending Briar-cliff Manor in New York, but more recently visiting friends on Cape Cod. Pauline Hedrick is expected by her mother, Mrs. P. K. French, to return Thursday from the same school, and an extensive visit with friends. She has visited in Larchmont with friends, in Washington D. C., and in Greenwich, Conn Lethargy of Usual Summer Season Is Forestalled by Colorful Show Events.

BY MARY SEARS.

Flags are flying and pinwheels are twirling at the Frontier Centennial grounds. Both are symbols of the gaiety which will pervade the social season during the remainder of July and all of August, in sharp contrast to the customary lethargy which usually descends during those months. Out-of-town and out-of-state visitors, here for the Centennial, will be complimented at parties during the remainder of the season.

STIELY MAY BE ADDED TO CAT MOUND STAFF

Another left-handed pitcher-Fred Stiely-may be added to the Fort Worth hurling corps by Friday noon, it was announced Thursday morning by Business Manager Cecil Coombs of the Cats.

Stiely, 34, was released by Oklahoma City Wednesday and he talked to the Fort Worth officials before they left there last night.

This is the stocky veteran's fifth season in the league. In the previous four he won 44 and lost 40. This year he has won six and lost four.

Oklahoma City turned him loose because new pitching timber has been secured and because Manager Bert Niehoff was irked by Stiely's inability to finish games which he started. Through the first half Fred started 10 games, went the route only once.

The failure of Jim Gravin as a relief pitcher as well as a starter has convinced Manager Homer Peel and Coombs they need a pitcher like Stiely.

ying at Cleburne Johnson and Reid Will Take Mound; Panthers Break Even on Trip

BY FLEM HALL.

A new day may be with them before the Fort Worth Cats and Tulsa Oilers complete this day's work.

They play a doubleheader tonight.

It will be the first two-in-one program offered here at night this season.

The starting time will be 8:15 o'clock.

Fred Johnson and Jackie Reid have been announced by Manager Homer Peel as the Cats' starting pitchers.

Max Thomas, a left hander, is | likely to be on the rubber at the beginning of the evening's entertainment for Tulsa. After that Manager Marty McManus will have to pick and choose among four flingers who are more or less ready. George Milstead appears the best bet but he's had only three days of rest and maybe that's not enough for the veteran. Then, too, he's a southpaw, and two lefties in one night may be too much to use against the Cats. Julius Wasco, Ed Selway and Clarence Pickrel, all young right handers, are prepared to go to the well.

The games tonight open a three-day series which only serves to break a jump from Oklahoma to deep South Texas. After Saturday's game both the Cats and Oilers will depart on

HUHAL JUHUUL STATUS IS SET

Changes in the classification of six rural schools of Tarrant County were announced at the office of County Superintendent Roach yes-terday after a meeting in which the County School Board fixed the number of grades to be taught in all schools of the rural districts dur-ing the next term.

Grades taught at Harrison were increased from six to seven. Grades at Wheatland and Oak Grove were reduced from eight to seven. Smithfield was reduced from 11 to nine grades, and Rosen Heights increased from seven to 11. Bedford was reduced from eight to seven grades.

The classification of each of the other rural schools, left unchanged, follows: Seventh grade, Dido, Miller, Wayside, Pleasant Glade, White Settlement, Chapin, Watson, Littles, Village Creek, Benbrook, Sycamore, New Hope, Sublett, Gertie, Castle-berry and Liberty.

Eighth grade schools are Pantego. Johnson Station, Grace Chapel, Bludworth and Florence, ninth grade, Britton, Pleasant Run, Minters Chapel, John T. White, Crow-ley, Rendon, Webb, Hurst, Kennedale and Carroll; tenth grade, Watauga (three grades not taught), and Avondale (two grades not taught); sixth grade, Fish Creek, and eleventh grade, Azle and Haslet.

The County School Board appointed H. C. Yancey of Grapevine to succeed Floyd Berry, a member, shwho resigned. Other members are nw. E. Williams, Littles, president; Ed Walker, Smithfield; V. A. Davis, Benbrook, and Dr. J. L. Gammill,

CO-RESPONDENT UNKNOWN

with James RENNIE, Ilka CHASE, Peggy CONKLIN

"'Co-Respondent Unknown' clicks at the Ritz. Amusing entertainment, with adroit coaching by Kenneth MacKenna. No better make-believing has been enjoyed by this heckler... There is an abundance of merriment."—Walter Winchell, MIRROR

"Racy humor and amusing characterizations... You are likely to be frequently beguiled by the authors' comic conceits."

-Howard Barnes, HERALD-TRIBUNE

" Another hit! Peggy Conklin and a bed can turn any reasonably good comedy into a success. The bundling queen did quite as much for 'Co-Respondent Unknown' last night as she did a few seasons back for 'The Pursuit of Happiness', which was to build ... a romantic comedy into something very much like a hit."

—Burns Mantle, NEWS

"Miss Conklin's Hattie is one of those rare delights in the theatre evenings. Her breakfast-scene is exceedingly, lastingly funny. For the fun to be got out of it, it is urged that you see Miss Conklin and Mr. Wolfson. They do an amusing job. You'd like it."

— Whitney Bolton, MORNING TELEGRAPH

"Smartly dialogued, and the characters are deftly etched. It is, as the title suggests, a play of divorce and sex, but it is never really vulgar."

— Kelcey Allen, WOMEN'S WEAR

"Some of the season's gayest moments are to be enjoyed in the three adroit stanzas of this play. It provides an exhibitanting evening in the theatre."—Rowland Field, BKLYN TIMES UNION

"There is much gaiety at the Ritz Theatre, so much that no theatregoer can afford to miss it."

A GENERAL MOTORS VALUE

ST. JAMES THEATRE March applie 1936 Bria

Gentlemen:

I have always suffered from claustraphobia (fear of being shut in). I had a horror of shrunken, tight-fitting shirts. So, though I really wear size 14, I always bought size $17\frac{1}{2}$.

This size gave me plenty of room, but it also gave me a pretty sloppy appearance. And that helped me sell pictures. An editor would look at my work unenthusiastically -- but when he'd look up at me, and see how Bohemian I looked, he'd say "This guy must be an artist" -- and buy the picture. It was a cinch.

Then one day I heard about Arrow Shirts, Sanforized-Shrunk. I saw Trump and Gordon, was captivated by their good looks, bought a supply of them. The clerk told me to get my exact size, because the shirts wouldn't shrink. And they didn't!

But -- they robbed me of my Bohemian appearance. Editors no longer were fooled. They told me to go back and learn how to draw. I did. And I Made Good.

Today, I again sell my drawings. Today, people stare at me as I walk down the street (see picture) and say in hushed voices, "There goes Steig, the well-dressed artist." Gentlemen, I'm sitting pretty -- and I have Arrow to thank!

Sincerely,

Wm Steig

P.S. The only fault I find with Arrow Shirts is that they take too long to wear out. I'm running short of rags on which to wipe my brushes.

David Burnstine Michael Gottlieb

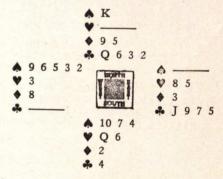

Oswald Jacoby Howard Schenken

THE two-notrump response to an opening suit bid of one. The two-notrump response is a game force which immediately catalogs the responding hand. The requirements are: A HCV of 8½ to 10½, a balanced hand with a fit (as good as J x or x x x) in the opening bidder's suit, and preparation for a lead in any suit. The precise information conveyed by this response practically assures the partnership of reaching the best final contract. In other words, while it tentatively suggests three notrump as the final contract, the opening bidder is given a fairly clear-cut picture of the game or slam possibilities in a suit or notrump.

For example, the opening bidder, holding a two-suiter, can be sure of finding support for his second suit; or holding a balanced hand with no suit longer than four cards, can decide whether to contract merely for game in notrump (closing the bidding), invite a slam mildly or strongly, or actually to bid a slam at his next bid

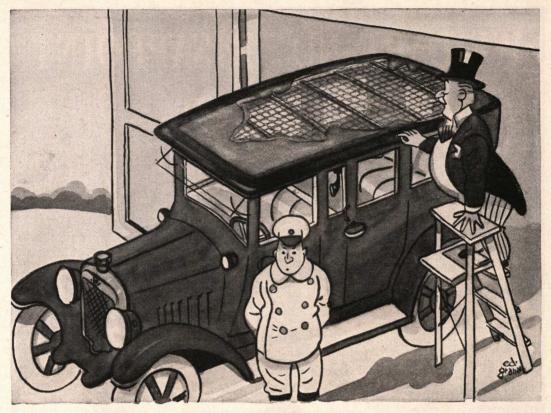

Incidentally, all slam bids or invitations in notrump are based on the theory that two balanced hands, containing a combined HCV of 22½ or more, will usually produce a slam.

PROBLEM NO. 31

Diamonds are trump and South leads. North and South must win six tricks against any defense.

The ten among you who send to THE PLAYBILL, 108 Wooster Street, New York, N. Y., the most accurate and concise descriptions of the solution mailed before midnight, Sunday, April 5, will receive copies of the Four Aces' book autographed by all of them.

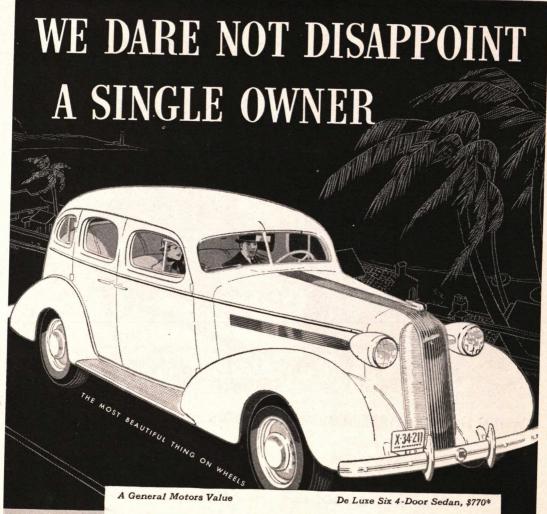

WHEN DID YOU FIRST NOTICE THE MOTHS IN THE ROOF, PARKER?"

Funny we never thought of that. We've stated in the public prints that the one-piece solid steel "Turret Top" is shock-proof, weave-proof, heat-proof, weather-proof...but frankly we never thought to mention it's moth-proof, too. Not that you're much afraid of moths... but we think you'll agree that solid steel overhead makes much better sense in every way than a soft spot of fabric It's just one of many reasons (Fisher No Draft Ventilation is another) for ALWAYS choosing a car with the one-piece solid steel "Turret Top" Body by Fisher . . . in short, a General Motors car.

SATISFY YOURSELF WITH SOMETHING BETTER ... BUY A PONTIAC

THERE are, today, over thirty makes of cars, each equipped and priced as attractively as possible. Yet in everincreasing thousands motorists choose Pontiac without looking at another car.

Talk to a Pontiac owner and you'll understand why. His delight in his car is wonderful to see. He gives it the same affection he bestows on other trusted friends. Every question about how he likes it gets an enthusiastic response. He, and thousands like him, explain Pontiac's unquestioned acceptance.

We are well aware of the worth of such good will. Indeed, we value it so highly that we dare not disappoint a single owner. He is worth far more to us than any salesman we could ever employ.

FOR DIGESTION'S SAKE.. SMOKE CAMELS

• Camels are made from finer, MORE EXPENSIVE TOBACCOS . . . Turkish and Domestic . . . than any other popular brand.

Copyright, 1936, R. J. Reynolds Tob. Co., Winston-Salem, N. C.

Mrs. Ernest du Pont, Jr., of Wilmington, Delaware, Photographed Recently in the Rainbow Room, Rockefeller Center

Mrs. du Pont says: "I always enjoy Camels—all through the day—and during meals especially. They never seem heavy, and I like their flavor tremendously. They make the whole meal so much pleasanter. I'm a naturally nervous person. Camels never get on my nerves, no matter how many I smoke."

It is an interesting fact that smoking a Camel during or between meals tends to stimulate and promote digestion. Enjoy Camel's mildness... the feeling of well-being fostered by Camel's matchless blend of costlier tobaccos. Camels set you right. Smoke Camels for digestion's sake!

On Bodies-He's the Boss

MEET OLIVER CLARK ... executive engineer ... who heads up the job of making Plymouth bodies roomy, comfortable, beautiful ... and safe.

Engineer Clark and staff spend their whole time designing and perfecting body features. From drawings and models they develop their ideas step by step.

They worked out Plymouth's lower floor and chair-height seats... which enable you to relax and rest. They insulated the car against noise. Found a simple way to give rear seat compartments proper ventilation . . . without drafts . . . found extra inches for shoulders, elbows and legs. They gave Plymouth big, wide doors . . . roomy trunks and luggage compartments. Made the car . . . inside and out . . . most beautiful of "All Three."

Beneath this beauty is the strength of steel...the famed Plymouth Safety-Steel body...every part of steel. Plymouth owners know this is another reason Plymouth stands up... another factor in making it the world's safest low-priced car.

WHO'S WHO IN THE CAST

WALTER WOOLF KING was Walter Wolf until he invaded Hollywood two years ago to carry on before the camera. Hereabouts he has been heard in such lyric fiestas as "The Red Robe," "Countess Maritza" and "Melody," and in dramatic roles, with only on occasion flights up the scale, in "Ladies All," with Violet Hemming, and with Veree Teasdale in "Experience Unnecessary." Pressed as to his local origin, Mr. King confesses to participation in one of the Shuberts' "Passing Shows," vintage of '21 or '22. If more is demanded, Mr. King reveals all in the statement that he started as the Pooh Bah in "The Mikado" with the Redpath Chautauqua Circuit in a Middle West rampage which saw him serve as chief electrician, grip, stage manager and player. On Sundays this unit did an about face and transformed itself into a cathedral choir with Mr. King as soloist and director.

NANCY McCORD is a protege of Marcella Sembrich, erstwhile luminary of the Metropolitan Opera Company, and was lyrically christened some years back in The American Opera Company. Two years ago she sang the prima donna role in "All the King's Horses" and this past summer was heard frequently and effectively in the outdoor musicals of the St. Louis Municipal Opera Company.

WALTER SLEZAK was one of the melodic pivots about which swung "Music in the Air" and on the close of that operetta demonstrated that he could do without music by his performance with Ina Claire in "Ode to Liberty." Songs have been as bread in his family for generations. His father, Leo Slezak, was one of the famous European Falstaffs. Young Walter was sent to medical school in Vienna, but it only took him one semester to discover that this was not his life's work, and he abandoned it to enter a banking house. That didn't last either. Michael Curtiz, the German picture director, offered him a chance in the movies, which he immediately accepted. In all, he had played in forty-nine pictures and a number of operettas and had made a very considerable name for himself when J. J. Shubert imported him to this country to play in "Meet My Sister," several seasons ago.

ROBERT C. FISCHER, born in Danzig, studied at the University of Leipzig, and his New York stage adventures date back to "The Stronger Claim," a Henry W. Savage production. He has recently been seen and heard here in "The Great Waltz," as Strauss's teacher, as Feldman in "Autumn Crocus" and with George M. Cohan in "Friendship." His one foray to the West Coast saw him in support of Claudette Colbert in "The Wiser Sex."

HARRY MESTAYER is still remembered by some for his superb portrayal of Oswald, in Ibsen's "Ghosts," although that was played by him more than twenty years ago. More recent productions in which he has appeared include: "The Son Daughter," "The Play's the Thing," "R.U.R." and "Volpone" for the Theatre Guild and last season's "Music in the Air," and "A Sleeping Clergyman" (this one also for the Guild). Earlier this season he was seen with Walter Hampden in "Achilles Had a Heel."

ROY GORDON has been active and eloquent in "Ode to Liberty with Ina Claire, with Tallulah Bankhead in "Something Gay," in "Page Miss Glory" and "The House Beautiful." He was dedicated as Captain Hodgeman in "Arizona," in the role previously played by Arthur Byron.

The name OSCAR HAMMERSTEIN II has been associated with musical comedy ever since the days when Edith Day danced, sang and was tempestuous among the apple blossoms in "Wildflower"—one of Mr. Hammerstein's (in collaboration with Otto Harbach) most outstanding successes. Since then he has provided the lyrics or books or both for such fare as "Rose Marie," with Mary Ellis and Dennis King, "Sunny" with Marilyn Miller, "Song of the Flame" (all in collaboration with Mr. Harbach); "The Desert Song" (with Harbach and Mandel)—that operetta that was called the interpretation of "Sheik" and "Beau Geste"; "Show Boat" from the Ferber book with such favorites in the cast as Charles Winninger, Edna May Oliver, Helen Morgan, Dennis King, Paul Robeson and Norma Terris; "The New Moon" (with Mandel and Lawrence Schwab)-Evelyn Herbert was prima donna in this one; "Sweet Adeline"-a romance of old New York in the halcyon days of roller skates and hansom cabs with the pale and brooding Helen Morgan presiding; and a few seasons ago, "Music in the Air" with a whole galaxy of Broadway stars. To be sure, these are only a few of the productions to which Mr. Hammerstein has contributed.

SIGMUND ROMBERG at one time regularly contributed the musical scores of the Winter Garden "Passing Shows." To the opening night performance of the 1916 edition, the late Theodore Roosevelt was invited to see William H. Philbrook's impersonation of the rough rider and to hear him advise: "Hell! Fight first and apologize afterward!" Unfortunately the colonel could not attend because of illness. The production was all good preparedness propaganda. Mr. Romberg did the scores for a long list of musicals, including The Student Prince." "Louie the 14th." 'Princess Flavia"; he adapted the music for "Blossom Time," and composed the score for "The Desert Song." "Cherry Blossoms," the old story of the little Japanese girl voluntarily leaving her American boy friend when his blonde ex-fiancee appears, was the next musical to which he set the score. With George Gershwin, he wrote the music for "Rosalie" and in 1927 he provided the tunes to Mr. Hammerstein's lyrics for "The New Moon." Since then he has put "Nina Rosa," "East Wind" and "Melody" to music, not to mention his radio work during the past year.

CONCERNING THE NEW YORK MARKET

POLICE! We called SPring 7-3100. We weren't reporting anyone. We just wanted to know how Commissioner Valentine's Safety Campaign was coming along. It seems that it's coming along fine. In fact we were told that there were only 1,555 auto accidents in New York City during the January of this year (and what a month for skidding) as compared to 2,144 accidents in January, 1935; that last December there were 2,197 as compared to 3,226 in 1934.

Looking back over the past few months, it seemed to us that it isn't just chance that has brought about a decided change in traffic operations throughout the city. We hadn't just been imagining things the few times that taxicabs had stopped short at street crossings to allow us to cross. And the time that we were going crosstown in a cab at theatre time, skidding this way and that—it wasn't just a coincidence that the driver was stopped at Seventh Avenue by a police whistle.

The other night a friend of ours let us use his Plymouth. We had never driven one before and we were trying to get the feel of it. So intent were we in getting it running smoothly, we were more than a little startled when we heard the whistle being blown at us. A few blocks ahead, to the right, there had been a green light, but the red one hadn't come on yet and the crosstown traffic hadn't started. What the policeman was sore about was that there was a red light to the left of us which we hadn't seen. We never do when they're at the left. It didn't make a bit of difference to the officer, though. The boys are really serious about making New York safe for the pedestrian.

FIRST SIGNS OF SPRING Along towards the end of February, the American milliners returned from the Paris Spring and early Summer openings with trunk loads of Paris hats. There was a mad dash to get copies made and the originals, until then guarded almost at the point of a machine gun, on display for the out-oftown buyers. It is estimated that not less than 400 buyers come to New York each week during the season to attend the millinery openings. As in the case of all buyers who come to New York, there is the business of entertaining them; like anyone who comes to New York at any time, sooner or later they find their way to the legitimate theatre, to see the play and watch the trend of fashion.

READERSHIP And speaking of the theatre,
The Playbill has turned up in some unexpected places. The other night we finally got around to see "Jumbo." Always conscious of theatre audiences, we took our seat, crossed our legs, buried our chin in the palm of our hand and began to observe. Directly in front of us a young man was looking over his "Jumbo" program (last call, ten cents a copy, only a dime) and beside him his mother was deeply engrossed in reading, too. We craned our neck, there was something more familiar about her program; it was different than the one the young man had. It wasn't a "Jumbo" program at all. It was The Playbill of the Broadhurst Theatre, evidently kept for perusal after the matinee performance of that day.

Gentlemen:

I have always suffered from claustraphobia (fear of being shut in). I had a horror of shrunken, tight-fitting shirts. So, though I really wear size 14, I always bought size $17\frac{1}{2}$.

This size gave me plenty of room, but it also gave me a pretty sloppy appearance. And that helped me sell pictures. An editor would look at my work unenthusiastically -- but when he'd look up at me, and see how Bohemian I looked, he'd say "This guy must be an artist" -- and buy the picture. It was a cinch.

Then one day I heard about Arrow Shirts, Sanforized-Shrunk. I saw Trump and Gordon, was captivated by their good looks, bought a supply of them. The clerk told me to get my exact size, because the shirts wouldn't shrink. And they didn't!

But -- they robbed me of my Bohemian appearance. Editors no longer were fooled. They told me to go back and learn how to draw. I did. And I Made Good.

Today, I again sell my drawings. Today, people stare at me as I walk down the street (see picture) and say in hushed voices, "There goes Steig, the well-dressed artist." Gentlemen, I'm sitting pretty -- and I have Arrow to thank!

Sincerely,

Wm Steig

P.S. The only fault I find with Arrow Shirts is that they take too long to wear out. I'm running short of rags on which to wipe my brushes.

Schiaparelli sends over a cape suit of black cloth, the cape edged with a white pleated frill.

Fashion

RECENT openings around town have put Schiaparelli and Mainbocher neck and neck in the import field for daytime. Each, so far, has sent over an idea which is being copied and copied; Mainbocher that petticoat dress, of which everyone in town already has a pet version; Schiaparelli a black street costume with a white pleated ruffle outlining its hip-length cape. It took curtain calls at Bergdorf Goodman's opening.

- This cape-suit carries the same bird fastenings which are making a mark for themselves in another Schiaparelli success—a fitted coat with a waistline in the Empire tradition, high and close, and the cloth smoothed down over the hips like the traditional paper on the wall.
- Boleros continue to be big news. They're cut in lengths anywhere from just below the armpit to just above the waistline, and, if your figure is svelte below, nothing in the world is more flattering. The bolero suit in the sketch immediately below is from Bergdorf's new collection. The jacket has braid and buttons, the blouse has frills, the skirt has a band and bow at the top and the whole thing has infinite charm and youth.

- Here, shown above in a printed taffeta evening-suit from Dana Jeannot, is another use of the bolero. This one wears a sailor collar and puffed short sleeves and bears little resemblance to its Spanish ancestor. We sketched it at a preview of Rockefeller Center's Easter Parade, a Spring fashion show being put on in a fine, vernal setting of trees and flowers, three times daily all of this week.
- Discounting Margot, which a great many people are presently going to be only too happy to do, the stage's current great gift to fashion is Bonwit Teller's striped housecoat, copied from the one worn by the Prince Consort in "Victoria Regina." Women are snatching this up as fast as the manufacturer can turn it out, largely because it happens to be the perfect tailored lady's housecoat of the season—comfortable to wear, easy to slip in and out of, and so becoming you are tempted to stay home all day for the sake of keeping it on.
- More good news from the same good store. They have a handbag up there designed specially for small women who insist upon dwarfing themselves by carrying enormous bags. This bag is enormous, all right, but done of chiffon capeskin, so soft and fine it is possible to make it up like a long pillow shirred down the middle, which, when tucked under the arm of a little woman, magically gives the illusion of being the right size for the wearer.

Below, left, Suzy's grosgrain hat with fluted frill, at Henri Bendel—a pert piece of nonsense for your gayer moments. To the right of this, Descat's faille pillbox, dressed up with a rippled band of the faille across the brow, and a veil draped over all. Also from Henri Bendel, where, if you fall in love with the hat at first sight, as so many do, and want it made up in colored linen to match your suit shirt, they'll gladly do it for you.
- Among perfumes for Spring, we think you'll like: "Cassandra," the 1936 sensation by Weil (who invented your pet "Zibeline"). It's light, lasting and floral, with a faint lemony undertone and plenty of allure. Bottled in a clear crystal Ionic column . . . Molyneux's "Vivre," which smells like flowers in the rain . . . Chanel's "Cuir de Russie," a dandy for your tweeds because it has captured the characteristic scent of Russia leather. These are at perfume counters now.

AFTER THE THEATRE

W/ITH gleesome anticipation the town turned up at the Savoy-Plaza for Dwight Fiske's return from the South with some fresh musical monologues. A new Fiske leeric is an event, and once the old off-coloratura had curled a sinister lip at the assembled bluebloods, by way of getting in the mood, he ripped into "Uncle Tom's Cabaña," best of the new batch. At his second show, Fiske satisfied requests for such old favorites as "Venus and Adonis," "We're at the Everglades," and the imperishable "Mrs. Pettibone," lecturing to the Ladies' Club on Sex and her three husbands. Park Avenue turns out in such force for Fiske that the occasion may soon be known, in deference to Cholly Knickerbocker's young photographer, as Marty Black's Flashlight Bulb Party. Bob Grant's orchestra is back, too.

 Mid-week suggestion: On Tuesdays Clara Belle Walsh holds her "Fun and Frolic" evenings in the Trianon Room of the Ambassador. Balloons, favors, masks to wear for dancing, and a good sprinkling of stars. Recently: Gloria Swanson, Richard Barthelmess, Irene Rich, John Boles, Tilly Losch and Boris (Fun & Frolic) Karloff. Vincent Lopez provides grand dance music. . . . Witold Gordon, the mural painter, is doing a series for the cocktail lounge of the Rainbow Grill, in one of which will appear Oscar, the late lamented Rainbow Room pigeon who was dashed to his death in a storm last month. More interesting, however, is the subject Mr. Gordon has chosen as most fitting for a cocktail lounge, the rout of Bacchus.

· Here-and-there: Ruby Newman and his band will entertain the cast of Harvard's Hasty Pudding show in the Rainbow Grill Thursday. Ruby used to play for the show on its Eastern tour. . . . Milton Berle is at the Paradise. . . . Tommy Dorsey and his orchestra open Wednesday in the Blue Room of the Lincoln. . . . On hand for Dwight Fiske's Savoy-Plaza return were Ilka Chase, Mrs. Richard T. Wilson, Marion Cooley, A. K. Mills, Mrs.

David Burnstine Michael Gottlieb Oswald Jacoby
Howard Schenken

THE two-notrump response to an opening suit bid of one. The two-notrump response is a game force which immediately catalogs the responding hand. The requirements are: A HCV of 8½ to 10½, a balanced hand with a fit (as good as J x or x x x) in the opening bidder's suit, and preparation for a lead in any suit. The precise information conveyed by this response practically assures the partnership of reaching the best final contract. In other words, while it tentatively suggests three notrump as the final contract, the opening bidder is given a fairly clear-cut picture of the game or slam possibilities in a suit or notrump.

For example, the opening bidder, holding a two-suiter, can be sure of finding support for his second suit; or holding a balanced hand with no suit longer than four cards, can decide whether to contract merely for game in notrump (closing the bidding), invite a slam mildly or strongly, or actually to bid a slam at his next bid.

Incidentally, all slam bids or invitations in notrump are based on the theory that two balanced hands, containing a combined HCV of 22½ or more, will usually produce a slam.

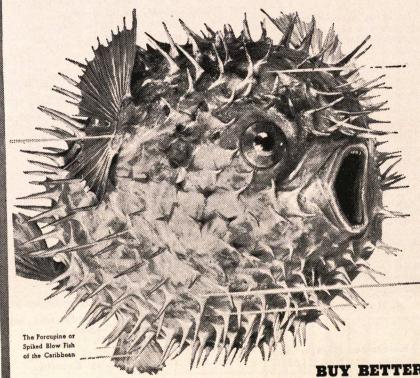

PROBLEM NO. 31

Diamonds are trump and South leads. North and South must win six tricks against any defense.

T PAYS TO DRIVE A FINE CAR!

Owning a 1936 Chrysler gives the thrill of possessing one of the sleekest, smartest motor cars ever to take the road.

On top of that, this adventure in fine-car luxury is surprisingly economical. Prices on the beautiful new 1936 Chryslers start as low as $760, list at factory, Detroit.

Smart cars fashionwise, and smart cars budgetwise, the new Chryslers.

will win you completely when you see and drive them. Do that soon!

What the MAN

THERE is a venerable saving that you L can always tell a Harvard man (or is it Yale, or is it Princeton?), but you can't tell him much. Certainly, you can't tell any undergraduate much about sporting fashions. Each one is pleased to "gang his ain gait." There is no uniformity about the thing. In America sporting fashions are as endless as the tattoo of feet on Fifth Avenue. They appear, disappear, re-appear with almost rhythmic regularity. The Norfolk jacket is in, then it's out. Slacks are out: plus-fours are in. Plain jackets, yoke-back jackets, belted jackets, beltless jackets-everybody wears anything, "but who pretender is, or who is king, God bless us all, that's quite another thing."

Popularity Vs. Exclusiveness

• For a change, therefore, let us take some of the popularly accepted notions in sporting rigouts. They are rather more fanciful than rarefied fashions, but they have their following. At the left is the knockabout jacket with four patch pockets, narrow pleats extending over the shoulders and a half belt in the back. This garment is 2-button with wide notch lapels, full shoulders and sides not too waist-arched. The collar is the affair with button-down tips. The cravat is spotted Spitalfields foulard. The felt hat is the dished-crown "pudding-basin" (pork-pie to you) shape with a broader brim than ordinarily.

Sporting Jackets Should Be Loose

• On the right is another sporting jacket the distinguishing feature of which is the deep side vents in place of the orthodox ventless effect. Observe, too, the small pleats or shirrings on the sleevehead. Pockets are patch and lapels are notch, as the peak lapel is not as well suited to sporting clothes. This jacket drapes loosely to the figure for needful armswing and shoulder-play. The collar fastens with a gold safety pin, the cravat is polkadotted silk and the hat is the semi-Tyrolean snap-brim shape.

A Hat Tip From Sir Walter Gilbey

• Speaking at the recent banquet in London of the British Felt Hat Manufacturers' Federation, Sir Walter Gilbey said pithily: "For goodness' sake, let there be some shape and rhythm in slouch hats and not mere floppiness. Put a little more curl in the brim. Men should not be made to look like gangsters." Bravissimo, Sir Walter! The widespread

JOHNNIE WALKER

Clothed in tradition ... backed by common sense ... is the custom of enjoying a "Johnnie Walker and soda" before dinner. Smooth, tangy, bracing ... it whets the appetite and warms the spirit.

And of course, after dinner, you'll find the knowing ones sticking with Johnnie Walker. For no whisky "sits better" after food and drink. All Johnnie Walker Red Label is matured 8 years; Black Label, 12 years.

vogue of the Homburg hat for springtime shows that we are being weaned back to better standards in hats. The shape illustrated here is the graceful Homburg at its best—tapering of crown, sweepingly curled of brim and with a devil-may-care tilt that connotes the cosmopolite who, as the old saying ran, doesn't look as if he owns the earth, but as if he doesn't give a hoot who owns it.

The difference is as deep as a well and as wide as a church door.

Swat The Gloom; Show Your Colors!

• So-called Scottish district checks continue to be very smart in suiting patterns for springtime. The materials are double-twist cheviot or Saxony with vari-colored overplaids in such authentic designs as Scots Guards, Glen Orchy and Prince of Wales, as they are known in London's West End. District checks are now seen not only in sporting jackets, but in lounge suits, to which they lend colorful character and a peaty savor.

Knitted Shirts Like Tennyson's Brook

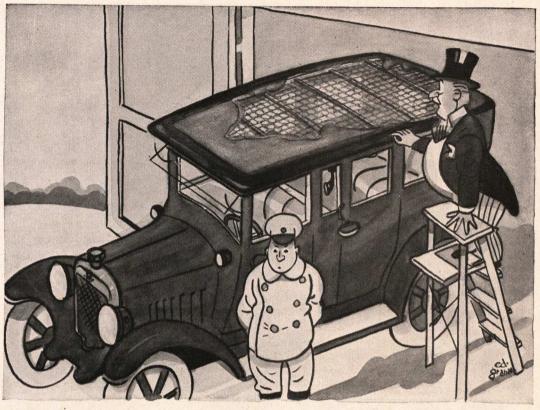

• Styles may come and styles may go, but, seemingly, the knitted sporting shirt goes on forever. The newest sorts have the Duke of Kent wide-spaced collar instead of the familiar deep-point type. Lemon and pale blue are smart colors and green is gaining. So, too, are diminutive checks. Openknit or cellular-twist field shirts will be preferred by more men for supposed coolness, though this, akin to standing with one's back to an empty fireplace, is all in the mind.

The Pullover, 1936 Edition

• Perhaps the smartest effect in pullover jackets, certainly the newest, is the one with the so-called dolphin collar just brought out in England. This collar resembles the lapels on a double-breasted lounge jacket; they overlap at the base, thus giving an appearance of trimness and warmth. Another noteworthy departure is wide zigzag ribbing on pullover jackets in contradistinction to the customary narrow-ribbed effect.

Contrariwise, English sportsmen are keen just now for a new knitted cardigan jacket which buttons like a coat and is made with pleated bellows pockets similar to those seen on a shooting jacket.

WHEN DID YOU FIRST NOTICE THE MOTHS IN THE ROOF, PARKER?"

Funny we never thought of that. We've stated in the public prints that the one-piece solid steel "Turret Top" is shock-proof, weave-proof, heat-proof, weather-proof...but frankly we never thought to mention it's moth-proof, too. Not that you're much afraid of moths...but we think you'll agree that solid steel overhead makes much better sense in every way than a soft spot of fabric It's just one of many reasons (Fisher No Draft Ventilation is another) for ALWAYS choosing a car with the one-piece solid steel "Turret Top" Body by Fisher . . . in short, a General Motors car.

Mrs. du Pont says: "I always enjoy Camels—all through the day—and during meals especially. They never seem heavy, and I like their flavor tremendously. They make the whole meal so much pleasanter. I'm a naturally nervous person. Camels never get on my nerves, no matter how many I smoke."

It is an interesting fact that smoking a Camel during or between meals tends to stimulate and promote digestion. Enjoy Camel's mildness... the feeling of well-being fostered by Camel's matchless blend of costlier tobaccos. Camels set you right. Smoke Camels for digestion's sake!

thank the gentlemen for such inspiriting items in their new Spring wardrobes as weskits, tailored suits and spats, are not without meaning. The debt is no small one, for no-one will deny the girls are charming in their more-or-less borrowed finery; and, while the flurry over tailored fashions is due to subside a bit once Summer gets under way, a lesson will have been learned which won't die out in a hurry.

- What we mean is that women have found out that custom fitting carries its own reward. That, for instance, a shirt made to order to fit one's own measurements brings a kind of satisfaction which few ready-to-wear arti-cles, however well made, can equal. The man-tailored mode for women may go as it came, but the feeling for custommade clothes will stay behind, a heritage from one of the most feverish fads in fashion's history.
- · Lots of fuss is being made about heels and heel heights right now, but it needn't bother you, because we're having a shoe season in which anything goes. If you like clothes of the sort called dressy and never feel really comfortable unless your foot is making a forty-five degree angle with the floor, wear your spikes and turn up your nose at all the talk about how smart flat heels are. Or, if you like to stride by day and glide by night in shoes with no more heel than a lift or two, do it to your heart's content. Both extremes, and all the grades in between as well, are correct. Literally, you can't go wrong.

WHO'S WHO IN THE CAST

JOYCE ARLING, when asked for a program note, said: "It will be noted that I've never been hired or fired by anyone in New York but George Abbott." This is her fourth Abbott engagement. The others were "Kill That Story," "Ladies' Money" and "Three Men on a Horse." Away back in 1930 she toured in a one-night-stand company of "What Every Woman Knows" and while still a youngster (1928) she appeared in a road company of "Jarnegan."

JEROME COWAN, up from the silent films, in which he not only doubled as author and hack but filled in as a director, is a full-fledged hoofer. He's the fellow who replaced Clifton Webb in "As Thousands Cheer." His other engagements include "Ladies' Money," "Rendezvous," "Flying High" and "Paths of Glory." For the radio he gave his all to "Crime Clues."

ALLYN JOSLYN was born in New York, went to school in Philadelphia, was Ann Harding's leading man in stock and admits to a certain dizziness in real life. He is thirty years old and has been in thirty-six

Broadway plays, accounting for his antics in his present role. He was in six Theatre Guild productions, among which were "Volpone," "Saint Joan" and "He Who Gets Slapped." His longest stop in one production was "The Firebrand."

JAMES MacCOLL, despite his British accent, was born in New York. He began with Ethel Barrymore and, until his present role, appeared principally for the Shuberts. He was in "Life Begins at 8:40" and "At Home Abroad" among his recent carnivals. In between he dabbled in Shakespeare.

ROYAL BEAL, from Brookline, Mass., has been seen here in "Elizabeth, The Queen" with Lunt and Fontanne, "Take a Chance," "Page Miss Glory" and "Noah." He devoted four years to the drama (and now winds up as a cinema supervisor) with Professor George Pierce Baker at Harvard. Important engagements included "Twelfth Night" with Jane Cowl on tour, "Journey's End" and "The 19th Hole" with Frank Craven.

CHARLES McCLELLAND comes from Oklahoma. He is a graduate of Carnegie Institute of Technology, where he was a football hero credited with having something to do with the Notre Dame upset in '26. Strange as it seems, he really played Westerns in Hollywood and is expert as a bareback rider. He was in "Tobacco Road" for more than a year. And before that he did well by "Meteor" and a revival of "Whistling in the Dark."

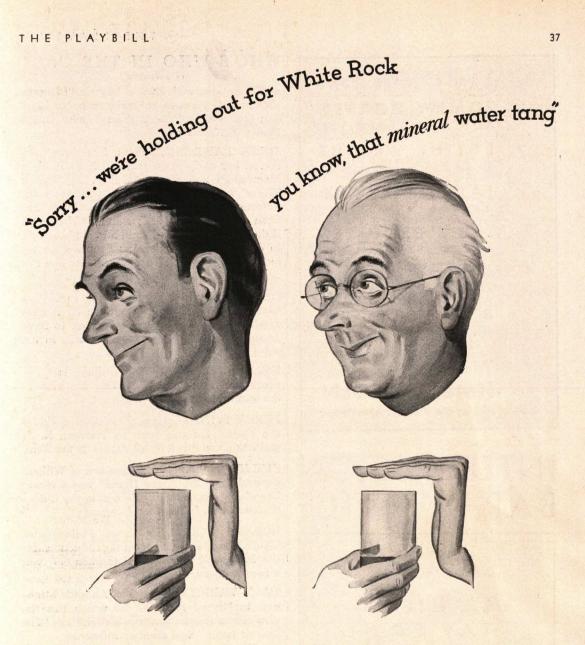

EVEREIT H. SLOANE is a Hollywood product, knowing the comical byways and the strange zoo-like personages encountered there. He has fashioned the role of Rosetti from a casting agent right out of the flesh, even to the suits and mannerisms.

LEA PENMAN is a pupil of Yvette Guilbert, the noted French diseuse. Dorothy Parker introduced her to the Broadway stage after engagements in California, in which she appeared in a repertoire of plays by George Bernard Shaw and Ibsen.

MAURICE SOMMERS, who is an authentic Hollywood pianist, having supplied the music that inspired several cinema stars to give their all to the Big Moments, was first noticed by Broadway managers while appearing with Ethel Barrymore in "Declasse." At the moment he is at work composing the score for a satirical musical show, attempting to make the tunes as comical as the lyrics, which have been written by a member of the "Boy Meets Girl" cast who prefers to remain unidentified.

JOHN CLARKE, born in Nottingham, England, was brought to this country by Gilbert Miller for the production of "Monsieur Beaucaire" in 1919. The following year he appeared in the Ziegfeld "Follies." Later he was prominent in "The Three Musketeers"

That's just it! That mineral water "tang". That's the real difference in White Rock. Tang brings out natural flavor ... makes things taste better. Nature herself gives White Rock its fresh, keen taste ... because every single drop comes from but one place on earth, from the famous White Rock mineral springs at Waukesha, Wis. Furthermore, it's on the alkaline side . . . better for you.

and in London with Evelyn Laye in "Princess Charming." He sang in grand opera in London and was in "The Dubarry" with Grace Moore in New York.

JULIE LAWRENCE, from Rochester, received her early stage training from Rouben Mamoulian and George Cukor. In "Street Scene" a few years ago she portrayed six different roles at each performance. She has been seen in "The Left Bank," "Wind and Rain," "Paradise Lost," and she has stood by to double for such stars as Francine Larrimore and Erin-O'Brien Moore. And she has been popular in summer stock companies.

GEORGETTE McKEE has been in Hollywood and is making her bow in an Abbott production. She is a handy person to have around, knowing every feminine role in the play.

HELEN GARDNER, from Buffalo, last appeared in "Small Miracle." She has been at the summer theatre in Westport, Conn.

PERRY IVINS goes back to "Desire Under the Elms." He was born in Trenton, N. J., and has given much of his career to the films.

PHILIP FAVERSHAM is the son of William Faversham. "Fly Away Home" was a recent Broadway engagement. He was in the Chicago company of "Another Language."

ROBERT FOULK is from Philadelphia, where he appeared in several productions for the Mask and Wig. "As Husbands Go" was a recent chore.

JUAN VARRO came to Mr. Abbott's attention in "Small Miracle," at which time he also gave a human touch to a chauffeur. "The Drums Begin" was another milestone.

HAPPY of the trailer in opening of Act 2 is Judith Ann Roy, daughter of Mrs. Paul Roy of Astoria. She is like Susie's line in the play: "I'm going to call him Happy even if he is a girl." Happy is a girl. She is seven months old.

GEORGE W. SMITH, of Bangor, Me., has been seen in "What Price Glory," "Rendez-vous," and "Paths of Glory."

BELLA and SAMUEL SPEWACK have been writing together for the past ten years. They met when both were reporters on newspapers (at the age of nineteen) and were married several years later. Mrs. Spewack wrote many short stories, some of which were reprinted by Edward J. O'Brien in his anthology. Mr. Spewack was sent as correspondent of the New York World to Russia and to Germany. "Boy Meets Girl" is their fifth produced play, among the others being "Clear All Wires" and "Spring Song." During a five-year stay in Hollywood they wrote a dozen or so pictures for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, among them "Cat and Fiddle," "The Nuisance," the picture version of "The Vinegar Tree" which became "Should Ladies Behave?", "The Solitaire Man," "Rendezvous" and others. Previously they spent two years at another major studio and perfected their tennis and laughed heartily. Mrs. Spewack is particularly proud of a short story called "The Laugh," published by the London Calendar of Modern Letters and reprinted by O'Brien. She received $12.42 for this grim tale. In her spare time, during this era, Mrs. Spewack press-agented "The Miracle." Mr. Abbott was responsible for the Spewacks' first journey to Hollywood. While strolling down the street one day shortly after the 1929 crash (The Spewacks with great perspicacity had entered the market for the first time two months previously) Mr. Spewack met Mr. Abbott, who suggested the team go to Hollywood and arranged the expedition.

GEORGE ABBOTT came to New York fresh from Baker's course at Harvard with a trunk full of bad plays and got himself a job acting in "The Misleading Lady" with Lewis Stone, just to be able to make a living while waiting for his momentous dramas to be appreciated by the managers. Appreciation was so long in coming that he became established as an actor before he finally wrote a play that secured production. This was "The Fall Guy," a collaboration with James Gleason. He left the cast of "Processional" to direct it, and the following years directed "Broadway," which he had written in collaboration with Philip Dunning. Other plays which he has been connected with either as author, director, or both include "Love 'Em and Leave Em," "Four Walls," "Chicago," "Coquette," "Twentieth Century," "Small Miracle," and the two current hits, "Jumbo" and "Three Men on a Horse,"

CONCERNING THE NEW YORK MARKET

The Playbill is distributed exclusively to theatre patrons of New York's legitimate theatres.

POLICE! We called SPring 7-3100. We weren't reporting anyone. We just wanted to know how Commissioner Valentine's Safety Campaign was coming along. It seems that it's coming along fine. In fact we were told that there were only 1,555 auto accidents in New York City during the January of this year (and what a month for skidding) as compared to 2,144 accidents in January, 1935; that last December there were 2,197 as compared to 3,226 in 1934.

Looking back over the past few months, it seemed to us that it isn't just chance that has brought about a decided change in traffic operations throughout the city. We hadn't just been imagining things the few times that taxicabs had stopped short at street crossings to allow us to cross. And the time that we were going crosstown in a cab at theatre time, skidding this way and that—it wasn't just a coincidence that the driver was stopped at Seventh Avenue by a police whistle.

The other night a friend of ours let us use his Plymouth. We had never driven one before and we were trying to get the feel of it. So intent were we in getting it running smoothly, we were more than a little startled when we heard the whistle being blown at us. A few blocks ahead, to the right, there had been a green light, but the red one hadn't come on yet and the crosstown traffic hadn't started. What the policeman was sore about was that there was a red light to the left of us which we hadn't seen. We never do when they're at the left. It didn't make a bit of difference to the officer, though. The boys are really serious about making New York safe for the pedestrian.

FIRST SIGNS OF SPRING

Along towards the end of February, the American milliners returned from the Paris Spring and early Summer openings with trunk loads of Paris hats. There was a mad dash to get copies made and the originals, until then guarded almost at the point of a machine gun, on display for the out-of-town buyers. It is estimated that not less than 400 buyers come to New York each week during the season to attend the millinery openings. As in the case of all buyers who come to New York, there is the business of entertaining them; like anyone who comes to New York at any time, sooner or later they find their way to the legitimate theatre, to see the play and watch the trend of fashion.

READERSHIP And speaking of the theatre,
The Playbill has turned up in some unexpected places. The other night we finally got around to see "Jumbo." Always conscious of theatre audiences, we took our seat, crossed our legs, buried our chin in the palm of our hand and began to observe. Directly in front of us a young man was looking over his "Jumbo" program (last call, ten cents a copy, only a dime) and beside him his mother was deeply engrossed in reading, too. We craned our neck, there was something more familiar about her program; it was different than the one the young man had. It wasn't a "Jumbo" program at all. It was The Playbill of the Broadhurst Theatre, evidently kept for perusal after the matinee performance of that day.

ADVERTISING FUNDAMENTALS IN NEW YORK CITY

New York is the richest market in the world.

The Playbill reaches that market exclusively.

THE CORPS

The Corps! Bareheaded salute it,
With eyes up, thanking our God
That we of the Corps are treading
Where they of the Corps have trod—
They are here in ghostly assemblage,
The men of the Corps long dead,
And our hearts are standing attention
While we wait for their passing tread.

We, sons of today, salute you—
You, sons of an earlier day;
We follow, close order, behind you,
Where you have pointed the way;
The long gray line of us stretches
Through the years of a century told,
And the last man feels to his marrow
The grip of your far-off hold.

Grip hands with us now, though we see not,
Grip hands with us, strengthen our hearts
As the long line stiffens and straightens
With the thrill that your presence imparts.
Grip hands—though it be from the shadows—
While we swear, as you did of yore,
Or living, or dying, to honor
The Corps, and the Corps!

THE LATE BISHOP H. S. SHIPMAN, FORMER CHAPLAIN, U. S. M. A.

ALMA MATER

Hail, Alma Mater dear,
To us be ever near,
Help us thy motto bear
Through all the years.

Let Duty be well performed,
Honor be e'er untarned,
Country be ever armed,
West Point, by thee.

Guide us, thy sons, aright,
Teach us by day, by night,
To keep thine honor bright,
For thee to fight.

When we depart from thee, Serving on land or sea, May we still loyal be, West Point, to thee.

And when our work is done, Our course on earth is run, May it be said, "Well done, Be thou at peace."

E'er may that line of gray
Increase from day to day,
Live, serve, and die, we pray,
West Point, for thee.
